IRRIGATORS ASK FOR REVIEW

are settled, according to the opinion of the attorney general.

Salem, Ore., June 16.—Acting on the recommendation of the Wool Growers' Association the Purebred Livestock Association and the Oregon State Dairymen's Association, Governor West has appointed the members of the State Live Stock Sanitary board, which was created by the last legislature. The secretary of the State Board of Health is an ex-officio member of the board. This board is expected to be of great importance to stockmen and farmers of the state, as it is given very broad powers of regulation and control of diseased livestock and poultry. The board is authorized to appoint a state veterinarian, who will also be state sheep inspector, at a salary of $2400 a year. The members of the board are as follows:

Recommended by the Wool Growers' association—Herbert Boylen, of Pilot Rock, four year term; John G. Hoke, Baker, two year term.

Recommended by Purebred Livestock association—Frank Brown, of Carleton, four year term; Charles Cleveland, of Gresham, two year term.

Recommended by the Oregon State Dairymen's association—F. E. Lynn, Perrydale, four year term; Charles Kunze, Tillamook, two year term.

More than 3000 automobiles have been registered this year in excess of the number registered at the same period last year. The total registration of motor vehicles at this time numbers 11,500. A year ago the registration was 8,411. During the first five months of this year 11,048 motor vehicles were registered and 933 chauffeurs. During this time the registration fees received by the automobile department of the secretary of state's office amounted to $44,158, of which $1,856 was for chauffeurs licenses, $450.50 for transfers, duplicate number plates, etc., and $41,841.50 for motor vehicle registrations.

In a decision handed down last Saturday by Judge William Galloway, of the Marion county circuit court, the constitutionality of the law appropriating $450,000 for the completion of the Columbia Southern Irrigation project is upheld. The decision was given in the suit brought by L. H. McMahan, of Salem, to enjoin the state officials from passing out any of the money. The court ordered the suit dismissed and McMahan gave immediate notice of appeal to the supreme court. McMahan attacked the law on the alleged ground that it was local and special legislation, but Judge Galloway held that the state would be acting under a wise policy of internal improvement by reclaiming its arid lands for the benefit of all the people.

That the dairy products produced in Oregon during 1912 were in excess of $19,000,000, is the statement contained in the May bulletin of Dairy and Food Commissioner J. D. Mickle, now being issued. He says no other farm crop last year, excepting livestock, amounted to more than $12,000,000.

After serving nine years as first assistant attorney general, I. H. Van Winkle has tendered his resignation to Attorney General Crawford, to become effective July 1. He will engage in the practice of law in Salem. It is probable that the attorney general will appoint his son James Crawford, who is now studying law at Harvard, as Van Winkle's successor. Attorney Van Winkle is instructor in constitutional law and the code in the law department of Willamette University and is considered one of the most able lawyers in the state.

Governor West has appointed Chas. G. Griggs, of Portland, as a member of the Board of Forestry, taking the place of A. B. Sprague, resigned.

State Treasurer Kay has called attention to the provision of the law enacted by the last legislature, putting into operation the law providing for the inspection of weights and measures, which requires the various county courts to appoint deputy sealers of weights and measures. He says these deputies will be employed only one or two months in the year when they will co-operate with the state sealer of weights and measures in testing the weights and measures in their counties. The instruments of the state have been sent to Washington, D. C., to be tested. The counties must provide instruments for the use of the local deputy sealers.

For three days last week 39 applicants for license to practice dentistry in this state demonstrated their skill on the teeth of the convicts at the state penitentiary. Dr. H. H. Olinger, secretary of the examining board, said that nearly $2000 worth of dental work was done, if ordinary office prices had been charged. All the materials, including gold fillings and other fillings, are furnished by the applicants and the prisoners get the benefit of the work free. More prisoners applied to have work done than could be handled.

Unless Governor West intervenes, Robert Morgan will have to pay the death penalty for the murder of his sweetheart, Virgie Hart, in Gilliam county, because the supreme court last week dismissed his appeal for a new trial on the ground that the transcript in his case was not filed within the statutory time limit. He will be returned to Gilliam county to be re-sentenced for execution.

