

POULTRY SPECIALIST WILL DEMONSTRATE CULLING ART

Chicken Raisers to Have Two-Day Program Next Week; Culling Tuesday; Tour Wednesday

The Malheur County Farm Bureau, through Poultry Leader A. B. Cain and the county agent, has arranged to have a two day program for poultrymen next week. On Tuesday, at 10:30 a meeting will be held at the A. B. Cain poultry farm two miles west of Ontario, where H. E. Cosby, poultry specialist for the Oregon Extension Service will lecture on culling hens for egg production and for breeders. Following the lecture those in attendance will take their lunches in the shade of the orchard trees, each party being expected to bring a lunch.

In the afternoon the specialist will demonstrate culling by going through Mr. Cain's entire flock of about two hundred birds. At this time those who wish to learn the art of culling according to the latest scientific knowledge will be given an opportunity to practice the things which will be explained and shown to them by example during the forenoon.

On Wednesday it is planned to conduct a poultrymen's tour for the purpose of visiting several of the most successful poultry establishments in Payette and Washington counties in Idaho. This will be a joint affair between the three counties, as the Washington county farm bureau through County Agent Soulen, is cooperating in the arrangements and a number of the Payette county poultrymen have have signified their intention to join in the tour and assist in making it a success.

All who can conveniently do so are requested to assemble at the City Hall in Ontario at 9:30 sharp. The first stop will be at the L. S. Pobst & Son poultry farm 1/2 mile North of the Snake River bridge on Ontario. This will be at 10:00 a. m. and it may be more convenient for some to assemble there. The second stop will be made at the A. S. Worth poultry farm on the South edge of Payette, at 10:40. The third stop at the A. J. Shearer place on the Hill road north of Payette at 11:30. From here the caravan will move to the Archie Larson poultry plant five miles south of Weiser where lunch will be taken and a short program pulled off. Each party is expected to bring lunch along. After inspecting this remarkable plant, the party will journey to the Ford farm east of Weiser, reaching there at 3:30 p. m. The return trip will be made via the Oregon Trail highway across Dead Ox Flat in Oregon.

Every person interested in poultry is invited to attend both days program if possible. It is hoped that there will be as many women as men, and the whole family might well come and make the day a pleasant and profitable outing, the first perhaps of an annual poultryman's tour and picnic. The itinerary includes both strictly commercial poultry plants and breeding establishments. There will be examples of types of poultry houses, both on the colony plan and the large laying house of different types. The Larson breeding establishment is the best to be seen anywhere within hundreds of miles, there being several hundred hens under trap-nest record, an immense incubator and other things of interest to poultrymen.

BETTER SOLDIER THAN LOVER

Great Duke of Wellington Somewhat Awkward in His Courtship of Jenny Lind.

In his book of reminiscences, Arthur Coleridge, a great-nephew of the famous poet, gives an interesting account of Jenny Lind. He was her intimate friend for 20 years. He tells the following story of the prima donna and the duke of Wellington:

"In four months after her arrival in London the old warrior had become a captive to the enchantress. He courted the lady so ostentatiously as to reuse the jealousy of the Italian faction; his enthusiasm was rather awkward at times to the object of his homage. I have her own authority for saying that the duke always arrived early and seated himself in his box on a level with the stage. Directly he saw Jenny Lind he opened fire: 'Good evening, Miss Lind, how are you tonight? All right, I hope.' These well-meant utterances were a trifle out of place at the particular time, for the Lucia. Aminta, or Daughter of the Regiment was always so absorbed in her part as to be out of touch with all outside influence."

FLAPPER HAD KINDLY HEART

Just Goes to Prove That One is Not Always Safe in Judging by Appearances.

She got on the interurban car a few steps the other side of Greencastle last week—a typical little flapper with bobbed hair, an abundance of paint on her cheeks, short skirt and imitation of a blouse, and she flirted with every available man in sight. Across the aisle was an old-fashioned girl, the sort you see in pictures.

