A Tall Corn Story.

The prospect of a big corn yield in Kansas this fall recalls the story of big Kansas corn at the Philadelphia centennial, says the Kansas City Journal. Among the Kansas agricultural exhibits at that fair was some corn on the stalks grown in the Neosho river bottoms. It was 20 feet high and the ears looked as long as stove-wood.

An old lady from Vermont gazed at it and declared that the stalks were spliced. Then she took another look and changed her mind. "But," said she, "it didn't grow that big in one year. It must have grown for two seasons."

The man in charge of the Kansas exhibit was somewhat of a prevaricator himself. "Lady," said he, in great solemnity, "we are almost ashamed to exhibit this corn. This has been a hot, dry year in Kansas and we have not been able to raise very large corn. But we felt that it wouldn't do to have a Kansas exhibit without corn, so we brought this little stuff along. In a really good year the corn grows so high in Kansas that eagles build their nests in the tassels, knowing full well that they are out of range of the farmers' guns."

Got Even With Her

A few days ago two young ladies entered a trolley-car and found only standing room. "I'm going to get a seat," said one to her companion. "Now you see?"

Selecting a sedate-looking gentleman, she walked up to him. "My dear Mr. Green!" she exclaimed. "How delighted I am to meet you! You are almost a stranger. Will I accept your seat? Well, I do feel tired, I admit. Thank you so much!"

The man rose. "Sit down, Jane, my girl," said he, as he cautiously pointed to the vacant seat. "Don't often see you out on a washing-day. You must feel tired, I'm sure. How's your Mistress?"
