Rheumatic Throat Is Common Trouble
Should Be Treated in Blood To Prevent Recurrence.

These are successful gargles that stop soreness in the throat, but to prevent their incessant return, the blood must be put in order. The best remedy is S. S. S., as it influences all the functions of the body to neutralize the irritants or waste products that stimulate their excretion through the proper channels.
Rheumatic sore throat is a dangerous indication, as it means that the blood is loaded with more uric acid than the kidneys can excrete, and may thus lead to serious general disturbance.
The action of S. S. S. stimulates cellular activity. It prevents the accumulation of irritants in local spots. It enables the arteries to supply quickly the new red blood to replace worn-out tissue.
For this reason uric acid that finds the throat an easy prey to its breaking-down influence, is watered and eliminated.
In other words, S. S. S. prevents chronic conditions by enabling all the mucous linings of the body to secrete healthy mucus. Its influence is shown in a marked improvement of the bronchial tubes, whereby the huskiness of voice with thick, grayish expectorations is overcome. S. S. S., well diluted with water, means a blood bath, since it is welcome to any stomach and at once gets into the blood.
S. S. S. is free of all minerals and contains ingredients wonderfully conducive to well-balanced health.
You can get it at any drug store, but do not accept anything else. There is danger in substitutes. S. S. S. is prepared only by The Swift Specific Co., 528 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Our Medical Dept. will give you free instruction by mail on any subject of blood disorders. Write today.

BUILDING WIRE FENCE
EXCELLENT SUBSTITUTE FOUND FOR RAILS AND BOARDS.

Not Expensive When One Considers Lasting Qualities of Good Heavy Galvanized Wire and Indestructible Cement Posts.

(By P. K. EDWARDS, Copyright, 1914.)
Pigs and the board fence were the bane of our existence as boys, for no matter how securely we fastened the old boards the pigs would get out just when we were starting for the swimming hole or going berrying. Now concrete posts and wire fencing have become substitutes for the boards and rails and once set up are fortunately there to stay.

"But wire fencing is so expensive!" the reader will say. The reply to that is, "If you do not consider the lasting qualities of good heavy galvanized wire and the indestructibility of cement posts." The writer remembers putting a fifty-five inch woven wire fence around his garden some nineteen years ago, using chestnut posts set twenty feet apart. This fence is still standing and is to all appearances in excellent condition. Regarding the spacing of the posts around this garden, which bordered the highway and required 400 feet of fencing, if we had used a board fence with eight-foot post spacing, thirty more posts would have been required, and as these cost even in those days 15 cents each, a saving of $4.50 was effected. In this particular case the posts being of chestnut (eight feet long) the butts were painted with a creosote preparation and set three feet in the ground.

In using cement posts, which are easily made at home, be sure to have the butts of the corner and end posts extra heavy and then no anchors are needed; also provide for two bolt holes in each post, one near the top, the other near the bottom, to be used for the bolts which hold the wooden strip to which the wire is stapled.

In setting some 800 feet of poultry fencing this past year the writer used modern heavy woven wire, with six foot cement posts set three feet in the ground. To these short posts were bolted five-foot wooden strips three by four inches, to which the wire was stapled. Many of the cement posts in this case had to have extra large butts on account of the hollows in the ground, which had a tendency to pull up the posts.

During this time of the year, when the ground is very dry it is sometimes very troublesome while building wire fence to keep the post from turning at the corners. Anchor the corner post about four feet, then dig a trench the same depth toward the second post, nail a two by four scantling to the corner post at the bottom, have the scantling about four or five feet in length, now attach a two by four three feet in length to the scantling, tamp the dirt over this securely and the post will never slip or turn if properly braced at the top. To properly brace the post at the top the brace should be fitted in the post two and one-half feet from the bottom and top, this brace should be of good material with a cross brace of wire as shown in the illustration.

GROUND GRAIN FOR FEEDING
Oat Grain Should Be Crushed and Ear Corn Ground Into Coarse Meal for Horses and Cows.

