PLEASANT VALLEY

Miss Grace Kesterson is visiting at the home of Rev. T. B. Lovelace of Sellwood.

Mrs. Annie Powell, a former resident of the valley but now of Portland, visited with friends at this place a few days last week.

Fred Matthias entertained friends from Portland, at his home last Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Rogers, who have been staying in Portland this winter, are making arrangements to return to their home here in the near future.

J. Z. Olson is building a commodious and up to date chicken house.

G. H. Kesterson is having about one thousand cords of wood cut this winter.

Geo. Christensen has the material on the ground and the excavating done for the foundation of his new residence which he will build as soon as weather conditions are favorable.

Mrs. G. H. Kesterson, secretary of the Pleasant Valley free library association, announces that she has received a new list of books from the central library in Portland.

Geo. Pike of Bellrose was in the valley on business Saturday.

Noah Kesterson has secured employment of the Sandy Lumber Co., and has moved his family to that place.

T. R. Campbell attended the automobile show in Portland last Monday.

There was a large attendance at grange last Saturday and everybody reports a splendid time. State Deputy, T. J. Kruder, who had been invited to install the officers elect failed to show up. However, State Deputy, J. D. Chitwood of Clackamas County was there and with the assistance of the Lents degree team, put on the installation work in splendid shape. P. L. Bliss, the newly elected master, although new in the work, got away with a lot of business considering the length of time in which he had to do it.

CHERRYVILLE

Whoa, January!

The back-bone of the winter is broken.

Old-timers say this has been the driest winter known so far.

J. J. Tiescher, who has been working on a dairy ranch near Hillsdale the past season, returned to his railroad claim south of town, where he will make some improvements before the busy season begins.

Wm. Fetzer, a wealthy manufacturer of Springfield, Ill., announces that he will run for President in 1916 on a platform largely composed of rural credits to farmers. He says bankers had no difficulty in getting a bill through congress giving them government money at 2 1/2 percent on collateral security, but there is no money for farmers with the best security in the world at 4 and even 5 percent. Jim Ferguson ran for governor last year in Texas on a platform of justice to the tenant farmers of that state, who were being robbed by the bankers and merchants of the Lone Star State, and was elected too in spite of all the money and boodle of Big Business. Look out for Fetzer. He has money and he is going to touch up some of these old political tricksters with a very long and ticklish whip. In response to a letter from the writer he says he is going to get in the game.

Just now the press is full of denunciation of the proposed plan of Bryan's idea of giving the South American Republic, Columbia, $25,000,000 and an apology for what they lost in the Panama Canal deal. Teddy is out in an article in the Metropolitan explaining his connection with the affair. The trouble is that Bryan has been misled and yielding to his partisan, has really thought that we had wronged the Columbia Republic, whereas, nothing of the kind was ever done. That rotten bunch simply got left on their plan to hold up Uncle Sam, and now that the administration and the public are thoroughly informed on the subject it is safe to bet that they will never see that bunch of money.

MT. Scott Center of Truth.

Meeting every Sunday evening at 8:00 p. m. Three doors east of 82d St., Grays Crossing, Portland, Ore.

TRY THIS FOR NEURALGIA

Thousands of people keep on suffering with Neuralgia because they do not know what to do for it. Neuralgia is a pain in the nerves. What you want to do is to soothe the nerve itself. Apply Sloan's Liniment to the surface over the painful part—do not rub it in. Sloan's Liniment penetrates very quickly to the sore, irritated nerve and allays the inflammation. Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for 25 cents of any druggist and have it in the house—against Colds, Sore and Swollen Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica and like ailments. Your money back if not satisfied, but it does give almost instant relief.

EUROPEAN WAR SHATTERS KING COTTON'S THRONE

FLEECY STAPLE MUST PAY RANSOM INTO THE COFFERS OF WAR.

Nation Rings With Cries of Stricken Industry.

By Peter Radford
Lecturer National Farmers' Union

King Cotton has suffered more from the European war than any other agricultural product on the American continent. The shells of the belligerents have burst over his throne, frightening his subjects and shattering his markets, and, panic-stricken, the nation cries out "God save the King!"

