

Entrance to a Vast Exhibit Palace at Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco in 1915

Copyright, 1914, by Panama-Pacific International Exposition Co.

THIS photograph shows the great western portal or entrance way of the huge Palace of Food Products. The half dome is known as the Half Dome of Vigor and is 113 feet in height. Brilliant, riotous colors are employed in the mosaic in the vault of the half dome, which was designed by Jules Guerin, America's most celebrated decorative artist.

Resolutions of Sympathy

During the past quarter, Multnomah District Pomona Grange, has lost by death, three of its members, Wm. Larsen of Evening Star Grange, L. H. Rickert of Columbia Grange and Mrs. Myra Franklin of Lents Grange. While we drag our charters and mourn the loss of Brothers and Sisters, tried and true, we feel that they have entered into a higher degree of excellence and perfection and are now working under a Master and Overseer who knoweth how to do all things well.

We sincerely sympathize with the families and friends of these members, who have passed, and wish to express our sympathy to the families of the deceased and to copy sent to the bereaved.

J. A. Dunbar and Prof. Burton held a successful out-door meeting on Main street Friday evening, in interest of the latter's campaign for State School Superintendent, also boosting Oregon Dry.

H. R. Hornchuch has returned after two weeks vacation. He reports a splendid time. During his vacation he with a small party of hunters entered the wilds of central Oregon. He reports good luck in bagging the limit of three buck deer. Others of the party were also rewarded, bringing back meat and antlers. The Lents congregation welcome home their pastor.

AN OPTICAL ENIGMA.

Why is it the Human Eye Sees Things Right Side Up?

Just why we are able to see things right side up is a mystery which science has not yet been able to explain.

We know that the human eye involves the same optical principles as a camera. Owing to the fact that light always travels in a straight line and never in a curve, the rays which emanate from any object within our range of vision have to descend and ascend in order to travel into the narrow opening in the eye which corresponds to the camera's lens.

These rays finally reach a point where they intersect. Continuing on in straight lines, their relative position becomes just the reverse of what they were when they left the object seen.

Thus the image register on the retina of your eye is topsy turvy. Just as it is on the photographic plate in a camera. If you are looking at a house, for instance, the image your eye gets will show the chimneys down below, the foundation walls up above, and so on.

But the impression your brain gets reveals the house right side up unless you happen to be afflicted with a rare disorder, which results in everything always appearing topsy turvy.

During the infinitesimally short period required to flash the image seen from the eye's retina to the brain all the light rays which created the image are reassembled and put back in their proper places, so that the brain sees the object as it really is and not in the topsy turvy form it was registered on the retina. Just how this miracle is performed is what science would like to find out.—New York American.

GRAVESTONE LUNCHEONS.

One of the Curious Sights of New York's Financial District.

In old Trinity churchyard, where Robert Fulton and Alexander Hamilton lie buried, dozens of girls can be seen through the pickets of the bronze fences every day enjoying their noonday lunches amid the tombs of the old time New Yorkers. All about are high skyscraping office buildings. The elevated trains clatter and bang overhead, and on Broadway the trolley's gongs add tumult to the roar of the city. Within the old churchyard all is peace and quiet. It is here that the girls from these big office buildings come of a noontime to eat their lunch, "far from the madding crowd," yet within a hand's reach of the bustle of Broadway.

It was only a few years ago that some girl, a typewriter in a nearby office building, chanced to let her eyes fall over the gravestones of old Trinity. They did not bring thoughts of ghosts to her mind—they only made her think that it would be lovely if she could eat her lunch among such peaceful scenes.

The next day she and a girl friend brought their lunches. They entered the churchyard and, seeking a secluded spot behind the old church, sat down on an old tomb and began to eat their sandwiches. Nobody objected. The next day they came again. Other girls, emerging from stuffy restaurants, saw them and resolved to imitate them. The next day there were half a dozen there, and nowadays, when the noon hour is bright and sunny, the number has increased to sometimes seventy-five.—New York Cor. Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Equality of Sex.

There is a little girl in Springfield, Mass., who, like many of her sex, resents the imputation that the feminine mind is not so strong as the masculine.

One day her mother remarked on the apparent lack of intelligence in a hen. "You can't teach a hen anything," she said. "They have done more harm to the garden than a drove of cattle would. You can teach a cat, a dog or a pig something, but a hen—never!" "H'm!" exclaimed the child indignantly. "I think they know just as much as the roosters!"—Youth's Companion.

Mystery of the Stomach.

"Why does not the stomach digest itself?" is a question often asked. The Journal of the American Medical Association confesses that the reason has not yet been found. There are many theories, but not one of them is entirely satisfactory, and we are still unable to say more than Hunter said more than a century ago. "That these living cells remain intact under such circumstances, because they are alive!"—New York World.

Honesty the Best Policy.

"Doubtless the worst man in the United States today is the fellow who 'pocket his purse,' containing $50, while he was robbing a children's camp, and who is afraid to claim his property. Verily, honesty is the best policy."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.