LORA C. LITTLE SCORES EDITOR OF ENTERPRISE

Says Sterilization Law is Outrageous, and Scientific Investigation a Myth

Editor Malheur Enterprise:—

I have always admired the summary way with which editors are wont to dispose of weighty questions. In a prosaically democratic age it is all we have left to remind us of that bright, by-gone day when the king spoke and it was done, finished, ended, right on the spot and for good and all. Yes, indeed! so long as we have editors we shall not lose sight of the age of romance—and fable. And where the editor has ruled, romanced and confabulated, what a joy to remember that he only counts one in the ballot-box.

A friend kindly handed me a copy of your issue of June 7, wherein you so neatly ticket and shelve the opponents of sterilization. "Reactionaries, opposing with useless strife the moral leaders of the country and results of their careful scientific investigations which reach far back into the history of nations."

For a love of the marvelous and a childlike credulity commend me to the editor—when he would curry favor with pretentious faddists.

By any chance is it the Jukes family to which you refer? This is a type of a small number of stock stories that have been prepared by persons (with a case to make out) with the object of making an impression on the minds that let out their job of thinking. In the words of a profound student of the sciences involved, this kind of thing is "dastardly misrepresentation of the hereditary aspects of crime and insanity." But it "goes" with those who swallow whole whatever comes to them labeled, "scientific investigation."

It does not go with those who know the source of supply for the reformatories, prisons and asylums. It does not go with those who have really studied nature and seen how she relentlessly weeds out strains that prove themselves unfit. It does not go with those who have seen persons guilty of sexual crimes reform and head a line of vigorous and moral progeny. It does not go with those who understand the laws of heredity, under which are perpetuated not merely the qualities of one pair of parents, but instead every individual is a complex being inheriting from a long line of parents. It does not go with those who know how unlikely it is that the million ancestors everyone can count up by going back something over a score of generations did not include among the number at least one pretty black sheep—black enough to be sterilized under the new Oregon law. Where, by the way, will you find a million people without this flaw anywhere? Do you see the point? Nobody could spare one of those million ancestors that are required to complete the chain back to a certain date. Just think, then, what would have been the result if this law had been in operation in the past; how scarce legislators, and governors, and editors, and Owens-Adairs would have been today! It is appalling to think of. Then how can you be so cruel as thus to afflict the future?

Seriously, who can say what will be the effect of this law should it go into operation? These experts in criminology have no expert knowledge of sterilization. They are merely hazarding a guess, are willing to experiment on human flesh and blood only so they themselves are safe. For unadulterated, cold-blooded selfishness this bears the palm. It is the old answer of Cain. Your charge of "reactionary" had better be applied to those who are reverting to pagan practices. In this time of great spiritual progress who but reactionaries are they who plant their feet and bracing themselves cling for salvation to their gods of matter?

LORA C. LITTLE,
7110 43d Ave. S. E. Portland, Oregon
June 14 1913.

We must admit the "ticketing" but not the "shelving"; one poor old country editor cannot attain to the power of shelving a silly sentimentalist who deals with the sub-conscious.

If humanity is to wait the progress of nature for the elimination of evil, and no more progress is made than that which is proportional to the progress of the last 3000 years, the Lord help humanity.

True it has given us "Lora the Health Expert" but it has also given Madam Pallidina. Health is not all, though it is much: The Indian with his scalping knife is healthy, and a criminal may be as healthy as Madam Blavatsky or Henry Ward Beecher.

A way is pointed out to prevent the propagation and increase of criminals, having for its basis the hurt of one in a slight degree that many may not live lives of misery and suffering to the danger and harm of others.

Something better than sentimentality must be adduced to prevent the attempt, and by this method it is certain that one of the black sheep of his own generation will be eliminated.

Our "credulity" is hardly "childlike" for we are not interested in the "Lecture on the Fatal Mistakes of Modern Medicine" by Lora C. Little though we confess to being greatly interested in the outcome of the work of Mary Baker Eddy as well as the investigations of Flexner and Munsterberg.

Meanwhile we are strenuously opposed to the referendum of the Sterilization law introduced by Mrs. Lora C. Little and still insist that an ounce of prevention is worth all the proposed cures of the sentimental apologists for criminals, in the world.

