

RAILROAD PROBLEM
SUBJECT OF MEETING

1. construction of a line from Natron to Ontario, with Deschutes and Klamath lines connecting at Odell. Our heavy and expensive construction from Ontario west, from Natron south and from Klamath Falls north was stopped soon after we lost control of the Southern Pacific.

2. The line across the state cannot be sustained without the heavy east-bound traffic originating in Western Oregon, and we cannot build it without available traffic to sustain its maintenance and operation. As a matter of fact, if the Union Pacific were inclined to proceed with improvements and construction without adequate traffic in sight, the transportation act would not permit the building of a line without sufficient traffic to pay the fixed charges and operating expenses.

3. Our good faith in the program referred to is reflected by the investment that we made and our interest in Central, Eastern and Southern Oregon has not diminished, but we will not mislead and cannot commit ourselves to construction until we know where the traffic is coming from to support and operate the line.

4. What we may be able to do to carry out our original program and build from Bend to Odell and from Natron to Ontario depends upon the outcome of the Central Pacific-Southern Pacific case and the relation of the Union Pacific with respect to the Western Oregon traffic which it enjoyed when its plans of development was made.

5. We regret that we cannot make definite assurance, but we do not consider it proper to do so until we know to what extent if at all we may be admitted into the Western Oregon territory.
