ORCHARDISTS EXPECT HALF MILLION CROP

Industry Promises To Bring Needed Cash To County—Pests To Be Controlled — Freight Rates

In cooperation with the farm bureau committee on horticulture, county agricultural agent Breithaupt has just completed a series of meetings of orchardmen where control measures for fighting the destructive codling moth for this year's fruit crop was given consideration and a survey of the acreage and probable returns from the crop made. Few people realize the importance of the orchard industry in Malheur county for in comparison to other lines of farming the acreage is small. However, according to preliminary estimates made by the fruit men, the crop in 1921 may bring a half million dollars into the county. And this measures up pretty well with the probable value of the hay crop.

According to the survey made, there are 2706 acres of bearing fruits in the county in commercial orchards. Of this, 1114 acres are in the Ontario-Nyssa section; 688 acres on Dead Ox Flat; 864 in the Brogan-Jamieson district; and the balance in Big Bend. There are 2114 acres of apples; 548 acres of prunes; 30 acres of peaches; and 14 acres of pears. There are a number of irrigation districts in the county which could contain the entire acreage of fruit and have room left for as much more.

Now that the frost period seems safely past, there is just about one thing which stands between the fruit man and a good crop of marketable fruit. That is the wee codling moth of nocturnal habit, mother of countless worms which, in the absence of poison on the fruit, enter the apples and make them unsalable. To bring about better spraying and thus increase the amount of marketable fruit was the object of the meetings in particular. Supplementing the meetings, a circular letter was addressed to all of the orchardists in which a report was given of the progress of the egg laying of the moths and recommendations for timing the spray given.

NEW REAL ESTATE MAN TO HANDLE FRUITLAND LANDS

Geo. H. Loerch Organizes Farmer's Investment Company To Engage In Handling Property In Valley

Geo. H. Loerch, formerly of Wenatchee, Washington, but more recently of Seattle has opened offices in Fruitland where he has organized the Farmer's Investment Company which has for its purpose the handling of farm lands, primarily in the Fruitland and Ontario sections.

Mr. Loerch has already manifested an active interest in the development of the country about Fruitland, he having been instrumental in bringing an additional 1,000 acres into cultivation above the Farmer Ditch between Fruitland and New Plymouth.

"This section will support more families than it is now, and in the dry land farming sections of Eastern Washington and in Montana there are many people who after their experiences of the past three years are seeking new homes. I have already interested a number of them to the extent that they are investigating this section."

Mr. and Mrs. Loerch visited Ontario on Monday for a short time.