A popular grain feed for cows and horses is provender—corn and oats ground together. Corn on the cob and oats for cows is fully as good as shelled corn and oats, and the labor of shelling is saved. Probably the finer they are ground the more completely they will be digested, but there is a point of fineness beyond which the cost of reduction will be greater than the gain secured. Just when this point was reached would depend upon so many things, the price of the grains, the cost of grinding and the value of the dairy product, that no definite statement can be made. But this much may be said, the oat grains should be crushed so as to expose the kernels to the action of the digestive juices, and the ear corn should be ground into a coarse meal.

Experience Essential.
No farmer who has not tried it should engage in the cattle-feeding business on a large scale at the start. He will find, and generally at pretty high cost, that experience and good judgment are needed as much as corn to lay the fat on a bunch of steers at a profit.

Time for Thinning Apples.
When thinning apples thinning should be done when the little apples are about one inch in diameter. Do not leave any apples nearer together than four inches.

Party Frocks for Little Girls

THE three simple dresses pictured here, worn by little maids from six to nine years old, set forth the most approved lines on which frocks for children are made. They are of fabrics most in demand for occasional wear. They are made in the same designs as the simple clothes for daily wear, but show more latitude in the matter of decoration.

At the left of the picture the little miss is arranged in a party frock of messaline. It could hardly be more simply cut if it were a gingham school dress. It is a plain slip with parallel tucks running lengthwise at the front and back. They, with the shaping of the underarm seams, provide the scant fullness of the skirt. At the termination of the tucks small rosettes of velvet ribbon are used as a finishing touch. The neck and sleeves are ornamented with an applique of heavy lace.

At the right a plain close-fitting slip fastens at the left side. It is made of a figured crepe, in white, finished with a sailor collar and bow in black satin and a sash of black satin ribbon. The sleeves are very short and ornamented with four narrow tucks at the bottom and finished with a piping of black satin. The fastening is managed with small crochet buttons and buttonholes above the waist line. Below this the hem in the material is stitched down. Very long black stockings and low slippers with straps are worn with this somewhat abbreviated garment. A little greater length and amplitude would improve the skirt.

Fine plain organdie or dimity or the best grades in lawn are suited to the dress shown in the middle of the picture. It is also a one-piece slip, with the fullness provided for by deep plaits laid over the shoulders in the back and front. The skirt is bordered with a wide band at the bottom, of printed organdie, showing plain and figured stripes alternating, and the sleeves are finished with one plain and one figured stripe of the same material. The figures appearing in the border are calculated to captivate the childish fancy. Conventional figures, like snow crystals and much-conventionalized little dogs and birds interspersed among them characterize this bit of decoration, only suited to a young child. The sleeves in this dress are elbow length. The neck is finished with a band of the figured fabric. A round collar of fine lace forms the finishing touch for this little dress-up affair. Half-length socks and low canvas shoes are worn with this as with almost all other summer dresses.

In adapting these designs to American children they are improved by cutting them knee length and allowing slightly more fullness at the bottom of the skirt.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

Simple Coiffure for Any Occasion

ONE of the loveliest of the new coiffures is pictured here. It is shown decorated with an extravagant ornament of paradise feathers, for evening wear. The style is not elaborate and might be adopted as one suited to all occasions.

There is a small pompadour of unwaved but fluffy hair extending from temple to temple across the forehead, with a very light fringe as a finish. The mass of the hair is parted in the middle of the back and combed forward at each side. It is held loosely and braided in two braids, which begin at a point just above the ears. These two braids require all the hair excepting the ends of that portion which covers the pompadour. These ends are spread over the crown of the head at the back, concealing the part, and pinned down to be concealed by the braids.

The braids are brought across the back of the head and are pinned to the slaco. Its hair of average length the end of one braid will extend to the beginning of the other, the two forming a double braid across the back of the head. But the arrangement of the braids must depend upon the length of the hair. If it is very long they will be coiled and pinned down at the back of the head or wrapped about it. The feature to be noted in this coiffure especially is the fact that the hair is brought forward so that the braids begin above the ears.

To dress the hair in this way successfully requires that it be first made fluffy. A small support is needed to keep the pompadour in place. A scant supply of natural hair may be dressed in this way by using two short switches in the braids at the sides.
