

TOMATO MOSAIC DISEASE CAUSES SERIOUS DAMAGE

No Means of Checking Spread Known, and Effective Prevention is Advisable

Mosaic disease of tomatoes is both contagious and infectious, and causes a great deal of damage when once fairly started, say the O. A. C. Experiment station authorities.

No effective means of checking the spread of the disease has been found, and in order to protect himself the buyer of plants should learn whether the growers of them had mosaic trouble the previous year and whether the young plants have been exposed to infection. If there is any danger of infection the grower should grow the seedlings himself rather than take a chance of buying diseased plants.

The disease is hard to detect in young plants, but the leaves become yellow, spotted and curled as the plants grow older. It is caused by an organism or an unbalanced condition which is carried in the sap of the plant and affects the chlorophyll of the leaves.

An accurate description of the disease is given in the Third Crop Pest and Horticultural Report, which may be had on application to O. A. C., Corvallis.

"The advertising a speciality farmer does in his local paper bears a close relation to his bank account" believes Dean J. A. Bexell of the O. A. C. school of commerce, who is giving a course in purchasing and selling this term.

"If a farmer who produces specialties in fruit, vegetables or poultry advertises and sells his produce he prospers, but if he quits advertising, which will invariably cause his sales to shrink, his bank account will shrink in proportion," says Dean Bexell. "He must develop his market, and advertising is the greatest force at his disposal."

An ad in the local paper devoted to letting the community know what he has for sale will bring 10 products.

pective buyers where but one could be reached otherwise, thinks the dean, and if the farmer in question has a variety of products, and a fairly constant supply, it is a good plan to continue advertising over a period of weeks.

Development of a home market for all produce the community is capable of assuming, will work to the benefit of farmers just as merchants are benefitted by community trade rather than by that of transient buyers. If the farmer produces an article in excess of any local needs, ads in farm journals and periodicals are effective mediums of bringing buyers, it is said by advertising specialists.

"That advertising is indispensable to any man in a principle accepted by instructors in courses relative to business administration and courses in advertising show the type suited for each occasion. Men producing raw material are business men just as well as the middlemen who buy their produce," says Dean Bexell, "and they are coming to recognize more and more opportunities in disposing of farm products."

FRUITLAND BENCH

At a meeting of the Fruitland Board of Education Monday evening Russell Kinney, of Wendle, Idaho, was selected for teacher in History and Athletics. Miss Gladys McKeown, a student in McMinnville, Oregon College for two years, will teach the Primary grades at Sunnyside. There are still vacancies in sixth, seventh and eighth grades. The Board will meet again in two weeks.

Rev. and Mrs. L. H. Eby and son left Monday night for Manchester, Indiana, to visit their daughter, Miss Pearl Eby a student at the Manchester College. Miss Eby has carried on her studies specializing in art and music and at the same time has taught those studies in the Manchester schools. She has been selected as art and music supervisor in nine schools in and around Manchester. Rev. and Mrs. Eby will visit relatives in Indiana and Ohio and plan not to return to Fruitland for a year. He preached his farewell sermon at the Brethern Church Sunday morning.

Fruitland Dryer belonging to R. M. Davidson & Company will in the future be operated by S. W. Ormsby of Boise and it will be running to its full capacity this season. Dried apples and pumpkin flour will be turned out by the plant. Mr. Ormsby has already made advance sales to wholesale houses in Boise 90,000 pounds of dried apples and has arranged to furnish 50 tons of pumpkin flour to a California firm which ships over the country. Large bakers use pumpkin flour to cut out waste and it is sold at an economical price which should find ready consumption in the homes. Growers around Fruitland are to raise pumpkins at $8 a ton. After this year new equipment will be added to the plant. The Rae-King drying system will be installed.

One of the social affairs of note the past week was the Fruitland Fruitgrowers Banquet. About 125 were present, twenty of them being invited guests. Mr. Sugrew, Seattle, of the Northwest Fruitgrowers Exchange, made an address on Market Conditions which was good. The crowd participated in a cafeteria luncheon served on a long table decorated with lilacs and beautiful white flowers. There were ham sandwiches, salad, pickles, baked beans, ice cream and delicious cake. A most successful business report was made. Fred Ahlstrand, E. B. Holt and J. H. Smith was elected as Directors.

A very large number of patrons were visitors Friday at the School rooms to examine the displays of art and especially were the mothers interested in domestic science department where most wonderful exhibits of dress making and crocheting and embroidery were found. A number attended the musical by both primary rooms given in Miss Jenks room. Good work is being done by the students.

About 200 copies of "Poma Terra", the school annual have already been sold. It may be necessary to have more printed. It is very artistic and certainly deserves more than that passing favorable comment.

Nine of the seventh grade girls gave Miss Kesler, their teacher, a shower Friday evening at the school house. Fruit salad and angel food cake were served and she was presented with a cut glass cheese and cracker server.

Fifty of the very good friends of Mrs. E. A. Nokes from Fruitland and Payette went in Sunday at one o'clock to help her celebrate her birthday. It was a jolly surprise and the baskets brought literally groaned and a real banquet was served for the hostess. Mrs. Browning, a sister made the birthday cake. The candles burning brightly offering their good wishes for another natal day.

Next Saturday night the Volunteer Class of the M. E. Church has invited all the young people of the community to meet at the home of John Tackett Saturday night for a wether roast and a good old time is anticipated as these young people know how to have it.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Enberg Saturday morning discovered their brooder burned and with it burned 800 little chicks. Change of wind is the cause given.

Henry Cole, recently here from Chicago, purchased 10 acres from H. W. Thomas, also three acres from M. M. Gladish for a building site. The price is not given. A large crowd attended the Mother's Circle Friday. Mrs. Stet-

A man can get a heap more satisfaction from a small chew of this class of tobacco, than he ever could get from a big chew of the old kind.

He finds it costs less, too. The good tobacco taste lasts so much longer he doesn't need to have a fresh chew nearly as often.

Any man who uses the Real Tobacco Chew will tell you that.