Every one of the latter's glances toward the little flapper were full of scorn. But when they reached Greencastle a little Japanese girl got on the car. And then both of the girls watched her.

A few miles out of town the Japanese girl became ill. The old-fashioned girl sat aloof, but the little "flapper" immediately got interested, moved over to her, patted her cheek and then straightened her on the seat, taking the other girl's head in her lap.

If a vote could have been taken for the most popular girl on the train the "flapper" would have taken first, last and all honors.—Indianapolis News.

KNOWN AS PROTESTANT POPE

Sobriquet Bestowed on Clement XIV When He Suppressed the Order of Jesuits.

Pope Clement XIV bears the sobriquet of "the Protestant Pope," although he was by no means a member of the Protestant faith. He earned this title by a bull which he issued in 1773, ordering the suppression of the Order of the Jesuits. This seemed to the devout Catholic a concession to Protestantism, and thus Clement was given his title.

The Jesuit order was established in 1537 by Ignatius Loyola, and its chief aim was to establish the power of the pope and to preserve it against the attacks of the Protestants. It grew to be the most powerful society of the Roman Catholic church, gaining its influence principally through the excellent schools which its members founded and maintained. Its potency grew to such an extent that the temporal authorities took alarm and, in 1773, France, Spain, Portugal, Parma, Naples and Austria prevailed upon Pope Clement to issue his bull abolishing the order. It was re-established by Pope Pius VII immediately after the fall of Napoleon in 1815, and is now in a thriving condition in all countries where the Roman church has adherents. The order has been distinguished throughout its existence for the great learning and scholarship possessed by its members.

DECREED REST FROM LABOR

Saxon Monarch, a Thousand Years Ago, Instituted Custom of Saturday Half Holiday.

A thousand years ago the Saxon King Edgar proclaimed a rest from all labor from the noon of Saturday till the dawn of Monday, and the same principle was emphasized by his successors.

The church was in those days the dominant factor in all social life, and the Saturday-to-Monday ordinance was doubtless at first intended to give the people full opportunities for going to church. Round the village church, too, gradually sprang up the Saturday market for the cottagers, and so, though slowly, the Saturday holy day evolved into a holiday.

With the change from agriculture to industrialism, people left the villages for the towns, and here for some time the Saturday half-holiday was endangered in the rush and greed of the new-found and little understood "progress." A saner and more moderate outlook, however, restored the Saturday half-holiday. But, curiously enough, the towns claimed it as a new invention of their own, ignoring the village life which, long centuries back, knew as a legal right the weekly half-holiday of the Saturday.

Indian Tale of Pillar Rock.

There are Indian tales of the Pillar rock, which is located about 1,000 feet from the Washington shore, and which stand about 20 feet from the surface of the Columbia river, and of the occurrences thereabouts, real and fanciful. One is that Chief Skathokawa, his ire aroused because a Clatsop brave made away with the chief's daughter, hurled the rock at the departing canoe of the swain from the tribe across the river, missing the craft but implanting the huge pillar in mid-stream. The rock extends below the 30-foot depth, and the base, or projection, is said to have an approximate width in excess of 30 feet.

George Vancouver, following Gray, the discoverer of the river, spoke of it in 1792 as "the remarkable pillar rock." He is said to have been told of the rock by Gray and entered the river on the way down the coast.

"Washing One's Soiled Linen."

The phrase, "washing one's soiled linen," is popularly used to express airing of unpleasant private affairs or family quarrels in public, the analogy being, of course, that both are matters for disposition in the privacy of one's home.

The expression comes down to us as one of the brain children of Voltaire, the famous French satirist. The occasion for its origin is said to have taken place in 1740, when General Mausteln wrote to Voltaire asking to be vindicated publicly of accusations made against him.

Voltaire happened to be occupied in answering the appeal of Frederick of Prussia to help him straighten out one of his dilemmas. So he replied to Mausteln:

"The king has sent me some of his dirty linen to wash. I will wash yours another time."
