WOMAN WEAK AND NERVOUS
Finds Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
Creston, Iowa.—"I suffered with female troubles from the time I came into womanhood until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would have pains if I overworked or lifted anything heavy, and I would be so weak and nervous and in so much misery that I would be prostrated. A friend told me what your medicine had done for her and I tried it. It made me strong and healthy and our home is now happy with a baby boy. I am very glad that I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and do all I can to recommend it."—Mrs. A. R. BOSCAMP, 504 E. Howard Street, Creston, Iowa.

"Thus at a tea one young girl asked another:
"And where are you going this summer, dear?"
"From the way mother talks," was the reply, "you'd think we were going to Newport. From the way father talks you'd think we were going to starve. But I suppose we'll steer a middle course, as usual, and put in a fortnight at a $12 Atlantic City boarding house."—Washington Star.

How He Knows.
A traveling sales agent visiting a large factory made a bet with the manager that he would pick out all the married men among the employees. Accordingly he stationed himself at the door as they came back from dinner and mentioned all those whom he believed to be married, and in almost every case he was right.
"How do you do it?" asked the manager in amazement.
"Oh, it's quite simple," said the traveler, "quite simple. The married men all wipe their feet on the mat; the single men don't."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

EDITORIALS IN FILMS
PATRONS WILLING TO BE TAUGHT BY WAY OF SCREEN.
Pictures That Tell a Story Solely for the Purpose of Driving Home a Moral Are at Present Much Too Scarce.

The motion picture has adopted many guises in its search for the clinking dime. It has robbed the stage of its plays and idols, furnished an efficient tool to the teachers of geography and natural history, outslapped the comic supplements in the animated cartoons, and run the news columns a close race for interest with its news pictorials. It now remains for the newest type of picture to be taken up more universally, and the editorial writer will be able to see a rival on the screen. Pictures telling a story solely for the purpose of driving home a certain moral are at present scarce, but there is every indication that they will become more and more popular, for the picture patron has been found perfectly willing to be taught a lesson by way of the screen. The American Bankers' association, the National Safety-First societies, and the crusaders for fire prevention are among the organizations who have found these "film editorials" most useful.

Just as there were "sermons in stones" a long time ago, so there were "editorials in films" back in the early days of pictures, but the helter-skelter march of progress in a new art drove along other avenues and the "film editorial" was allowed to languish. David W. Griffith was probably the first to produce pictures of this type and it was Frank Woods, "the spectator," who christened them "film editorials." Director Griffith's production were in thousand foot lengths and told "The Story of Wheat," "The Story of Coal," and so on with many other industries. The reels all followed the same general line of treatment, and "The Story of Wheat" may be taken as an example.

This tale opened on western plains, with scenes of the harvest in the wheat fields of Kansas. Then to the mill, and on to the bake-shops of the cities and into the homes of rich and poor the camera followed from the yellow kernel to the loaf of bread. All this was interesting enough, but it was mainly intended as sugar-coating, the producer's moral was reserved for the last. With a swirl the scenes swung to the wheat pit, and an attempt to corner the market. The lesson was driven home in the contrast between the idyllic beauty of the early views and the greed and strife of the financiers, followed by the universal suffering attendant upon a successful corner. It was a film editorial with a "punch."

"I liked to work on those pictures," said Mr. Griffith to a writer in the Dramatic Mirror, "and some day I hope to get back to them and do some really big things, for I think that some of the greatest work of the motion picture is to be done along those lines. Think of the value of motion pictures of this kind to a political party with a big issue before the voters. The perfect motion picture editorial will take its place in the making of history along with the press and stage."

Picture Career.
Shannon Fife, although the youngest member, is one of the oldest in point of service, on any of the scenario staffs. Forty-five of his stories have been released. Fife's picture career carries him from a ranch near Las Vegas, Mexico, seven years ago, through a half score of vocations to finally wind up in newspaper work, from which the next step was the playwrightwork. Fife's best bet is writing scenarios around locations and characters, having supplied the material for Director Barry O'Neill, while he was taking pictures on the seacoast of Maine last summer, and a number of the photoplays produced by Col. Joseph Smiley, in which Smiley and Justina Huff played the leading roles; also provided Arthur Johnson with a number of Johnstonesque stories, as well as for Director John E. Ince and others.

