That what kind of a citizen are you, are you an asset to your city, or a liability?
That after all, a city is nothing more or less than aggregation of citizens, some good, some bad, and some indifferent.
That its civic life will be no higher than the average of its citizens.
That among the great assets a city should have, are cleanliness, beauty, enterprise, foresightfulness and a spirit to do greater things.
That the man who can't keep his own yard clean and beautiful, and use every effort for the improvement of his city, uphold the schools and churches, cannot claim to be up to the standard of what an average citizen should be.
That when you give the public facts, they will do their own arguing and own deciding.
That the public has not been given all the facts concerning your city.
That if the facts about your city were given out and understood by your city, they would show that your city is one of the best cities of its size and class in your section of the country.
That your natural resources are so great, with the proper co-operation of all your citizens, it can be made to grow in a few years, into a city twice its present size.

Books Must Be Kept.
Portland, Or.—Clyde G. Huntley, collector of internal revenue, calls the attention of taxpayers to the fact that under the provisions of a recent treasury decision every individual "carrying on the business of producing, manufacturing, purchasing or selling any commodities or merchandise, except the business of growing and selling products of the soil, shall for the purpose of determining the amount of income under the revenue act of 1921, keep such permanent books of account or records, including inventories, as are necessary to establish the amount of gross income and deductions, credits and other information required by an income tax return."
By keeping the required books of account, which shall be produced for the inspection of revenue officers authorized by law to inspect the same, Collector Huntley says taxpayers will readily simplify the task of making out their income tax returns for the current year.

Electricity Will Save Your Back

Electricity is ready to do all the hard work of your home—the washing, ironing, cooking, sewing, dish washing and cleaning.

Electric appliances in your home will save you hours of hard work—and they will perform your household tasks easily and thoroughly.

An electric vacuum cleaner gets ALL the dirt—you merely guide it over the floor. An electric washer cleans your clothes perfectly, yet it will not injure them. It is easy to operate, making washing a pleasure instead of a drudgery.

An electric iron saves countless steps and finishes your ironing better and more quickly than if you use the old-fashioned troublesome "sad irons."

We have many other electrical appliances that will help you every day in your home. Come in and let us tell you how you can buy them on easy terms.
