

An Accurate, Two-Row, Riding Corn Drill

The number of bushels of corn, or the amount of silage you get per acre, depends not only upon field and weather conditions, but also upon the accuracy of the planter. The seed must be planted right to get the big yield.

You can feel absolutely certain that it is being planted right if you use one of our John Dere No. 919 Corn Drills. This planter is equipped with the ismous John Deere Natural Cell Fill Edge-delivery seed platesthe most accurate planting device ever designed.

Come in and look at this planter. Notice the special sloping construction of the hopper bottom and the seed plate cells, which insures accuracy; the tipover hoppers, and the variable drop and sprockets that give you any one of nine different drilling distances without changing seed plates.

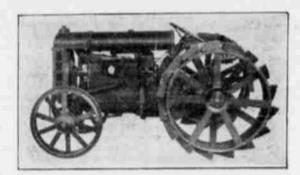

Get your share of the extra profit possible from using a John Decre No. 919 Corn Drill this spring.
