The Life of John W. Corson

Corson, whose sudden death was reported in the Enterprise prise of Saturday, August 5th:

John W. Corson, formerly a wellknown lawyer of Seattle and for years Washington and Alaska, died Wedowing an operation for cancer.

He came to Seattle, accompanied by Oregon, where he has made his home for several years. Besides his wife, he is survived by a brother, Dr. R. H. Corson, medical officer of the soldiers home at Port Orchard, and a nephew, Dr. W. H. Corson, of Georgetown. The funeral will be held at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon from the Bonny-Watson Company's chapel.

The pallbearers will be P. C. Sullivan, Andrew Blakistone, James B. Howe, Judge Joseph M. Glasgow, C. H. Hogan, and M. W. Lovejoy.

Though not as active in politics in recent years as formerly, Mr. Corson during the first Harrison campaign shared the platform throughout the country wth such speakers as the late James G. Blaine, the late Thomas B. and Mrs. Corson made their home in Reed, speaker of the Fifty-Second Con- Vale, Oregon. gress, and the late Joseph H. Moved to Augusta, Me. When Mr. Lovejoy removed to Seattle Mr. Corson asociated himself with Baker, Baker & Cornish at Augusta, Me., then one of the leading prominent in Republican politics in law firms of the state. On the completion of his studies he was admitted nesday in the Providence hospital, fol- to the Kennebec county bar. He opened an office at North New Portland, but in 1886 moved to St. Cloud, Mich., his wife, about a week ago from Vale, where he remained until he came to Seattle in 1892.

After coming to Seattle he was associated for several years with Jas. B. Howe, now general counsel for the Puget Sound Traction, Light & Power Company, and later with W. T. Scott and Melvin Winstock, under the firm name of Scott, Corson and Winstock. Afterwards he went to Alaska to engage in mining. In Alaska he was associated with Capt. E. W. Johnson in the Copper Gulch properties, which contributed more than $500,000 to the gold output of Nome in 1908.

Soon after coming to Seattle he returned East, and was married to Miss Jane Perley, a native of New Hampshire. For the last several years Mr.
