CHERRYVILLE

All the talk now is war and politics. How doth the busy candidate improve each shining minute and gather votes in every way for all that there is in it.

Earl Baxter and partner came in the first of the week with a bunch of horses from Eastern Oregon which they will dispose of in this vicinity.

And still the war is going on and thousands of young brave men are being shot to death daily. Thomas Carlyle once wrote, "The more I see of men the better I like dogs."

It is said you can't teach an old dog new tricks, but it seems Geo. C. Brownell of Oregon City is not only talking Prohibition in his old age but he says we will have to do away with the profit system. To get profit, men, and women too, will resort to almost anything. There is a better way to conduct the world's affairs and to manage our social and economic system and we are slowly reaching out for a better and more reasonable and just manner for all of the children of men. We must quit grinding the face of the poor and favoring the rich and the greedy.

Moore, the mighty statesman, running the Republican campaign this fall in Oregon, is out with a frightful howl about business being ruined in this state by having cheap China eggs dumped on our shores. Has anybody seen any China eggs, except nest eggs? Or are they getting fresh ranch eggs any cheaper than they ever did? They use to "holter" their heads off about having goods made by the cheap pauper labor of Europe being dumped on our shores. Now that the cheap pauper labor is being killed it is China eggs. Let 'er dump!

No Patent on This
An Iowa farmer has devised a rat trap upon which he claims no patent but which any one troubled with rats can use. He purchased a big galvanized iron bucket, or garbage pail, and placed it in the barn. He filled it two-thirds full of water and on top of the water a layer of chaffy oats an inch deep. The next morning he emptied out mixture of water, oats and drowned rats. He rebaited his trap and the next morning he figured results and found that he had aimlessly but with malice aforethought, gotten rid of eighty-nine rats. He declares it will rid a barn in a short time.

"Small, hot bullets give but little pain," writes a war correspondent. But ragged Ren Bosley of the Newhall News insists that he is one patriot that would rather have a large, cold bottle than a small hot bullet. He has also decided that he is in favor of getting along without any pain at all, if possible.—Sattler. Ellsworth, Ia., News.
