

What's In Your Oil Can?

MAYBE your engine's sluggish—doesn't deliver the power it should—gets hot—smokes—and acts up in general.

Did it ever occur to you that it may be the oil you're using?

Any piece of machinery will develop its highest efficiency only when properly lubricated. There's something more to it than simply "greasing her up."

There's an oil that's just right for every part of your car—one that will give you the results you should have. And we're in a position to tell you what it is and supply it.

We're also headquarters for tires and automobile sundries.

A letter from Fay Rayburn was received by his father Tuesday. Fay is holding down a 320 acre claim ten miles south of The Narrows, Harney county. He is busy clearing the sage brush from the first 40 acres of his farm. He will have this done by summer. He reports plenty of work at a fair wage and entire satisfaction with the country. He sent the skin of a strange Oregon animal, a Kangaroo rat, which is the nearest approach to the famous Australian Kangaroo.

Chicken Necessaries.

When chickens are confined to their pens for any length of time, there are three things that are necessary for their well being, and these things are often inaccessible to them. They are pure water, sharp grit and a dust bath. We all know that fowls must have water to keep them alive. They need grit in order to grind their food and keep healthy. They need a dust bath in order to keep themselves free from lice and mites.

POULTRY and EGGS

FEED FOR LAYING HENS.

Dry Mash Mixture That Has Been Proved by Experiment.

The following rations are recommended by the New Jersey agricultural experiment station after years of experimental work and careful testing. They have given exceptionally good results throughout the state. The rations as recommended apply especially to the light active breeds like the Leghorns. Such modifications as are necessary for seasonable feeding and for heavier breeds are described.

Dry mash as mixed for winter feeding:
Wheat bran, 200 pounds; wheat middlings, 200 pounds; ground oats, 100 pounds; cornmeal, 100 pounds; gluten feed, 100 pounds; alfalfa (short cut), 100 pounds; meat scrap (high grade), 200 pounds.

This ration when mixed at home will cost the poultryman about $1.80 per 100 pounds. This dry mash is mixed in bulk and kept before the birds at all times in large self feeding, homemade hoppers. When the molt is going on in the months of August and September it is a good practice to substitute oil meal for the gluten meal in the same proportion. This hastens the growth of feathers and causes them to finish off much better. As soon as the birds get on green range in the spring the alfalfa and meat scrap can be almost entirely eliminated. The extent to which this mash can be modified during the summer will depend upon the range which they have and the character of the food which it affords.

The hen roost herewith illustrated is a cheap, simple affair made of trestles, slats and a low platform, low down for big breeds. Additional trestles may be used to raise the dropping boards off the floor for lighter birds. This roost does not touch the wall and may be taken down and out of the house for cleaning in a few minutes. It is easily moved from one part of the house to another.

When the above dry mash is fed to heavier breeds than Leghorns, such, for example, as Plymouth Rocks and Rhode Island Reds, especially with yearlings and two-year-old hens, the tendency is to take on an excessive amount of body fat. Under these conditions the hopper should be closed during the morning and left open only during the afternoon. This compels the bird to work more in looking for the grain, equal parts by weight of wheat and oats, five pounds of the mixture to each 100 birds, or rather more for the medium weight breeds, fed scattered in the litter in the morning.

COLDS ARE OFTEN MOST SERIOUS STOP POSSIBLE COMPLICATIONS

The disregard of a Cold has often brought many a regret. The fact of Sneezing, Coughing, or a Fever should be warning enough that your system needs immediate attention. Certainly Loss of Sleep is most serious. It is a warning given by Nature. It is man's duty to himself to assist by doing his part.
