CLUB NOTES
Kitchen Queens
 This isn't a new form of aristocracy, but the name of a Cooking Club in Big Bend. The members of the club are Ethel Hickox, Anna Phelan, Marie Tate, Mary Samer, Phyllis Nelson, Irene Brunsack and Marion Roberts. Mrs. Enoch is the local leader. The girls will finish the project by the time school is out.
The Vale Poultry Club met on Saturday afternoon to examine a fireless brooder and discuss the feeding of baby chicks. A baseball team is being organized and Charles Crall, the local leader is busy looking over available material and rounding them into shape.
 Some of the boys at Jefferson are thinking seriously of organizing a calf club. The boys have been keeping records of dairy cows all winter and it is the universal opinion that only very high grades or purebred calves will be considered.
 Mrs. Paul Joseph local leader of the Happy Sewing Club at Jefferson has arranged for Division 1 girls to meet with her on one Friday afternoon and Division 2 girls the next Friday. This arrangement is working out very successfully and other local leaders might find it suitable to their needs.
 If correct judgment can be made on the basis of reports received from the True Blue Cooking Club of the Oregon Slope, they are a live wire bunch. At their last two meetings they have learned how to make Welch Rabbit, value of different kinds of foods, uses of left over foods and best of all a big fat apple pie.
 The members of the Blue Bird Sewing Club at Juntura, remembering that good times are an aid to good work, have arranged for a party in the near future.
Many Requests for Club Work
 Many requests are coming into the office of the County Agent for Club work. Brogan is anxious to start a pig club. Last week 14 boys asked to organize a club. Every boy in Brogan is going to get a purebred pig this year. Valley View wants a poultry club and corn club. The boys and girls in Kingman Colony have rather widely separated interests, eight want a pig club, four desire a sewing club, two would raise poultry and one wants a garden.
 If the boys and girls in your
