CITY LOOKS TO THE FUTURE

Cleveland Planning Not Only to Provide Homes, but Wholesome Amusement for Citizens.

Cleveland, O., which has been one of the first cities to begin building on an extensive scale, will not only provide for the needs of its homemakers who must have dwellings, but will make sure that all its residents have amusement during the summer months. As a means of making the city a bet ter place for returning soldiers as well as more attractive to its other citizens recreation centers will be established at various convenient places.

According to information sent to the United States department of labor Cleveland has set aside $500,000 for the purpose of providing these recreation centers when the city goes dry. Six of these will be opened on principal corners and will be fitted up in 4 a most inviting and artistic style. A $10,000 log cabin has been erected in Garfield park, and a bouthouse costing $150,000 is to be built in Edgewater park. New parks will also be opened. This enterprise is suggestive of the development of the idea of community life, for the recreation centers have creat possibilities as clubbouses of the forure where citizens may assemble to pass evenings in healthful relaxa-

Advertisements on Trees.

Already in nine states the nailing of dvertisements onto trees, sides of arms and fences within the limits of ighways and on property of persons wning land, without the owner's per mission, is prohibited by law, Col. Edward S. Cornell, secretary of the National Highways Protective society. stated at Boston when commenting on the work his society is doing to benutify and preserve the highways of the United States.

Aside altogether from the standoint of beauty, said Colonel Cornell, nailing of advertisements onto trees s harmful to the trees themselves and also the fact that heavy nails are left embedded in the wood renders the vork of sawing them into lumber danerous to the workers later.

Colonel Cornell added that a bill to prohibit unlawful signs on highways had recently been introduced in the lower house of the Illinois legislature.

Workers' Home Urged.

The war provided a great impetus to the movement for decent homes for employees, said Noble Foster Hoggson. president of Hoggson Bros., builders, f New York.

"Under governmental auspices and with government money," he udded plants engaged in war work undersok to create villages designed along nodel lines to house their workmen, and so reduce shifting of labor from place to place.

"To Ignore our housing needs in our future calculations will be no less than calamity. A man holds his home sacred above all things. Take his home away or the right to create a home and you will produce wanderers living under conditions not fit for aniunis. The result is new members for incipient boishevists."

Two Important Questions.

No questions are of greater imporonce to the family than the water apply and the disposal of its sewage the prospective builder should make rmin that these problems are solved cfore he does anything else, for they is at the foundation of the entire ousehold's health and comfort.
