he water to the uncultivated land at a reasonable price.

The difference of opinion between the several ditch owners has been one impediment. The scarcity of capial has also been one good reason.

The district method of securing such work is much favored by bond buyers because they have then only one place to look for their interest and only one examination to make. Their interest is assured through the district appeal to every taxpayer of the county. plan for the reason that each piece of land is subject to only its own indebtedness as far as the bond buyers are

NEW? YES, TO THEM!

It is interesting to read of success in farming and that those who have been reluctant to believe that the land of Malheur county is susceptible of cultivation are learning by actual experience that such may be the case. In this connection we note in a late issue of the Ontario Argus that the Eastern Oregon Land company has actually PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY AT VALE, OREG. raised hay to the amount of some 8 tons per acre on 160 acres

> This is remarkable in the face of the fact that this company has owned some 250,000 acres of the best land in the Malheur and Willow river valleys for some thirty or more years and have successfully prevented irrigation for many years, presumably in order to prevent any one being cheated by attempting to irrigate and cultivate the soil

When the Shoe-String ditch (so called) was started and the promoters had great difficulty in securing acreage sufficient to warrant the building of that ditch we call to mind that there were, and are today, several sections of become willing to loan on any irrigation project which this land still uncultivated and that this company manage to convince the board of equalization that the land is not worth paying taxes.

For six miles in width, through the heart of the county, taking in the best and most available lands the road platform. companies have made, and are continuing to make, a checker board of the country. In the upper Willow river section these uncultivated lands are breeding places for rabbits and coyotes with so high a price set on the land that no one can buy and so cheap before the tax authori-ties that they are practically valueless as producers of county funds. On the persistent farmer falls the burden of taxation

On the persistent farmer falls the burden of taxation and on the pioneer farmer lies the burden of creating wealth for a foreign corporation. The increased values are in no way due to one single move of these companies will of the Republican electors at the coming Primaries. If nominated and Their contributions to school and road funds is under proest and an irrigation enterprise looking to the making of homes and cultivating land has the gauntlet of the law to run invoked by these comorants for fear some interest of theirs may be jeopardized.

It is time for the people of the valley to take such action as will bring these lands under cultivation and their owners under authority. The law permits such action to be taken and courage and industry to back it up is all that is needed to transform Malheur valley from Ontario to the canyon and from Vale to Brogan into one grand garden; to change the magnificent benches between Bully creek and Willow river into one vast fruit orchard.

These makers and sustainers of checkerboards have held our magnificent domain in thrall long enough. The people have the law why not use it?

GUY JOHNSTON FOR ASSESSOR

Another old timer of Malheur county announces his andidacy this week for assessor. Guy Johnston, of Big Bend, and who has been a citizen of the county from his boyhood days, is a candidate for the nonnective farmer Democratic ticket. Mr. Johnston is a successful farmer If nominated, and elected, I pledge boyhood days, is a candidate for the nomination on the and is well versed in values of all kinds of properties, and fr m a clerical standpoint he is eminently competent to take care of the duties of the office. Mr. Johnston prom-iscs, if he is nominated and elected, to base valuations upses, if he is nominated and elected, to base valuations upon the earning powers of property, so far as the laws will permit him to do so.