People from every walk of life have contributed their mite toward rescue work. Society has danced before the King; milady has decreed that the family wardrobe shall contain only cotton goods; the press has pledged with the public to "buy a bale"; bankers have been formulating holding plans; congress and legislative bodies have deliberated over relief measures; statesmen and writers have grown eloquent expounding the inalienable rights of "His Majesty" and presenting schemes for preserving the financial integrity of the stricken staple, but the sword of Europe has proved mightier than the pen of America in fixing value upon this product of the sunny south. Prices have been bayoneted, values riddled and markets decimated by the battling hosts of the eastern hemisphere until the American farmer has suffered a war loss of $400,000,000, and a bale of cotton brave enough to enter a European port must pay a ransom of half its value or go to prison until the war is over.

Hope of the Future Lies in Co-operation.

The Farmers' Union, through the columns of the press, wants to thank the American people for the friendship, sympathy and assistance given the cotton farmers in the hour of distress and to direct attention to co-operative methods necessary to permanently assist the marketing of all farm products.

The present emergency presents as grave a situation as ever confronted the American farmer and from the viewpoint of the producer, would seem to justify extraordinary relief measures, even to the point of bending the constitution and straining business rules in order to lift a portion of the burden off the backs of the farmer, for unless something is done to check the invasion of the war forces upon the cotton fields, the pathway of the European pestilence on this continent will be strewn with mortgage homes and famine and poverty will stalk over the southland, filling the highways of industry with refugees and the bankruptcy court with prisoners.

More Pharaohs Needed in Agriculture.

Farm products have no credit and perhaps can never have on a permanent and satisfactory basis unless we build warehouses, cold storage plants, elevators, etc., for without storage and credit facilities, the south is compelled to dump its crop on the market at harvest time. The Farmers' Union in the cotton producing states have for the past ten years persistently advocated the construction of storage facilities. We have built during this period 2,000 warehouses with a capacity of approximately 4,000,000 bales and looking backward the results would seem encouraging, but looking forward, we are able to house less than one-third of the crop and warehouses without a credit system lose 90 per cent of their usefulness. The problem is a gigantic one—too great for the farmer to solve unaided. He must have the assistance of the banker, the merchant and the government.

In production we have reached the high water mark of perfection in the world's history, but our marketing methods are most primitive. In the dawn of history we find agriculture plowing with a forked stick but with a system of warehouses under governmental supervision that made the Egyptians the marvel of civilization, for who has not admired the vision of Joseph and applauded the wisdom of Pharaoh for storing the surplus until demanded by the consumer, but in this age we have too many Josephs who dream and not enough Pharaohs who build.

Saved by His Wit.

The French author Martainville was a royalist and did not hesitate to attack the French revolution and its authorities. Presently, of course, he was summoned to appear before the revolution ary tribunal, with the terrible Fouquier at its head. The revolutionary tribunal at that time did not hesitate to send anybody to the guillotine who had ventured to attack them. Martainville expected to go with the rest of the victims. "What is your name?" asked the revolutionary judge. "Martainville," said the young author. "Martainville!" exclaimed the judge. "You are deceiving us and trying to hide your rank. You are an aristocrat, and your name is De Martainville." "Citizen president," exclaimed the young man. "I am here to be shortened, not to be lengthened. Leave me my name!" A true Frenchman loves a witticism above all things, and the tribunal was so much pleased by Martainville's grim response that it spared his life.

He Forgot.

A young Parisian, noted for his grace and readiness as a second in many duels, had been asked by a friend to accompany him to the mayor's office and affix his signature as a witness to the matrimonial ceremony.

He consented, but when the scene was reached awkwardly forgot himself.

Just as the mayor was ready for the last formalities he broke out to the astonishment of all parties, with the remark:

"Gentlemen, cannot this unhappy affair be arranged? Is there no way of preventing this sad occurrence?"

The Cambodians.

The Cambodians are a docile people, much averse to war. Their language and civilization, unlike those of the remaining peoples of Indo-China, are derived from India, as is also their religion. Their country contains various interesting ruins, the work of the Khmers, a race that has quite disappeared. The ruins at Angkor are remarkably well preserved and are possessed of great beauty.

Coldly Considered.

"You don't seem to attach great importance to enduring fame," said the friend and adviser.

"I have my doubts about it," replied Senator Sorubum. "Enduring fame is what entitles the American Indian to get his picture on all kinds of money without having any opportunity to handle the real cash."—Washington Star

Advice.

