SEVERAL Lents people are the victims this week of a fake check scheme. At least two are losers by this latest fraud. Some thing of this sort is coming our way every month. There are other systems of beating the people. All sorts of excuses are given for failure to pay bills. Failure to secure work, sickness, bad luck and everything but the true reason—genuine cussness—is advanced. This general tendency to rob kindly disposed people is not limited to any locality but is in evidence all over. The mere fact that people who evidently intend to beat their bills cannot be made to work out their credits on the rockpile is a good reason for others to enter the list of dead beats. No creditor wants to wrong his debtors but it would be a mercy even to the debtors if they had to work out their delinquencies on the public streets at so much per day to be turned over to their creditors. One reason for the so called high cost of living is the credit system and its eventual outgrowths. The merchant who sells on credit must exact interest. If the obligations are not met he must add a percentage to cover the loss. The only moral is to sell for cash.

Lents really begins to feel that it is in the city. Last week our streets were torn up preparatory to laying a water main. This week it is torn up making water connections. After this it will be a sewer, phones, subways, car lines, hard surfacing, etc., etc. These will be put in at intervals of a year so there will be something of variety to attract our attention as we wend our way to senile retirement.

NOTES OF THE W. C. T. U.

Miss Anna Gordon, acting president of the national W. C. T. U. is in Washington, D. C. and will remain during the pending temperance agitation in congress.

One of the greatest triumphs for women among women ever recorded was that of the adoption of suffrage by the Woman's Clubs gathered in national convention at Chicago last week. One by one the opponents among women are seeing the error of their reasoning.

In Norway the national parliament has adopted a resolution prohibiting the use of intoxicating liquors by officers of the Norwegian army and navy. The enlisted men are already enforced abstainers. Now let us make a special effort to enlist our citizens of Norwegian nativity to take an active hand in making Oregon dry. They can back their position by citing the action of their old home government.

Mrs. Hammer starts this week for a home to house canvass for registration recruits.

How often we read of a wife called to view the dead body of her husband killed in an automobile accident. By the side of this man, in the joy ride he had been taking, was a young girl not of his family. Unhappy wife so suddenly widowed. Parents cannot be too careful in teaching their daughters to respect the marriage vow, and to do unto others as they would be done by in the years to come. Joy rides are short and swift. The hours of introspection dark and long. Joy riders and joy dinners are all swift leaders to bitterness and sorrow. Young girls should never go with married men unattended by their wives.

The next meeting of Mt. Scott Union will be on July 14, place to be announced later. This will be red letter day for the young people, so remember the date and make it a point to be present.

The prizes offered the Lents school by Mt. Scott Union for temperance essays were awarded on Friday. The work was found to be so uniformly good that the award was divided among the four rooms writing on the subject, giving one dollar to a pupil in each room. The award of $1.00 offered for the best basket was also divided, giving seventy-five cents to two pupils.

A Successful Man

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox
There was a man, who killed a loving maid
In some mad mood of passion; and he paid
The price, upon a scaffold. Now his name
Stands only as a synonym for shame.
There was another man, who took to wife
A loving woman. She was full of life,
Of hope, and aspirations; and her pride
Clothed her like some rich mantle.
First, the wide, glad stream of life that through her veins had sway
He dammed by rocks, cast in it, day
by day.
Her flag of hope, hung gaily to the world,
He placed half-mast, and then hauled down, and furled.
The aspirations, breathing in each word,
By subtle ridicule, were made absurd;
The delicate fine mantle of her pride
With rude unfeeling hands was wrenched aside;
And by mean avarice, or vulgar show,
Her quivering woman's heart was made
to know
That she was but a chattel, bought to fill Whatever niche might please the buyer's will.
So she was murdered, while the slow
years went.
And her assassin, honored, opulent,
Lived with no punishment, or social ban!
"A good provider, a successful man."

CHERRYVILLE

This is the week we celebrate. Once more the country's Natal day arrives.

Let everyone rejoice and join in the celebration on the glorious Fourth of July.

Nations have appeared and disappeared in the history of the world but none with the immortal declaration that all men are created equal with certain unalienable rights, among these life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

There are no names in all history like those of Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Grant, Webster, Franklin and Clay, among statesmen, and as they were first in their class, so America has produced the greatest inventor, Edison, the greatest civil engineer, Col. Goethals, and the greatest scholars, writers, orators, poets, financiers and men of great ability in every department. And mark you! These men are and were genuine Americans, not of foreign descent in hardly any case. In that early day to be a Roman was greater than a king. Today to be an American is greater than to be any little foolish ten-spot king on earth.

Rev. J. H. Boyd of Portland, is out for his summer vacation at his ranch north of town.