Iceman Becomes Villain.
George Field, who plays the villain in many films, was at one time connected with a Chicago ice company and his friends insist that he acquired his persuasive manner, which he often exercises over the heroine in the photoplays, by arguing with his customers, who insisted that they did not receive full value for their money. After entering the theatrical field this screen actor played with Montgomery and Stone. Following this engagement he played in stock and then entered the movies. Field is now engaged as Helme in the "Helme-Katrina" series.

Pictures Better Than Books.
That moving pictures are destined to revolutionize methods of teaching was the contention of speakers at the convention of the National Educational association in St. Paul. They said that the pictures give visually and quicken the imagination of the child to a far greater degree in a few minutes time than the text book would in days of study. Subjects covering the curricula from kindergarten to the graduate course already are in use in a few cases and others are being prepared for use in every branch of science.

Secretary to Postmaster General Amazed When Typical Country Rube Borrows Toothbrush.

Col. Edward B. Smith, for 20 years a Washington newspaper man, now serving the postmaster general in a secretarial capacity, has had his full share of amusing adventures.
This story is told by Mr. Smith of an incident which happened to him while en route from Washington to Baltimore. At one of the little wayside stations a typical country "rube" boarded the train and immediately went to the wash room at the end of the car, where Colonel Smith was "dolling up" preparatory to his arrival in Baltimore. His toothbrush was lying conveniently on the wash basin, and the Marylander, after removing a goodly portion of Kentucky leaf from his mouth, unhesitatingly proceeded to make use of it.
"Here! What are you doing with my toothbrush?" exclaimed Smith.
"Seuse me, jedge, I didn't know that was yours. Where's the 'regular' one?" inquired the innocent countryman.

An Irish farmer was asked if he used any of the commercial fertilizers on his land.
"No, sorr," he replied. "To my notion there's nothing like the old barnyard kind."
"Nonsense, man," said the other; "the time is coming when a man can carry the fertilizer for an acre of land in one of his walsteat pockets."
"Maybe it will, sorr," returned Pat. "An' he'll be able to carry the crop in the other pocket, I'm thinkin'."

Easy to Misjudge Remedy You Need
In Overcoming Blood Trouble Do Not Be Fooled By Mere Claims.

Study the Game and You Will Understand Why Some Things Are Deceptive.
In treating a blood disorder the fundamental fact to be observed that the blood is the nutrient of materials required for renewal of health.
Now the propulsive effect of S. S. S. is to regulate the blood formation, to assist in development of tissue and to have a decided bearing upon the lymphatic influence, all of which is in the promotion of blood health. And this propulsive effect will be similar to the straight ball pitched to insure a safe hit and not the deceptive gyrations designed to fool the batter. S. S. S. is a plain, straight blood purifier. It is not a fanciful mixture to move the bowels and thus falsely play upon susceptible minds. It is not a nerve excitant to exhilarate for the moment and then die away. It contains none of those mineral drugs which dry up the tissues. In other words, it does not play to the bleachers nor to the "fans." It is just a wholesome, powerful, searching blood remedy, the ingredient of which serves the active purpose of arousing each cellular part of the tissues to select from the blood the nutriment or materials required for renewal of health.
S. S. S. is prepared from nature's own materials, not synthetic drugs being used. And yet it is more potent, more powerful, more searching and more productive of restorative results than from the most active of all the minerals employed in medicine.
Its action by elimination of the irritating poisons that infect the blood, is one of the very important factors to know.
You can get S. S. S. at any drug store, but take no other so-called blood purifiers unless they claim "Just as good." S. S. S. is prepared by The Swift Specific Co., 609 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., and if you have any deep-seated or obstinate blood trouble, write to their Medical Dept. for free advice. It will be worth your while to do so.
