For week ending Sept. 1914:

The next improvement in photography, according to popular mechanics, is a camera that will take moving pictures, or at least enable the tourist to take a Perkins, Erma Smith, A. C. Wiley. 1000 or more pictures without reloading his camera. With such a machine and two rolls of films the traveler would be greatly convenienced. Plates and film packs and even ordinary films would be quickly displaced by this important improvement. Then by lengthy blanks every 25 or 50 exposures, any portion of the film might be exposed at will and developed at convenience. Such a contrivance will put the present generation of cameras at a great disadvantage, the only consideration being the cost of the film when ordered in such a quantity.

The Labor Day number of the Labor Press is the best effort yet of that worthy publication. In this connection we note with regret the intention of Mr. Harris to sever his connections with that publication. Harris has improved the Labor Press. His loss will be felt.

Poultry Life gets out an edition for September that is especially useful to the small grower who wants to know how to feed and prepare his birds for market.

NOTES OF THE W. C. T. U.

With 75 days of drouth the hop crop has shrunken to much less than the anticipated yield this year. Now comes the information that Baron won something, the hop king, is under arrest as a prisioner of war in sudon, so the future of the hop that goes abroad is not promising. The maturing of the hop always reaches into the dry season, India will speak at Lents Friends berries would all be harvested and the crop out of the way of any protracted dry spell.

Charter, Sanday evening, August 30th at 7 o'clock. Everybody welcome. This will be a freat you cannot afford to miss. whereas the same area planted to Church, Sunday evening, August 30th dry spell.

The delegates and alternates to the county convention are: Mesdames, Additon, Dunbar, Richardson, Sommerfeldt, Camp, Steffer, Scott, Fankhauser, Clark and Ritter.

The next meeting of Mt. Scott Union will be held in the Evangelical church on Sept. 22. The annual election of meeting. officers will be followed by a reception. Class. Refreshments will be served.

Mr. S. W. Grathwell will be the principal speaker at the temperance session of the Portland Quarterly meeting, to be held at the Friend's church next Sunday, One block south of Woodmere station. Sept. 6, at 3 o'clock. The Junior Young Campaigners will also hold a brief rally at that time, the first of several rallies to be held in different parts of the city during the coming weeks.

Perhaps a few words regarding the object and achievements of this movement may not be amiss here.

In 1911, when the Prohibitory Law of Maine was up for resubmission, Anna Gordon, present acting president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, secured the interest and co-operation of the young people of the state, knowing full well the value of such cooperation and assistance in any reform movement, and organized the "Young Campaigners for Probibition." They held rallies all over the state, marched in paradee, and played a most important part is retaining the Amendment on the Statute Books.

There are to-day eleven organizations in this county, and approximately five hundred members in the city of Portland. Many of the Young People's Societies and the Sunday Schools of the 8 city have organized and are most enthusiastic workers for state wide prohibition.
