John D. Rockefeller

attributes his success to the fact that he always made the other fellow put his proposition down in Black and White.

That's what the merchants of this town are doing for you. Their advertisements speak for themselves in black and white. And what they put down in black and white they stand back of.

They want your business. Their advertisements are an invitation to do business with them.

That's why they advertise, and the wise housekeeper never does her shopping nowadays until she has read the advertisements and posted herself on prices.

Is there an easier or better way of saving money? It only requires a few minutes of your time to scan the advertisements.

The Boy Scout's motto is "Be Prepared." That's what every housewife should be when she goes out to market.

Read the advertisements and you will not alone save many times the cost of the subscription to this paper, but you will save many dollars to add to your bank account.

Reading advertisements in this paper is profitable reading. Try it for a month and check up the pennies you will save.

That's another Rockefeller maxim: "Save your pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves."

There are hundreds of pennies to be saved by reading the advertisements in this paper every issue.

NEWBERRY RESIGNS SEAT

Says He Would Be "Hampered by Partisan Political Persecution."

Washington, D. C.—Truman H. Newberry of Michigan, whose right to a place in the senate has been a subject of long and bitter controversy, has submitted his resignation with a request that it become effective immediately.

In a letter to Governor Grosbeck, made public here, Mr. Newberry said he had been impelled to retire voluntarily because of the defeat of his republican colleague, Senator Townsend, in the election of November 7. The turns of events, he said, would make it "futile" for him to attempt to continue his public services since he continually would be "hampered by partisan political persecution."

The resignation brings to an end a fight which already has made political history and which, it appeared, would be resumed early in the session of congress which began Monday.

Winston Churchill Defeated.

London.—The election in Great Britain with all its surprises, produced nothing which attracted wider interest and comment than the defeat of Winston Spencer Churchill, ex-secretary for the colonies, at Dundee, by the prohibitionist candidate, E. Scrymgeour. In the new parliament Premier Bonar Law will command a majority of approximately 80 over all parties combined.

White Case to Be Carried Up.

Old Mendel Goes to Rachel

By ERNEST LEVINE

(©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

There was really no reason why Old Mendel should continue at seventy-five to push his cart laden with cheap underwear along the streets of the East side. But the habits of a lifetime are difficult to eradicate, and Mendel had been doing it for thirty-five years.

He had come over from Poland in the prime of life, determined to make a fortune and then send for his wife, Rachel. They had been married ten years, and, though they had no children, they had always been happy together, since they first became sweethearts as a boy and girl.

Mendel had not prospered at first. It had taken him two years in a sweatshop to save up enough money to acquire a pushcart, and then the saving up for the steamship fare was a slow process. At last, however, he was able to send the money.

A letter came back inclosing it. Rachel had died of typhus about the time Mendel was buying the draft on the Warsaw bank.

She had died, fancying that he was standing beside her bed, and that same night Mendel had had such a strange dream of her.

He had dreamed he was home, but in a strange house and holding Rachel's hand, and she had told him that she could not come over immediately, but that she would come soon and all would be well.

Old Mendel was dazed by the news. For a week he did something that no self-respecting Jew would think of doing; he got drunk. Then he was found in Hester street with his pushcart again.

Time passed. The neighbors who had pitied him, began to look askance at him. "Why doesn't Mendel get married again?" they asked. They knew he had a tidy sum put by.

Mendel did not marry again, and after a while he was accepted as a confirmed old widower. And he was growing old, so that the girls no longer looked at him. His hair whitened, he let his beard grow long.

Old Mendel had twelve thousand dollars in the bank. There was no reason why he should have continued to push his cart. But every day he was seen in the streets, calling his wares mechanically. Nobody bought of Mendel, for all his goods were out of style. They only said, "There goes Old Mendel!"

Old Mendel loved the streets, the swarming children, for whom he had a pat on the head, and sometimes a penny. He loved the sights and smells of the East side. It was his life, it was the life to which he had meant to bring Rachel. He often fancied that she was with him. Sometimes people would hear him muttering, but they did not know he was talking to her. They only said, "Old Mendel's getting queer."

The day was so bright and warm Old Mendel sat down on a doorstep, his pushcart standing in the road. The policeman, who knew Old Mendel, looked the other way when he saw that Old Mendel was sleeping. Gradually the hum of conversation, the roar of the traffic passed into a dull monotone, and Old Mendel dreamed.

It was so vivid a dream that he might have been living. He saw Rachel standing before him with outstretched arms and such a sweet smile on her face. And it was not Rachel as she would have been, not even as she had been when they kissed each other good-by before he sailed, but Rachel as she was when he first courted her.

And the first thought that came to Old Mendel was, "I am too old. Why hasn't she changed in all these years?" But Rachel kissed him and said, "It's been a long waiting for you, my dear, but I've managed to come at last."

Mendel forgot that it was a dream. "God bless you, Rachel!" he said. "I'm going to take such a nice apartment for you—four rooms and a bath. And I've got twelve thousand saved up, so we can buy our furniture outright. But I dreamed you were dead, and I've been so unhappy."

"There's no such thing as death, my dear," she answered smilingly. "Here I've been walking up and down Hester street beside you for years, trying to talk to you, and sometimes you answered me, but you were never quite sure it was I."

Mendel remembered that he had fallen asleep. "Promise me that this isn't a dream!" he pleaded. "Have you really come back to me forever?" "Forever and ever," answered Rachel softly, as she drew his head down to her breast.

The policeman, returning on his patrol, glanced at Mendel again. "The old man's having a long sleep," he thought. He crossed the road and touched him lightly on the shoulder.

"Hey, Mendel, wake up!" he said. "Time to go home for supper. You mustn't leave your cart standing in the street."

But Mendel didn't wake up or answer him.
