PRACTICAL TEACHING

Students Enjoy Work Along Practical Lines — Play Well Rendered.

A trip through the study and work rooms at the Vale high school proves an eye opener to most of the visitors. Everyone has a business idea of school work but give little thought to the practical business like courses enjoyed by the students. Aside from the classical and business courses the special departments, in domestic science and art for the girls, and manual training for the boys prove a source of never ending delight for the student. Professor Ruring took his manual training work at O. A. C. and at Washington University and is an able instructor for the boys and girls in the manual training department and has supervised the building of many difficult and delicate pieces of workmanship.

The work rooms in the grade building contain a varied assortment of furniture in process of manufacture. The boys make tables, chairs, music cabinets, desks, dressers, and many other articles of furniture. Hard woods and western soft pine are used. Many articles have been turned out this year by the boys class as special orders for townpeople. The girls also make many beautiful and useful articles, one girl this year completed a dainty dressing table.

In the domestic art and science courses the girls are learning the tricks and nicks of the perfect housewife, under direction of Miss Olive Wilson a graduate of Oregon Agricultural College. Two new sewing machines and a large sewing table fitted with all kinds of sewing conveniences have been added to the equipment this year. During the first of the year the girls made rapid progress in the course of plain sewing and designing, making at first the simple pieces and later articles of clothing for themselves. When Junior Red Cross was organized they immediately turned their attention to the making of refugee garments for mending and making over the stockings, making of hospital bags, shoulder wraps and various other hospital helps. The grade girls and boys have made hundreds of gun-wipers and are now engaged on joke books for use by the wounded in hospitals. Altogether the courses taught are practical and useful to the pupils and train them in the way of useful and well equipped citizens.

Annual Play

Along with regular studies and work the high school students enjoy many social diversions among which each year are the annual Junior-Senior banquet and the Annual play. This year the students gave a most creditable performance of "Patsy from Dakota," at the Re theatre Friday evening, April 12. The characters were well chosen and the stage effects and costuming carried out in splendid effect to the smallest detail. Much credit is due the directors, Mrs. G. A. Ruring and Miss Fay Clark, who worked hard for its success.

Gladys Murray as the vivacious western niece of Mrs. Madison was a most charming character, and the costumes perfect. Miss Lillian Davis is the aunt, gave a careful presentation of her role. Helen Mueller, Ella Betterly and Rachel Bean all presented their matronly roles with ease and attention to detail. Miss Francis Homebeck as the fashionable maid and Bernice Hope, always ready for the emergency, took the parts of members of the social younger set with grace. Vina Mueller as Louis Duval, a young man much enamored of Gladys and still wishing to be true to his former love, made a splendid lover and put much feeling and study into her lines. Elsie O'Neill and Hazel Daly as the reporter and the ideal maid were both good in their parts and staged the many comedy scenes in a style delighting the audience. All in all it was a well rounded finished production which ranks with the many given by classes before and well up-holds the reputation of the Vale students in dramatic work. Several delightful musical numbers added to the evenings entertainment. Those assisting the girls with music were, Mrs. H. E. Young, Mrs. Ruring, Mrs. Currey, Nellie Thompson and the Vale Orchestra with Mrs. Crandall as accompanist.

CALL FOR 12,000 VOLUNTEERS

War Department Issues Urgent Call For Skilled Men.

PORTLAND, Ore. — The United States army must have immediately for service in France under General Pershing, 12,000 men skilled in special lines of work.

So great is the emergency, declared a message from the War Department that there is no time to select the men through the occupational card system recently put into effect, but not as yet completed in all the states. The men are needed so greatly and so quickly that the War Department calls for volunteers from those qualified in Oregon.

They are urged by the War Department to present themselves voluntarily, and at the earliest moment, to their local draft boards to be listed as available, preparatory to being voluntarily inducted later into the military service.

This call is described by the War Department as being "urgent." With the allied armies engaged in a death struggle in France, the American troops over there must be kept supplied with the skilled men needed in various lines.

"Please give the widest publicity to this urgent call," asks the War Department. "Qualified registrants should be urged to present themselves to their local boards.

"This office is without an appropriation to pay for this advertising, but the patriotism of the American press is relied upon to aid in every way in their power.

"The military duty and training of these skilled men will be interesting, and the men who succeed in securing induction into the branches of the service to be filled, will receive material personal benefits which will aid them in advancement both in their Army career and in after life."

The RIGHT KIND of a MAN For Senator Robert N. Stanfield
FARMER, STOCK RAISER AND PRODUCER
The State is entitled to the active services of a man who knows how to work. Work for the State generally and work for the people of the State, both individually and collectively.
Oregon does not need any orators for orators are a drag on the market, and like constitutional lawyers, they do not get anything.
The federal Government needs all the assistance Oregon can give, but is not receiving it because it has not been put up to the departments on a business basis.
Today business men are having more to do with the government affairs than ever before. We are spending twenty-four million dollars a day and the people who will pay this money are the people who actually create wealth, the farmer, producer and the toiler.
The prosperity of the small farmer, the small producer and the small manufacturer is as essential to the State and the Nation as the property of the big man, every one of our occupations should be given equal consideration regardless of the amount produced.
Every encouragement must be given to increase production and this can be obtained only through assurance that the small farmer as well as the big man is going to receive his proportionate share of the war expenditures, and that there will be a market for his products and a profit to him for his work, based proportionately upon his cost of production.
There must be equality in all phases of our State and National industry and the small fellow must not be forgotten, overlooked or crowded out through the rush for big things and big orders and big accomplishments.
If the people of the State want a business man, a worker, a man who knows, is thoroughly acquainted with every phase of the industrial situation in Oregon, a man who is capable, honest and fearless, a man who has by his own labor and through his own advancement aided in the progress and development of Oregon, they want Robert N. Stanfield.