Little and still insist that an ounce of prevention is worth all the proposed cures of the sentimental apologists for criminals, in the world.

LON RICHARDSON PAYS VALE VISITS

ities at Boise. Dan Ackley, then one of the guards at the pen, came to Burns for the prisoner. Early in the morning before the stage left for Vale, the sheriff and Ackley went to the jail to get the prisoner, and while Ackley was stooped and in the act of placing an Oregon boot on the leg of the prisoner, the latter suddenly snatched a revolver from the officers' belt, sent a bullet through him and fired another at the sheriff. Before the third shot could be fired, Richardson had his automatic working, put five bullets through the Indian, killing him instantly and saving the lives of both himself and Ackley. The guard was many months recovering from his wound and his recovery was considered almost miraculous.

Lon Richardson was elected sheriff of Harney county in 1904, and has held the office continuously ever since. He has become one of the most noted officers of the northwest, having captured escaping Oregon criminals in British Columbia, and Alaska, in Florida and in various of the western states. He has broken up many bands of organized cattle and horse thieves, and has become a terror to the criminal classes of the great inland empire of Oregon, for he always gets his man when he goes after him.

Last year Richardson decided to retire from office. He bought a merchandising business in Burns and spent a large amount of money purchasing a new stock of goods and equipping his store, but the stockmen of Harney county would not have it that way. After the tickets had been nominated, the stockmen, without reference to party, petitioned Richardson to become a candidate. They placed his name on the ballot as an independent candidate and elected him. It is uncertain at the present time whether there will ever be anyone else elected to the office of sheriff of Harney county as long as Lon Richardson is alive.

FIRST AID IN CASE OF DOG BITE

For the patient, the wound should be immediately cauterized with nitric acid and dressed aseptically. If the wound is deep, involving the periosteum or the eye, it should be washed with a bichloride of mercury solution. As the organism causing the disease is probably a protozoan, theoretically a saturated solution of quinine would be an ideal dressing. However, this is purely problematical. Do not depend on peroxide or turpentine.

The animal should not be killed, but confined in some enclosure from which it is impossible for it to make its escape, and kept in confinement for a definite length of time, and if the dog is rabid it will certainly die. Animals killed before death occurs do not show gross microscopic lesions, and the Negri bodies are exceedingly difficult to find without animal inoculation which occupies so much time that it does not admit of early immunizing treatment of the patient. If the animal does not show any symptoms of rabies after being confined for a week or ten days the matter may be dismissed.

In killing a rabid animal do not shoot it in the head or club its brains out. The part of the brain where the Negri bodies are most easily found is in the hippocampus major or minor, and you can readily see that scrambled brains are difficult to examine. After the animal is dead, separate the head from the body, and, if possible, pack it in ice and send it immediately to the laboratory of the State Board of Health. Whenever possible send by messenger, and never under any circumstances by parcel post. When the distance is great and there will be delay in reaching the laboratory, it is better to remove the entire brain, place it in a clean closed jar and cover with a 50 per cent solution of glycerine and water. This preserves the brain and does not interfere with the straining or the microscopic examination. Upon receiving the report that the brain has been found positive, the person bitten should report immediately to the State Board of health for treatment.—From Bulletin of State Board of Health.

Take Plenty of Time to Eat.
There is a saying that "rapid eating is slow suicide." If you have formed the habit of eating too rapidly you are most likely suffering from indigestion or constipation, which will result eventually in serious illness unless corrected. Digestion begins in the mouth. Food should be thoroughly masticated and insalivated. Then when you have a fullness of the stomach or feel dull and stupid after eating, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets. Many severe cases of stomach trouble and constipation have been cured by the use of these tablets. They are easy to take and most agreeable in effect. Sold by all dealers.

SOUTHERN RICE
In Virginia and far southern states rice is used instead of Irish potatoes, and as a vegetable is particularly nice, says Los Angeles Express. To one quart of rapidly boiling water put one cupful of washed rice. Boil rapidly until done, as that makes it fluffy. Drain. Put in a bowl two eggs, beat well with egg beater, add salt, pepper and tablespoonful of butter, one pint of milk, pour over rice, heat up and serve. Be careful not to scorch.
