loss of a pilot, for men can be replaced more easily than planes.

"I think it may truthfully be said that we are doing our part in the work of making aviation more costly to the enemy than he makes it for us. We have destroyed a good many of his aircrafts and we hope to continue doing so.

"But there is an important fact to remember. As conditions are now the Germans are making tremendous efforts to make good their wastage in aeroplanes and the battle for aerial supremacy thus far is almost a draw one. It is nip and tuck and will be until American's aero squadrons, trained and fully equipped, are ready to take the field in force.
