IN THE SCHOOLS.

For the sake of the future of your children as well as the welfare of the nation, keep the children in the schools and colleges. Post-bellum days will need the services of many trained executives, builders, engineers, tradesmen, school teachers and producers of every description. Keep your girls and boys in college even if it requires a little extra sacrifice. The rewards will be the greater.

Save all the food you can; can all the food you save. Can BE CANNY. what you can, and what you can't can, eat. This in effect is the new cry of the food control campaign. In the spring we were urged to plant a garden and eliminate waste. In the summer we were urged to eat the perishables and to save. Now we are urged to dry, can and store food for the coming winter and practice strict economy in the kitchen and dining room. America must learn to take a thought of the

Non Max Non Max Max

The following article is from "Lend A Hand" a little maga-BOOZE AND zine published by the bonafide members of the O. S. P. at PRISONERS. Salem, Oregon. This, a criminal's own arraignment of booze as a crime producer, is especially worthy of mention: A strong argument against booze is the comparison of prison statistics in Oregon "then and now." While the following table shows direct results, the fact must not be overlooked that indirect results far more reaching will be observed in generations to come, chiefly in less insune and feeble-minded

That liquor is responsible for a majority of murders committed seems to be an indisputable fact, again referring to prison statistics. During the year 1912 eighteen men were received at this prison sentenced to life or exe cution. In 1913 the number was eleven; in 1914, thirteen; in 1915, tenwhile in 1916, immediately following the abolishment of saloons only four were sent here for life, three of them guilty and one railroaded. Can such figures be evaded? We think not.

Following are figures comparing general receipts for the years indicated, a standing indictment against booze which cannot be refuted: Re ceived in 1915, last year before prohibition, 283; in 1916, the first year o prohibition in Oregon, 151; in first seven months of 1917, only 85.

The argument that $300,000,000 a year is lost in revenue tax is th last leg the wets have on which to stand, and that is easily knocked ou when the fact is taken into consideration that the nation's crime bill is si billion dollars annually. Allowing that booze is responsible for only hal that amount, there is still a handsome profit left after subtracting the $300,

There is absolutely no excuse for saloons or liquor, and bootlegging can be abolished any time the courts see fit to make it unprofitable.

Y. M. C. A. WOULD MAKE

The National War Work Council of th Young Men Christian Association in cor SOLDIERS CLEAN AND FIT. junction with the United States govern ment is trying to make conditions for these men clean and wholesome, trying to make them real soldiers, sending big men into training camps to appeal to their manhood and Americanism that the army we send against the foe may be fit.

Wherever the enlisted men of the United States army are sent, the M. C. A. will follow. It will be with them in the training camps, on th ocean, in concentration camps, and at the front. It will be the nearest ap proach to home that the million lads called into service in this country wil know once they are away from the family circle. In order to handle this great work the National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A. was brough into being. Immediately it effected an organization to undertake in a con prehensive and united way, to promote the physical, mental, social and spin itual welfare of the enlisted men of the military and naval forces of the

This organization is today serving the enlisted men through a corp of trained secretaries stationed at military camps, with splendid equipmen for the use of the soldiers, clean welcome quarters where they may writ letters home or find entertaining reading. As General Pershing in speakin; of the association says: "It gives the soldier an opportunity of improving himself physically, mentally and morally. Physical fitness demands cor The execution encourages that kind of life. It affords clea: and and a occases whose instincts are worthy; men banded together with aims, mutually assisting each other. It stimulates a man's intellectua life. Strong muscles, clear brains, high ideals in the soldier, increase th fighting efficiency of the army, and these qualities of the citizen insure th permanency of our institution."

Recognizing the need of raising an army that could be sent to the front one hundred per cent efficient, the government has banished the dis solute woman five miles from any military camp, it has made it a crime to give a soldier liquor and it is striving with the assistance of the Y. M. C. A to throw a protecting arm about the million men summoned to the colors.

And it is to look after the well being of these men that the Nationa War Council of the Y. M. C. A. is securing the biggest men it can find t go into the training camps to appeal to the soldiers, to point out to then the necessity for following a clean life, to make conditions in the training camp or wherever the enlisted man may be, so welcome, so inviting, so ap pealing that he will find his pleasures there and not seek influences that would tend to rob him of his manhood and his honor.

Wherever enlisted men are sent there will follow the Red Triangle of the Y. M. C. A. to which they may turn for recreation. On the Pacific Coast the work is under the supervision of F. A. McCarl, executive secretary of the Western department

This publication is compiled and printed by au SEND FOR COPY OF thority of Chapter 133, General Laws of Oregon OREGON BLUE BOOK. 1915. Prior editions of the Blue Book, with the exception of the 1915-1916 edition, were voluntary complications of this office, but following the great demand from all sections of the state from those engaged in practically every walk of life. especially the school children, teachers, and county school superintendents for a general state reference book, this department secured the enactment of the law authorizing the biennial compilation and publication of an official state Blue Book or directory of all state officers, state institutions, etc. says Secretary of State, Ben W. Olcott.

Every official activity in the state is covered. Facts relating to the functions of practically every foreign, federal and state department operating in Oregon are included. In addition there is much valuable information relating to taxation, political registration and the vote cast at the later general state electons, a compiled summary of the vote upon initiative and referendum measures since the adoption of these popular instruments of government, besides other miscellaneous information relating to the political history of the state. The historical skotch of Oregon prepared by Professor Joseph Schafer of the department of history of the University of Oregon and the statement of the formation of the early provisional government at Champoog, by Mr. George H. Himes, assistant secretary of the Oregon Historical Society, are important features.

The list of postoffices in Oregon has been compiled from the latest United States Postal Guide. The list of newspapers of the state has been compiled and brought down to date by Mr. E. E. Brodie, past president of the Oregon State Editorial Association. A chronological statement of the United States senators and representatives in congress and of the elective state officers from the organization of the provisional government is also

Among the added features are the Declaration of Independence, the United States Constitution, the acts of congress relating to the admission of Oregon as a state, and a synopsis of the fedneral naturalization laws prepared by Mr. Henry B. Hazard, United States naturalization examiner.

The statements relating to the various state officers, boards, commissions and institutions and federal departments operating in Oregon have been prepared and approved by some person in authority in connection with each function mentioned and are included in the form submitted. The responsibility for the correctness of such is therefore upon those submitting the same. For the cooperation and assistance rendered in the compilation of this publication the kindest appreciation is extended.

The Blue Book is issued at the earliest date possible following the taking effect of new laws and other changes affecting the official personnel and policies of the state due to the biennial sessions of the legislature and
