In addition to the regular club members, Mrs. M. Cayan and Miss Maywood Ratsey were present as guests.

Wednesday evening the high school band gave a farewell concert on the school lawn and a large crowd of relatives gave evidence of appreciation and of the esteem in which they hold the high school singers and their band, by serving ice cream and cake to the members of the band and the two glee clubs after the concert.

Seniors gave an excellent Class Day program, Wednesday afternoon, at the high school auditorium, and the faculty, students and many guests enjoyed the following program: president's address, Jack Peterson; piano duet, Mary Springer and Charlotte Clagett; Class history, Etta McCright; Class will, Ithiel Laing; Saxophone solo, Frank Dorman; Class poem, Doris Dearborn; Class prophecy, Eldon Madden; duet, Mary Messie and Ithiel Laing; Class charge, Aubrey Dean; Class grouch, Helen Anderson.

The sidewalks on the half block west, and on the block east, of A. L. Cochrum, have torn up and teams are busy hauling dirt to fill the hollows over which the sidewalks run. New and better sidewalks will replace the old ones.

Miss Bender is a former member of the graduating class, having left during her Sophomore year. At the American Legion meeting held Monday, plans were made for assisting the local G. A. R. in the services for Memorial Day, and organization for a membership drive which will last several weeks, took place. J. B. O'Keefe is captain of one division of contestants, and Elmer Leavitt heads the other side and both are trying to enroll the largest number of members. It was also announced that over $75 was cleared at the dance given by the Legion, Thursday, which will go toward the expense of the memorial to be erected at Vale.

proached the Baccalaureate sermon for the graduating class. His text was taken from the class motto: "To begin well is good, to end well is better" and from Paul's message to the Philippians: "This one thing I do, press toward the goal for the prize of the upward calling of God in Christ Jesus." The high school chorus rendered a beautiful song, "The Angel's Serenade" as their part of the evening's program.

The annual reception given by the Junior class for the Seniors, took place Tuesday evening, at the Wilson Hall, which was prettily decorated in the class colors of purple and gold. The dancing was interspersed by talks, songs and music, but the number that seemed to make the hit of the evening was the barnyard dialogue, by the high school's dairy men, Thomas and Boucher. At 11, a banquet at the Bluebird was enjoyed, and the dancing at the hall was then resumed.

FULLER PAINT

THE life, the value, the beauty of your home, depend on the care you give it. Weather-beaten and warped siding, cracks and open joints are forerunners of decay. Many property owners neglect to look for such signs, judging their houses and buildings by general appearances only. It is good business to make regular inspection of your property, and to use paint of good quality, which is the surest preventive of decay. Through the varying conditions of weather in all their extremes, FULLER Paint has proved both its preserving and beautifying qualities—a Pacific Coast Product for Pacific Coast requirements. 71 years of paint manufacturing experience are back of every brushful of FULLER Paint.

LOCAL MARKETS ARE ESSENTIAL

Equal Responsibility for Their Support Rests Upon the Farmers and Merchants.

MUST ASSIST EACH OTHER

Prosperity of Community Depends Upon Each of These Two Classes Buying Products and Goods of Each Other.

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)
The first essential in the development of any business is the possession of a market. The manufacturer must have a market for his products or he cannot succeed, no matter how valuable those products may be or how efficiently his plant may be operated. The wholesale merchant and the retail merchant may have the choicest stocks of goods, but they may as well go out of business if they have not a market where they can dispose of their stocks. The farmer may produce bumper crops, but they will rot upon the ground if he cannot find a market for them. The wage earner's skill and muscle bring him no returns unless there is a market for his labor.

The question of markets is the big one in every line of business and in every community the question is a vital one. In each community, which must be taken to include not only all the people who live in the town but the farmers who live in the surrounding country as well, there are two sides to the market question. The business men of the town must have a market for the things which they have to sell. Otherwise they cannot continue in business. At the same time the farmers must have a market for the things which they raise or they may as well go out of business.

When Either Falls Both Suffer.
The merchants of the town can provide a market for the products of the farmers and the farmers can provide a market for the goods which the merchants have to sell. As long as each class of citizens provides a market for the other class all is well and the goose is cooked, not only for the class which is deprived of the market but for the other as well.
The farmer has a right to expect the town which is his natural trading point to provide a market for his products, and the town is not performing its proper function as the trading center of its community if it does not that such a market is provided. The responsibility of looking after the fulfillment of this obligation rests largely upon the merchants of the town. The farmer is a producer and he must dispose of his products before he can become a consumer. It is, therefore, not only right but necessary from a business standpoint that the merchants should aid the farmer in turning his products into money. Otherwise the farmer naturally will have no money to spend in the stores of the town.

On the other hand, the merchants of the town have a right to expect the farmers to provide a market for the merchandise which they have to sell and the farmers are not doing their duty to their community if they do not provide such a market. In this case, also, it is not only right but it is necessary to the prosperity of the farmers that they should aid the merchants in turning their merchandise into cash. Otherwise it is obvious that the merchants will have no money with which to buy the products of the farmers.

This is a double-barreled proposition and the obligation rests equally upon both the merchants and the farmers to maintain the markets which are essential to both classes of citizens. Any town which would import from points hundreds of miles distant the farm products which it could buy at home would be pursuing a very short-sighted policy, for it would be making it impossible for the farmers in its territory to buy the goods of its merchants. As a matter of fact no town does this unless it is forced by unusual conditions to do so. A town may be located in a community which is not productive enough to meet the local demands, and in that case it is forced to import farm products but the town which is compelled to do this is at a disadvantage from a commercial standpoint unless it is essentially a manufacturing town, in which case its products are sold to other communities and bring in enough cash to offset that which is sent away to purchase farm products.

Must Have Outside Business.
In the average community, however, the town is dependent on its prosperity upon the money received from the farmers in the ordinary channels of trade, rather than upon that obtained from the sale of its own products. In the average town the merchants cannot make money and continue in business if they are dependent solely upon the people of the town for their business.

No business can last long with "everything going out and nothing coming in," and it is equally true that no business can be operated on the principle of "everything coming in and nothing going out." To maintain the balance which is necessary to the maintenance of prosperity in a community there must be an even trade between the business men of the town.

Big Value in Tires for The Smaller Cars

Back of the manufacture of Goodyear Tires for the smaller cars is the same purpose to supply high value in the product that is behind the manufacture of the Goodyear Tires that equip the most expensive automobiles built.

This purpose is expressed by the enormous resources, extraordinary skill and scrupulous care applied to the manufacture of Goodyear Tires in the largest tire factory in the world devoted solely to the 30x3, 30x3 1/2, and 31x4-inch sizes.

The effect of this endeavor is noted in the fact that last year more cars using these sizes were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

It is also noted in the fact that if you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other car requiring one of the sizes mentioned, you can secure Goodyear Tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes at the nearest Goodyear Service Station.

30x3 1/2 Goodyear Double-Cure Fabric, All-Weather Tread $23.50

30x3 1/2 Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread $21.50

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casings properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3 1/2 size in water-tight proof bag $4.50
