LINK'S BUSINESS COLLEGE Mid-Winter Term Begins January 2, 1917 WE FILLED MORE THAN 366 POSITIONS IN 1916 or more than one position a day during the entire year. We have had more than 200 calls for bookkeepers and stenographers that we could not supply. Every young man who took the Government examination for stenographers last year, passed it and received an appointment at an initial salary of $1000 a year—six have accepted positions since September 15 at that salary. EVERY STUDENT OF LAST YEAR IS NOW HOLDING A GOOD POSITION

Our students are employed, direct from school, by the best business concerns all over the Great Northwest. We have recently filled several splendid positions and now have four positions for young women at salaries from $50 to $100 a month and one for a young man at $90 that we cannot fill because every advanced student is already holding a good position.

It will pay you to attend LINK'S BUSINESS COLLEGE even if it is for only two or three months this winter.

PRINCIPLES OF IRRIGATION

Don't attempt to farm too much land nor land unprepared for irrigation.

Don't prepare sandy land for irrigation until ready to seed it.

Don't choose the wrong method of irrigation. Don't use too small nor too large an irrigation head.

Don't use too long irrigation runs. Don't over-irrigate nor substitute irrigation for cultivation.

Don't neglect to study different soil and crop requirements for water.

Don't neglect to arrange for water rotation.

Don't allow water to run wildly to waste at night or at other times, nor fail to provide farm waste-water ditches.

Don't plant poor seed nor raise a poor variety of crops.

Don't plant too much orchard in a general farming country nor fail to rotate crops.

Don't apply humid farming methods unthoughtfully to irrigated lands, nor attempt to grow humid crops unthoughtfully on irrigated lands.

Don't farm without stock to eat a portion or all of the produce.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Berkeley—By Lord Byron.

When Bishop Berkley said "there was no matter,"

And proved it—"twas no matter what he said;

They say his system 'tis in vain to batter, Too subtle for the tiriest human head;

And yet who can believe it? I would shatter Gladly all matters down to stone or lead,

Or adamant, to find the world a spirit, And wear my head, denying that I wear it.

What a sublime discovery 'twas to make the Universe universal egotism,

That all's ideal—all ourselves! I'll stake the World (be't what you will) that that's no schism.

O Doubt!—if thou be'st Doubt, for which some take thee,

But which I doubt extremely—thou sole prism Of the Truth's rays, spoil not my draught of spirit!

Heaven's brandy, though our brain can hardly bear it.

For ever and anon comes Indigestion, (Not the most "Dainty Ariel,") and perplexes Our soarings with another sort of question:

And that which after all my spirit vexes, Is, that I find no spot where man can rest eye on,

Without confusion of the sorts and sexes, Of beings, stars, and this unriddled wonder,

The world, which at the worst's a glorious blunder.

NEWS NOTES OF COW VALLEY

Snow a Foot Deep in Cow Valley—New Years Eve Feud at the Rutledge Home.

COW VALLEY, Oreg., Jan. 10.—The snow on the level is about one foot at this writing. We sure are having an open winter so far.

The Cow Valley people have reorganized the literary and every body seems to be well pleased to get the bunch together once more.

Mrs. J. F. Reed is putting an addition on their house with the intentions of using it for a dance hall.

Eddie Bowman and his father were callers at E. G. Moudy's place last week.

A happy bunch gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rutledge New Years eve and a big feed was the main item. Every body reported a fine time. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Schroder, Mr. and Mrs. England and sons of Brogan, Mr. and Mrs. Mays, Misses Nettie, Fannie and Florence Mays, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Herrington.

Mr. Fred Reed, who has been looking for his saddle horse that mysteriously disappeared one night last week, just found him a few days ago on the top of Juniper mountain.

Miss Meril McKinney, who has been visiting with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. McKinney, returned a few days ago to Jamieson where she is working for Mr. and Mrs. Pope.

Mr. L. D. Lynd and Raymond Ohmart were Sunday callers at E. G. Moudy's place.

Miss Gertrude Lynd is visiting her sister, Mrs. Wagner, of Caldwell.

Mr. E. Woods has been on the lift for the last few days with la grippe and cold.

Mr. L. A. Bilyeau and his brother John spent New Years day with E. G. Moudy and his brother Stab on Rhinehart creek. The time was passed by card playing and pulling corks that were hard to find.

Since the time has been changed on the mail service Cow Valley mail is sour by the time it gets here.

THAT "GREEN-EYED MONSTER"

Genevieve Hamper "Lives" Every Scene Before Camera—Discusses Art to Reporter.

Genevieve Hamper, credited with having the most beautiful face existent, is seen to remarkable advantage in the William Fox production, "Green-Eyed Monster," coming to the Rex, Sunday evening, January 14. The part of Claire, de Mornay's niece, is peculiarly adapted to her, and Miss Hamper gave long study to it before the picture was produced.

In discussing her art recently Miss Hamper said:

"I believe it is possible to make people feel and suffer with you on the screen just as it is possible upon the speaking stage. This wonderful new art—for it is new—appeals to me with singular power. It appeals for this reason: that dramatic artists now have a medium of expression different from and far broader than the so-called legitimate stage.

"So intensely do I live every moment when working for the screen that it has become a saying in the William Fox studios that Genevieve Hamper has lost her voice playing for the pictures.

"Seriously speaking, though," continued Miss Hamper, "I think I may lay claim to being one of the first actresses to discover that sincerity is the most important thing upon the screen just as it is in real life and upon the stage. The screen, however, is quicker to detect hypocrisy, and what I may term, for want of a better word, 'faking,' than is the speaking stage."

A WISH

By Edgar A. Guest.

I'd like to be a boy again, a care-free prince of joy again, I'd like to tread the hills and dales the way I used to do; I'd like the tattered shirt again, the knickers thick with dirt again, The ugly, dusty feet again that long ago I knew. I'd like to play first base again, and Silver's curves to face again, I'd like to climb, the way I did, a friendly apple-tree; For, knowing what I do today, could I but wander back and play, I'd get full measures of the joy that boyhood gave to me.

I'd like to be a lad again, a youngster, wild and glad again, I'd like to sleep and eat again the way I used to do; I'd like to race and run again, and drain from life its fun again, And start another round of joy the moment one was through. But care and strife have come to me, and often days are glum to me, And sleep is not the thing it was and food is not the same; And I have sighed, and known that I must journey on again to sigh, And I have stood at envy's point and heard the voice of shame.

I've learned that joys are fleeting things; that parting pain each meeting brings; That gain and loss are partners here, and so are smiles and tears; That only boys from day to day can drain and fill the cup of play; That age must mourn for what is lost throughout the coming years. But boys can not appreciate their priceless joy until too late, And those who own the charms I had will soon be changed to men; And then, they too will sit, as I, and backward turn to look and sigh And share my longing, vain, to be a care-free boy again. —Literary Digest.