FENCES IN MICHIGAN.

Stumps That Are Relics of the Lively Old Lumbering Days.

An easterner visiting Michigan is attracted by the stump fences more than by almost anything else, a writer in American Forestry remarks.

Aside from these stump fences, the farms, the uplands and the marshes are not much different from those of New England. One misses the characteristic stone walls of New England, but finds in their place the most novel fences in the world—those made of stumps that have in recent years been pulled out of the ground by powerful machines constructed for that purpose. The force required to pull such stumps from the ground is enormous, but it is applied slowly, in submission to the decree of nature that what is gained in power must be lost in speed.

These stumps are relics of the liveliest lumbering ever seen in the United States. It ended about thirty years ago in Big Rapids, Grand Rapids and their vicinity. Old timers entertain the visitor by the hour with reminiscences of the amazing number of logs that were cut in that region.

Logging somewhat similar, but not nearly so extensive, still continues in the northern part of Michigan, but does not equal in extent nor in picturesque quality that which formerly took place on the famous Muskegon river.

WHEN BUYING A HORSE.

How to Find Out Whether a Trader Has Cheated You

In Farm and Fireside a contributor says that ordinarily the purchaser of a horse is allowed twenty four hours in which to try and return any horse found unsound. In great horse markets like Chicago a twenty four hour limit for testing is allowed. This contributor tells as follows how to test a horse:

"When a horse has been doped for heaves the disease symptoms will be likely to return in twenty four hours if the horse is given all the drinking water he will take and is fed generously on bulky feed. He can then be thoroughly tested for wind by running and by dragging a wagon with a locked wheel.

"Where cocaine is used to hide lameness its effects will pass off in a few hours. A hypodermic injection of morphine, strychnine or similar drug will pass off in twelve hours or less. Can nabis indica or chloral hydrate makes a horse sleepy for from twelve to eight een hours unless the dose is very large, in which case the effect will last longer. The only sure way to protect yourself is to buy a horse from a reputable dealer and get a written guarantee of soundness signed before a witness."

WINDS THAT WHISTLE.

The Sounds Come Only When the Air Waves Meet Resistance.

Did you ever notice that although you may feel the force of the wind when you are out in it, you do not hear it whistle unless you are close to a building? This is because the sound is produced according to the same principles as apply to the production of the tones of a pipe organ or any instrument on which the tones are produced by blowing.

In order to make the whistling sounds we hear from the wind it is necessary for it to blow against something. That is why we hear it when we are in the house or some other building.

The whistling is caused by the wind blowing past the sharp edge of some obstacle in its path or finding its way through small openings offering some sharp edged resistance.

If you blow through a long tube or pipe you will produce no sound, but if there is an opening with a sharp edge near the end where you blow the blowing will cause a distinct sound. It is on this principle that all small whistles, organ pipes and wind instruments of an orchestra are made.

Another way in which the wind produces sounds is by blowing against objects which vibrate. A curious instance of this is the humming volume of sound produced by the wind blowing through a group of telegraph wires and which may be noted, even when there is not a great force of wind, by placing the ear against a telegraph pole.—Boston Herald

THE "FORLORN HOPE."

Real Meaning of a Misused Term in the Vocabulary of War

In the tales of every war one hears a great deal about "forlorn hopes." The term is one of the most misused in the vocabulary of war. It is commonly understood to mean a desperate venture. It really means "lost troop"—that is, "detached troop."

The word "hope" in the phrase is not an English but a Dutch word. "hoop" meaning literally "heap" and secondarily body of troops. The word "forlorn" represents the Dutch "verloren"—lost. A "forlorn troop" was a detached body of troops thrown out in front of the main line of battle to find the enemy and engage them first. This was the regular sixteenth and seventeenth century practice, and though it was one of the more dangerous kinds of service, it was not desperate or, in the English sense, forlorn.

Nowadays much the same work is done by the detached bodies of cavalry which are thrown out before the main line of battle without communications or supplies to find the enemy. "Capitulation" is another term of war which is very loosely used. It does not mean surrender, but surrender on terms. In fact, it means the terms, not the surrender. It is from the Latin "capitulum" or "heading" (from which is derived our word "chapter"), and a capitulation is a formal treaty of surrender drawn up under a series of headings or chapters embodying the terms on each point.—Manchester Guardian