Miss Agnes Watkins, teacher of manual training at St. Johns, is out for her summer vacation at the home of her brother, Howard, on the hill.

Some of the neighbors donated labor, free, on the road last week and in conjunction with the regular road crew made a big improvement on the road up past the school house north of town.

Some boys here climbed a big fir last week and found a gigantic nest which they took for an eagle's nest and got five young nestlings about the size of half-grown chicks. They made a great effort to raise them but they all died.

Houser, the big sheep man from the Tygh Valley, came across the mountains the first of the week with a big band of sheep to pasture on Wild Cat mountain this summer. He says he got more for his wool this season than any time for several years. How is this after the wool business was killed in Oregon by those terrible Democrats!

D. G. Gunn of Boliver, Mo., is building a shack on a railroad claim near Sandy that is covered with valuable timber. If he gets it he will be a big winner.

Gregg Cox will drive the stage from Sandy now, up in the mountains for the new contractor, Mr. Jackson, of Sandy. New coach, new outfit all around, and no freight in the passenger coach, and reduced fare.

There will be a celebration at the home of Andrew Oaks, up near Alder Creek bridge, on the banks of the Sandy river. Picnic, dancing, games and music.

B. F. Bauer of Gresham has moved his family out on his claim south of town, and will remain out there until he proves up. He has some valuable timber on his claim.

J. T. Freil Jr., received a big shipment of soda pop this week. This shipment consisted of 100 cases and was brought out in an auto truck. It weighed 3 tons.

A good claim with a good house on it and in the heart of a great range is offered very cheap and will take some trade. Inquire at post office.

Andrew Oak put in the rock fire place at the bungalow near the post office and it certainly is a good one. It will take in wood four feet long.

Miss Grace Smith of Brooklyn, N. Y. is visiting at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Traeman.

More Ford automobiles pass the post office here than all other machines combined. Ford is the only employer of labor in the world that is paying good wages. He is a native American.

living spring. And in between was that acre of level bottom land on the bank of Johnson creek. The Regals wanted that acre with the spring below the bridge for their home site and they got it. Two thousand dollars wouldn't touch that acre now even without the house. "No more black face for me," said the former actor to the scribe as he tilted back his Panama. Then the genial boniface hastened into the house to answer a telephone call. All orders for chicken dinners by automobilists are usually telephoned in advance. The Sunday before the Regal Cottage had served a party of eighteen at dinner.

Mr. Regal is now quite a farmer. But it may be surmised that this was not always so. After spending thirty years exclusively in the show business what he didn't know about farming would make a large encyclopedia. Like Adam in the garden of Eden his first knowledge had to be acquired by painful experience. Mr. Regal knew that the vines with little red bulbs on top of the ground were strawberries and that other vines with white bulbs at their roots were potatoes. He also knew when he hoed up a plant that if it had these white bulbs at the end he had made a mistake, that it was a potato hill and not weeds. He also knew that eggs did not grow on egg plants and that oysters were not found on oyster plants. From this small beginning he has become a plant expert. He has 85 Lambert cherry trees on his acre that with their white washed bodies and laden branches are a treat for themselves. He also has prune trees, silver, petite, Italian, with their branches bending under their load. Mr. Regal will tell you that a strawberry bed reaches its maximum production in the third year and after the fourth year should be transplanted to new ground. Next season his strawberry bed will be moved from in front of the house down to the potato field among the cherry trees.

Mr. Regal's main reliance, as it should be that of every man, is on his wife. She is the cook. It is she who puts up the marmalades and jellies for winter use, and it is she who gives that home-cooking touch that makes these country dinners so inviting. The Regal Cottage makes a specialty of dainties. One of their specialties is green corn on the cob in the middle of winter. They have a way all their own of canning this corn.

It is a fair presumption of course that Mr. Regal, besides hoeing in the garden is of some use about the house. He is the cashier and makes change for the travelers. And having been in the show business he knows the value of advertising and the importance of being the headliner. One of the stunts he now puts on for the entertainment of the public is milk-fed chickens. This is not altogether like Barnum's white elephants for he does actually feed the chickens milk from the neighboring Jenne ranch. But the dinners at the cottage are so many that the fifty Plymouth Rocks in his own hencoop can not supply the demand for "springs," and the neighbors of the Regals for the stipend of twenty cents a pound are called upon to make up the deficiency. They also furnish the ducks for the duck dinners which is another specialty.

The Regals had no clearly defined idea as to how they were to make a living from an acre of land when they bought. But they reasoned that if they could put on the table for seventy-five cents a dinner that would cost four dollars at any grill in the city they should attract a line of custom and they

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constant rubbing up the cure with local treatment, progressed a incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and Catarrh requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally, it acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
