PEOPLE'S FORUM

Winter at Hole in the Ground. To the Editor: You will find enclosed a piece about the winter. Will you please publish it for a josh the winter of 1916-17 at the Hole in the Ground.

Here's to the Hole In The Ground, Where it snows and blows the whole year round

We have lots of scenery of mountains and snow.

And thousands of sage brush where ever you go.

You can sit in your cabin and look out the door

And wish for a chinnook, but it snows some more.

When your hay gets short and your stock gets poor

You wish for spring but it snows some more.

The snow is deep and crusted too And the bare hillsides are but very few.

The coyote howls from the mountains

And the little old magple sits by his side;

While the crow sails high and low And the Cayuse pony is pawing the snow. The little squirrel is out rustling for grass. For he doesn't know how long winter may last. But here comes the farmer with his poison wheat To give all the squirrels something to

And says, "little squirrel, you ruined last year's crop

So now Mister Squirrel eat this and stop.

Weary Willie, Dry Land Farmer

What Lane Really Said.

The Socialist Local of Vale requests the publication of the following speech by Senator Harry Lane of Ore-Senator Lane's stand on war has been widely ridiculed and condemned, but his own words do not receive the publicity which we feel they deserve:

Can we be justified, will we even be excused by future generations for taking this course, involving with unerring certainty the fearful consequences that must inevitably follow it? Can we in the years to come satisfy our own consciences that by such a course we, as the responsible representatives of this country, are serving the best interests of the peace-loving people of a free Republic or of humanity?

The President has made the first fatal move. The next step that will plunge our people into a bloody conflict, if taken, must be ours.
