KEYSTONE STATE MAKES PROGRESS

In 1910 A. B. Ross began work in Redford county, Pennsylvania, as an "agriculturist" of the Bureau of Plant Industry. He was a sort of pre-county agent employed by the Department of Agriculture to see what could be done in the northern states by working personally with farmers in a restricted territory. The organized county agent work did not begin in Pennsylvania until 1912. Since that time the work has made a steady progress. It is Pennsylvania's boast that it has never had a backward movement and has never lost a county. There are now 60 county agents at work with four of the remaining 7 counties clamoring for the appointment of a man.

The Federal Agricultural Census shows that during the past ten years, Pennsylvania has advanced from sixteenth to seventh State in agricultural standing. There has been a steady increase in crop production, stock-raising and better farming methods. This remarkable progress is coincident with the development of the cooperative extension service in the State with a battery of county agents reinforced by a group of extension specialists. Other factors no doubt have contributed but the only new factor not previously operating has been the extension service, and to it is properly given the chief credit. A comparative study of census data and extension effort in various counties throughout the country should disclose some interesting parallels and deductions.

How We Build The Structure of Good Paint

WE make good paints like this—to save you money; and we've put 72 years' experience into them.

We use pure PIONEER WHITE LEAD, pure linseed oil, zinc and color in scientifically exact proportions.

The lead base is made so fine that it will pass through a silk screen with 40,000 meshes to the square inch. That means covering capacity and ease of spread.

A special device super-purifies the lead, making it "Whiter" so Fuller paints are exceptionally clear-toned. All ingredients are thoroughly mixed in specially designed machines, so the paint is always uniform and smooth.

The result on the house is a beautiful, elastic, tough, protective coating that stays, if properly applied, five or more years, keeping the wood like new.

Some people figure paint economy as "cost per gallon." That is wrong. For "cheap" paint doesn't cover so much surface—you buy more gallons. "Cheap" paint is harder to spread and you have more labor cost. So the "cheap" paint on the house costs just as much as the best of paint.

Don't allow surfaces to rot—it costs less to paint them.

"Cheap" paint on the average starts cracking in twelve months, while the best paint stays intact from five to ten times longer, if properly applied. Figure the cost per year of service and decide which paint you want to use.

We spend more to make paints for your economy. Be sure you get them when you paint.
