

REPORT OF COUNTY CLUB AGENT FOR JUNE 1922

By H. R. Wellman
This report covers a period of 30 days from June 1 to June 30 inclusive. Three weeks of this time was spent in arranging for and attending the boys and girls' summer school at Corvallis. The remaining time was about equally divided between office work, attending club meetings and visiting club member projects.

Two hundred and fifty boys and girls from eighteen different counties in Oregon attended the boys' and girls' summer school at the Oregon Agricultural College. Nine boys, two girls and three local leaders represented Malheur county. Vern Eachus, local leader;

Wilbur Roberts, Carl Parker, Leo Johnston and Ira Brumback from Big Bend; Mrs. E. Neely, local leader; and Beth Ager from Vale; Mildred DeBord from Kingman Kolony; George Finley Johnston from Warren, Dennis Patch from Riverdale; James Atterbury, local leader; Ralph Winn and Archie Tomlin from Oregon Slope, and Lester Turner of Ontario, made up the delegation. Between 9 a. m. and 12 m. every club member attended classes. The regular college instructors gave the boys work in livestock judging, poultry, soils, gardening, corn, potatoes, milk testing and dairy management. The girls received instruction in sewing, cooking, canning, millinery, home-making, art and tailoring.

General assembly for everybody was held between 1:30 and 3:00 p. m. The first half hour was given over to mass singing. The remaining time was taken up by various prominent speakers including W. J. Kerr, president of the college; Paul Maris, director of Extension, and O. E. Plummer, manager of the Pacific International Livestock Show.

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Realizing the truth of this statement, provisions were made for all kinds of sports and games. Immediately after assembly the boys had one of two games of baseball and the girls had gymnasium work. Then for an hour, which was perhaps the most enjoyable part of the day, the big white tile swimming tank was filled to capacity.

The evenings from 7:30 until 10 were given over to picture shows in the "Y" hut, stunt shows, picnics and parties. To meet people from different sections of the country, to exchange ideas is an education as well as an inspiration.

WHEAT CROP IS NOT SO LARGE AS EXPECTED

Harvest Reports Show Losses Due to Hot Wave in Wheat Belt—Cool Weather of Past Week in Malheur County Aids Crop Locally

The cool weather of the last portion of last week and the first of this week proved a blessing to Malheur county wheat ranchers. Cool nights helped the heading and the grain shows heads to the full length and there will be but slight loss due to shrivelling, so ranchers report.

The following complete report on the wheat situation not only so far as crop conditions are concerned, but also relative to the world supply and demand is taken from the service of The Producer, the organ of the Grain Growers association, and is presented for the information of Argus readers. These reports will be presented each week. The Producer says:

"There is little doubt now that the government's July wheat production forecast will show a material reduction from the June report. Private estimates run as much as 52 million below the June figure of 609 million bushels for winter wheat. A severe heat wave lasting for two to three weeks was responsible for most of the trouble. Threshing returns of the southern states have been disappointing, revealing the full extent of the damage, not only of the recent heat wave, but of previous unfavorable conditions.

"Winter wheat and rye harvest in Illinois is largely completed in the southern counties, and is now becoming general over central portions. Due to the adverse effects of the mid-June heat wave during the filling stage, and to some extent to rust and insect impairment, reports indicate spotted condition and less favorable prospects for June 1.

"Winter wheat in Nebraska suffered severely both in yield and in quality as a result of the recent heat and dry weather. Many fields with straw for 30 bushels will yield about 10 bushels of shriveled wheat. There is practically no contracting of new wheat by farmers.

"The Missouri state board of agriculture estimates that the hot weather reduced the total yield for the state 8 million bushels, making the present forecast 36 million bushels. Extensive shriveling of the berry resulted from the recent heat wave in Kansas. The extent of the damage has not been determined. Harvesting is general in the southern and middle counties.

In the Pacific northwest a hot, dry spell of three to four weeks' duration in some places has been severely cutting the wheat prospects. Forecasts of yields are being everywhere reduced, and in many places rains are needed soon to save the crops.

Spring wheat is doing well in leading producing states, although rust damage has been reported from the Red River valley of North Dakota, one of the largest producing districts of the state.

Foreign Conditions
"Continued reports of poor progress of cereal crops in France are coming in. A prominent French agricultural paper estimates that this year's wheat production will be 72 million bushels below last year's yield. In Germany crops are now more favorable, but much below the average. The government is said to be purchasing supplies of wheat and rye in anticipation of short crops. In Hungary and Jugoslavia cereal crops have deteriorated due to lack of rain. The Roumanian wheat crop is maintaining its high average, but under the best of conditions between now and harvest it is not expected that the yield will permit exports during the coming year of wheat or rye. Barley and corn will be available for export.

"In northern Tunis crops were reduced by drought to one-third normal; in the south they were completely destroyed.

"More general rains have fallen in India and prospects for the seeding of new wheat are now more favorable.

"In the drought areas of New South Wales the recently seeded wheat is dead and re-plowing will be necessary. Other sections of the country are favorable but need more rain.

Movement and Consumption of Wheat

"Wheat and flour on ocean passage are 46.7 million bushels compared with 69.4 millions for the corresponding week last year. Last week's world shipments were 11.2, an increase of about a million over the previous week. Argentine again shipped heavily, but Australia put less than a million bushels on vessels, which is the lowest figure since January. This country has less than 10 million bushels left for export while Argentina has about 15 million bushels, if the government estimate on production is correct.

"Visible stocks of the leading United States markets were placed at 22 million bushels last Monday. Large primary receipts have kept the visible supply at a higher figure than expected. Stocks at interior points are now being cleaned up and it is expected that the July government report on farm reserves will be unusually low.

Prices
"Future prices gained several cents during the week, but showed little change from the previous week's close. Close markets, however, are showing decided improvement in all parts of the country, with premiums 3c to 5c better than last week. Opening prices to farmers on the new crops have been discouragingly low and the movement of new wheat from Texas and Oklahoma has been unusually small.

From several states reports have come in of the unusual situation that little or no contracting is being done by the farmers. The full effect of crop damage in the United States and general shortage in Europe is yet to be felt. With Argentina and Australia practically eliminate as shippers in another month North America will be the sole source of grain supplies for importing countries.
