SPIRIT OF NEIGHBORLINESS

What is there more charming in the character of the people with whom you live than the spirit of neighborliness? What adds to the joy of living more than the friendly greeting of neighbors when they meet?

Cities and towns are but aggregations of individuals, and what is true of individuals is true, too, of communities. Cities and towns ought to be friendly. Rivalry does not call for exhibitions of unfriendliness.

When such exhibitions become the rule of their meeting there is little left to do other than to have a frank heart to heart talk about their differences, and if they cannot then be adjusted an agreement to disagree and avoid each other is the only sensible thing to do.

When individuals in a neighborhood cannot get on together a happy solution is often found in one of them moving to a more congenial neighborhood. Unfortunately communities cannot thus adjust themselves. Towns must stay pit. It is too bad that this is so, but it is.

There is another thing about community troubles. The spirit engendered by the acts of a few individuals, unfortunately affect others. It is particularly unfortunate that those who do not stop to think say and do things which hurt their community in the eyes of their neighbors.

The thinking, considerate people of Ontario, for example, like those of our neighboring town of Vale will not take too seriously the recent difference over a mere ball game. All will regret the occurrence, and consider the source of the trouble. If poor sportsmanship has been shown, the poor sports alone should be blamed; or pitted; for they are to be pitied who cannot play a game fairly and be good losers when fairly defeated. It is no disgrace to lose a ball game; but it is disgraceful to lose control of one's temper as to become childish.

VACATION'S VALUE

Vacations are paradoxical. One goes on a vacation seeking rest. Physically one often does secure everything but the rest he sought; that is physically, and comes home to rest up from the exertions, but after all physical rest is not the only object to be obtained in a vacation.

There is no doubt that a separation from the routine of work, a change of scene and the meeting of others than those one comes in daily contact with is diverting. Not only that it makes one realize how truly fortunate is one who lives in a good substantial town surrounded by energetic fellows who are striving to do things.

No matter what the advantages possessed by other communities or sections of Oregon certainly Malheur county can stand comparison with them, and so far as communities go Ontario is as well situated and has within its borders men able to realize the possibilities of this section.

From Bend, however, we believe that Ontario men might well take a lesson in co-operation. There they have carried the spirit of pulling together farther than it has been our pleasure to witness in any community of its size anywhere. No Bend has nothing on Ontario. Aside from their wonderful timber resources and the most magnificent mountain scenery at their door, they have not the potential possibilities to be found in this Snake River Valley. But they have the spirit. They work together.

After all of Ontario's business men take their vacations and feel encouraged by comparisons, we trust that the spirit of co-operation will be enhanced so that a determined effort will be made to capitalize the possibilities of this great section of Oregon.

COMRADARIE ON THE ROAD

When tourists meet they smile. It is one of the pleasures of a trip through Oregon these days, the chance acquaintance one gets with Americans from everywhere, for they are coming from the ends of the country to Oregon now.

Few are the stops one makes by the wayside that is not the occasion of solicitation of passers by. "Need any help?" is the salutation from almost every passing car, while others just stop to get acquainted, inquire about the roads and the luck you have had, while giving a graphic account of their own experiences. Certainly a great out-of-doors is democratic, and makes its devotees so.

A trip over Oregon highways today is convincing proof of their real value to the state. In the short space of an hour or two cars bearing license tags of 14 states, beside those of British Columbia and other Canadian provinces, were counted. California cars could be found everywhere, while there was not a tourist park that did not have from ten to hundreds of cars. Now all these mean money. How much money tourists have spent in Oregon this year will never be definitely known, it cannot be traced; but it will be literally millions of dollars. Every year the sum will increase, for Oregon roads are becoming known. Oregon scenery is being appreciated. Truly Oregon is one of the thresholds of tourist prosperity.

WELL MADE LEMON PIE IS ECONOMICAL AND GOOD

What dessert could be more tempting than a perfectly browned lemon pie? The following recipe, tested in the experimental kitchen of the United States Department of Agriculture, can be relied upon:

- 2 tablespoons cornstarch.
- 3/4 cup sugar.
- 1 cup boiling water.
- 4 tablespoons lemon juice.
- 1 tablespoon butter.
- 2 egg yolks.
- Speck of salt (about 1-16 teaspoon).

Grated rind of half a lemon.
2 egg whites and
1 tablespoons sugar for meringue.
Mix the cornstarch and sugar in a sauce pan and stir in the hot water. Cook, stirring constantly, until it thickens, and boil 5 minutes. Add butter, well beaten yolks, salt, lemon juice, graded rind. Cook about 1 minute longer. Pour into crust previously baked. Cover with a meringue made of the egg whites beaten stiff, then 2 tablespoons of sugar; and brown in oven.
