Sunday school at Park school house Sunday at 1:30 p. m. Preaching at 2:30. Rev. Martin of Portland, and Rev. Snow of Payette, will be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Miller visited Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Stevens Sunday.

Miss Jean Bartsha came over from Baker City last week to care for her sister Lella, who is ill.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Channer and family moved to Washoe last week.

Mrs. Geo. Sullens and son Harold returned home Wednesday after spending the past two weeks with relatives in Baker City.

Victor Sands of Council was at the Atterbery home on Tuesday and renewed old acquaintances on the Slope while here.

Mrs. Otto C. Miller and daughters Mildred and Dorothy were guests Saturday of Mrs. Harold Feldeher of Boise.

Misses Fern Cole and Margaret Davis spent the week end at the Sullens home.

Those neither absent nor tardy at Park school for the month ending October 27th in Mr. Atterbery's room were as follows: Harold McKinney, Miriam Davis, Ruby Johnson, Alta Osborne, Ethelyn Megorden, Velda Johnson, Arrol and Elden Jensen, Charlotte Brown and Marjorie Megorden. In Miss Loughrey's room were Helen Howard, Delbert Smith, Max Brown, Keith Cram, John Troxell, Florence Simpson, Louis Matterson, Nellie Adams, Evelyn Smith and Donald Megorden.

Mrs. Otto C. Miller entertained at dinner Friday evening in honor of the birthday anniversary of Mr. Miller. Covers were laid for fourteen. Following the dinner "500" was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sullens and son Harold were guests Monday of the formers parents N. G. Sullens and wife of Vale, who are leaving spend the winter in California.

Miss Lella Bartsha who was operated on for appendicitis on Thursday at Holy Rosary hospital at Ontario, is improving nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Atterbery and son James were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Janer-son of Crystal.

Mr. and Mrs. Ora Wilkin of Payette, formerly of the Slope, are receiving congratulations from their friends on the arrival at their home of a ten pound baby boy. The young man arrived on the 11th day of the 11th month at 11 o'clock.

As a result of the box social given by the pupils at Park school on Halloween the teachers have purchased a swing and jump ropes, also some baseball equipment for the playground, and some pencil sharpeners for school work. Now when we pass Park school we see all the youngsters enjoying themselves.

L. L. Culbertson of the Slope and Messrs McDonald and Lathrop of Ontario were among the football fans to attend the Idaho-Utah game at Boise Armistice Day.

Mrs. Walter Rudd received word Saturday to the effect that her mother, Mrs. Kortland who recently underwent a serious operation at Baker City is slowly improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason Clough were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. C. Welcher.

Mrs. George Sullens entertained four children at her home Sunday in honor of her son Harold's fourth birthday. The guests were Mary Boals, Bobby Wilcox, Margaret Davis, the small guests of honor, and Mesdames P. M. Boals and C. C. Wilcox.

Park Improvement club met last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jonas Brown with Miss Maude Culp as assistant hostess. Twenty members responded to roll call with articles concerning the early history of Oregon, which was followed by an interesting paper by Mrs. Walter Davis on the early settlers of Oregon and the origin of the name. This meeting was the first of several to be devoted to studying the history of Oregon. At the close of the afternoon session, dainty refreshments were served. The next regular meeting of the club will be Thursday, Nov. 23rd at the home of Mrs. P. M. Boals. Roll call will be Thanksgiving thoughts.

A fire at the Otto Miller ranch Monday morning destroyed a small building and contents valued at $300. Fortunately there was no breeze blowing or the Miller home would probably have been destroyed. Timely arrival of neighbors and men from Payette prevented further damage. Mr. Miller suffered slight burns on face and hands while fighting the fire.

E. Frost left for Omaha, Nebr. Tuesday evening.

"Is Matrimony a Failure?"

The Point of View

By JUSTIN WENTWOOD

"I do wish you wouldn't keep interrupting me, Daisy," said the popular author. "Here I've got to complete this story by twelve o'clock and I can't think of a thing to write about."

"Oh, well, you needn't be so snappy," answered the popular author's pretty young wife. "I'm sure I don't want to trespass upon your valuable time."

She went out and slammed the door. Fired with desperation, the popular author leaped at his typewriter and began:

"It was all over. Their six months of married life had shown each conclusively that they were mismatched. Eric had done everything in his power to conciliate the beautiful creature to whom he had devoted his life, but all was in vain.

"Sometimes, indeed, he wondered if she could possibly be the woman he had loved so blindly, so devotedly, with such consuming passion—"

"Was it really consuming passion?" the popular author demanded of his machine. "Was it not just infatuation?"

And what was going to happen next? He must bring in a third man somehow. But who? How? Where? The popular author's fingers fell from the keys. The plot refused to come.

He looked up angrily as the door opened.

"I'm sure I don't wish to be a nuisance to you, Eric," said Daisy, "but, unless you're prepared to go without meat for supper somebody's got to go to the butcher's. I can't, unless you want the pie to be scorched."

"D—n the butcher!" said Eric viciously.

"Well, that's the limit," answered Daisy. "That's the first time you've sworn at me, you monster."

"I didn't swear at you, I swore at the butcher."

"Oh, yes, you may have some particle of decent feeling left in you, but it isn't enough for me. I'm going home to mother, and you can let your old p-p-le b-burn," sobbed Daisy, giving the door one of those peculiar slams that impart the greatest amount of sound and vibration and the minimum of damage.

The popular author gritted his teeth and leaped at his typewriter again.

"With such consuming passion. She had turned into a fiend, a slave-driver. She had no consideration for his work at all. And now she was going home to her mother.

"He knew that he was glad. He had grown tired of her. Her presence drove him mad. He loved her no longer.

Was there another man? He was sure of it. He knew that she was pulling the wool over his eyes, but he laughed inwardly. Let her go—let her go forever.

She came into the room. "Have you anything to say to me, monster, before we part for all time?" she demanded.

"Only that I'll be glad to see the last of you," he answered. "Don't trouble to come back. I'm sailing for Paris tomorrow."

"What are you going to do in Paris?" she queried insolently.

"Forget that you ever existed in the smiles of the beauties of the Gay City," he replied.

"Wretch, that insult constitutes the last word!" she cried, and slammed the door. It was one of those peculiar slams that impart the greatest amount of sound and vi—

The door opened. Daisy came softly in and gilded up to the popular author's desk.

"I've telephoned for the meat from Mrs. Higginson's," she said, "and I'm sorry, dearest. I know I have been horrid to you, but I get so nervous with the housework. Won't you forgive me?"

The popular author turned from his machine. He caught Daisy in his arms and set her down on his knee. They kissed each other. They were very happy.

"I suppose I'll have to go or the pie will burn," said Daisy. "But we mustn't have any more quarrels, must we, darling?"

"Never again," answered the popular author.

"How are you getting on with your story, darling?"

"Oh, fairly well," the popular author answered. "I've just got to change the end a little."

When the door had closed softly behind her the popular author leaped like a demon at the typewriter.

"Forget that you ever existed in the smiles of the beauties of the Gay City," he replied.

She sank, half swooning, at his feet. "Oh, I can't bear it," she pleaded. "Forgive me, and I'll never make you angry again. Take me back, or I shall die!"

He raised her in his arms and put her down on his knee. "Darling, I was only speaking in bitterness," he answered. "There never was anybody but you."
