Force of Habit.
They were speaking of force of habit, and Henry C. Hall, recently made a member of the interstate commerce commission, was reminded of a pretty little telephone girl named Miss Marie. One night Miss Marie went to church and, being somewhat tired, she fell asleep during the rather protracted sermon. Finally the minister was concluded and after the usual prayer the minister picked up the hymnal. "Brethren and sisters," he announced, glancing first at the choir and then at the congregation, "we shall sing hymn 243. Hymn 243." "The line is busy," cried Miss Marie, suddenly waking and hearing the dominie's last words. "Please call again." —Philadelphia Telegraph.

SUGGESTIONS REGARDING HOG CHOLERA

Excellent Specimen of Healthy Hog.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Keep posted concerning the condition and health of hogs on your neighbors' farms, advises the department of agriculture. Sick hogs on neighboring farms are a positive menace, for the germs of hog cholera are easily carried on the feet of men or animals. Look over your herd regularly in order that any sick hogs may be promptly discovered.

If any hogs in the herd are found to be "off feed" or appear in anywise sick, separate them immediately from the remainder of the herd, and keep them and the main herd under close observation daily. If there is a tendency for the disease to spread in the herd the trouble is probably hog cholera. This diagnosis may be confirmed by killing one of the sick animals and examining the organs in the manner described in Farmers' Bulletin 379 of the department.

When the first symptoms of sickness are observed an immediate change of feed sometimes corrects the trouble. This is particularly true of swill fed hogs. If there is any tendency for the disease to spread in the herd do not temporize, but immediately treat the herd with serum from the state college or state live stock sanitary board. Prompt administration of the serum is essential to success.

Remember that hog cholera kills millions of hogs where other diseases kill thousands. Dismiss from your mind all thought of such diseases as "lung plague," "infectious pneumonia," "pig typhoid," for these are generally merely fanciful designations given to hog cholera by uninformed men.

wheat in the early spring. Once they have reached the wheat they are not readily accessible. Most of them spend the winter in the thick bunches of clump forming grasses in waste places, pastures and meadows, along roadsides and railroad rights of way.

Spraying Fruit Trees.
It is not necessary to apply arsenate of lead, paris green or other arsenical poison to fruit trees, except when the trees are in leaf. These materials are poisons, used to destroy insects which eat the foliage and fruit. Because of this, these poisons do no good at times when the leaves are off the trees.

Economical Cow.
A cheap cow is not always the most economical. The value of a dairy cow should be based upon her capacity to produce, and not upon the appearance of the animal itself.

KISSES SHOCKED HIM

JAPANESE COULD NOT UNDERSTAND WESTERN SALUTATION.

Declared, for instance, That it Gave Him a Queer Feeling to See Aged Couple Thus Greet Each Other on the Pavement.

Smimasa Idichi relates, in the Tokyo Far East, some of his surprising adventures among the kissing races of the West. He describes the horror of English women of his acquaintance when he told them that he had never kissed his mother in all his life.

"The first thing the English child learns is how to kiss," he says. "The first thing the Japanese child learns is how to bow." Kissing is not practiced in Japan, he told his English friends, not because the people are stony hearted, but because "it is regarded as the height of bad manners."

The kiss in Japan, it seems, is fit only to mothers. "A Japanese mother is often seen to kiss the baby in her arms, but when the baby leaves its mother's arms—that is, when it can get along by itself, and feels a sort of self-consciousness—it would not allow its mother to kiss it." He mentions the complaint of Western visitors to Japan that "we Japanese expose too much of our natural bodies." Though the natural body "is one of the most beautiful forms on earth," the Japanese critic of kissing concedes that it should not be too much exposed.

Much of the kissing that he observed in England distressed this sensitive Japanese not a little. "When I saw," he writes, "an old couple, with careworn faces and tottering steps kissing each other on the pavement of the London street, I could not help feeling rather unpleasant. I cannot give an adequate reason for it, but somehow I do not feel pleasant when I see the conventional custom of kissing between married people kept up to old age." Surely it is impossible for a Westerner to fathom the oriental mind.

The Japanese observer got into an odd predicament through other people's kissing. He was strolling about Hampstead Heath one day when he found himself in a narrow footpath and in front of him he saw a young man and a girl seated on a bench. "Presently," he relates, "the two heads came together and they were finally lost behind the girl's hat. I knew what was going on behind the scenes, so I stopped short and pretended to be looking another way, so as not to disturb their happy state. Now and then I turned toward the scene to see if it weren't already over. I was in the predicament for about half an hour (it seemed so long to me); but the two heads still remained in close attachment. At last I gave up waiting until the end of the scene and crossed the field, taking another path."

This was demonstrated once more that the Japanese know all about politeness, even if they do not understand kissing.

By Waiting Patiently.
"Patience and perseverance will accomplish all things," was a favorite saying of an old miller.

He had made this remark in a train one day on the way to market, when a pompous individual in the corner turned to him crossly and said: "Nonsense, sir. I can tell you a great many things which neither patience nor perseverance can accomplish."

"Perhaps you can," said the miller, "but I have never yet come across one thing."

"Well, then, I'll tell you one. Will patience and perseverance ever enable you to carry water in a sieve?"

"Certainly."

"I would like to know how?"

"Simply by waiting patiently for the water to freeze."—Dallas News.

Divorce Made Easy.
Two Mohammedan natives quarreled, and in great heat one cursed the religion of the other. To court they went, and the judge in an ecclesiastical court, it seems, declared that, since the man had cursed his own religion, he must be considered to have voluntarily renounced Islam. Therefore, as the law does not allow a marriage between a Mohammedan woman and a man who is not of that faith, the judge ordered the man separated from his wife! This is commended to our divorce lawyers in the United States!—Living Church.

Large Trees Disappearing.
The giant forest monarchs of British Columbia are by far too valuable to be allowed to live as curiosities for their majestic size and beauty. Still, their race is by no means extinct. The regrettable thing about them is that since they are the production of centuries, during which the soil was not needed for any other purpose, it is unlikely that future generations will have the opportunity of seeing timber of equal size.

Bust by Rodin.
Auguste Rodin, the sculptor, has just finished a bust of Lady Sackville, which the Paris art critics say is a beautiful piece of work. To get the famous Frenchman to execute her commission Lady Sackville went to Paris and took apartments at the Hotel Imperial, where Rodin lives. The work was done at Rodin's studio in the Villa Angelique.
