CHERRYVILLE

We're Marching on!
The voice of the bull frog is heard in the land.

Miss Lillian B. Averill has accepted a call to teach a school near Klamath Falls and went last week to fill the position.

The P. L. & P. Co., will deposit 400 cords of brush tied in bundles at the dam by sinking them to prevent seepage underneath which is gradually getting worse.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. O. Botkin went to Portland Sunday to visit Mrs. Botkin's mother, who is quite poorly.

Now it is disclosed in the Congressional Record that every dollar in the Panama railroad is owned by the government although it is given out that it is owned by a private company. If it was generally known that this is a government concern and that it is a profitable enterprise—exceedingly so—and admirably conducted, why the government would be asked to engage in it largely all over the country. It is a fact that Uncle Sam will soon begin to build a railroad in Alaska. It is a very desirable proposition to build a railroad there but a very deplorable one to build a railroad in our midst, so say our statesmen, who are nearly all railroad attorneys, sent to congress for the express purpose of serving giant monopolies which are fast reducing the large mass of people to beggary. In the meantime if private companies were building the railroad in Alaska they would be granted a strip of land 10 miles wide on each side of the entire length of the railroad, town sites without end together with a handsome subsidy and the water boys of Wall street would then absorb all the water of the Yukon river in the shape of stocks and bonds and the gullible people would break their necks in their eagerness to buy the rotten stuff. By the same token the railroad attorneys in the U. S. Senate and the House of Representatives would do all in their power to help skin the people. It is a sad commentary on the intelligence of the people that they will continue to be fooled by these leather-lunged and brass-bound flim-flammers, who have no other interest to serve in going to congress but the Trusts.

PLEASANT VALLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Geise of Cedarville were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Kesterson last Sunday evening.

Mrs. Blaine, who has been visiting with her daughter, Mrs. G. M. Laughlin, for the past several months, started last Tuesday for her home at Minneapolis, Kansas.

E. E. Pinkley was doing business in Gresham Tuesday.

John Brown of Gresham was seen on our streets one day recently.

John Putteramer came out from Portland Tuesday to look after his farm at this place. Mr. Putteramer has secured a position with the U. S. Government that will take him to Alaska for several months.

August Rodlin of Montavilla spent a few days with his brother Lewis this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Chilcote and niece, Miss Ruth Waddell of Rock creek attended church at this place last Sunday.

Edw. Kelly of Lents was a Valley visitor one day recently.

I. F. Coffman of Lents is putting in a gravity water system on his place near here. Mr. Coffman is taking the water from a large spring on his place. It requires a seven hundred foot pipe line to carry the water to the house.

P. L. Bliss has got the material on the ground and has commenced the erection of a modern milk house.

Henry Baker is clearing ground upon which to build a new house some time in the not distant future.

P. L. Bliss, E. A. Baker and W. H. Smasbal were in the city to see roadmaster Yeon in regard to getting some much needed work done on the Heiney road.

Mayor Albee has taken a step in the right direction when he starts in to clean the Portland police force. He should have the moral (physical if necessary) support of every decent citizen in the city. So long as we have criminals to execute our laws, so long will we have crime. Judging from the declaration of principles as published in the last issue of the Herald, the mayor will certainly get the encouragement and support of this paper in his campaign for a clean town. May success crown their efforts is our prayer.

Pleasant Valley Grange held exercises in honor of Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays Saturday at its regular meeting. J. J. Johnson, master of Evening Star Grange, delivered the address on Washington. Mrs. H. L. Vall, State Grange deputy, told what is being done in the extension department. Paul Bliss made an address on "Preparing the Soil," and Paul Uhlig spoke on "Spraying." G. N. Sager was in charge of the program. The meeting was attended by 55 members and several visitors.

Scientific Farming

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE.

Aid Given by Farmers in Fighting This Widespread Trouble.

[Prepared by the United States department of agriculture.]

The recent lifting of the foot and mouth quarantines from large areas previously closed and the modification of the quarantines in still other sections has been made possible by the co-operation not only of the various state officials, but of farmers and stockmen themselves. Where this co-operation has been most in evidence progress in the eradication of the disease has been most rapid. The federal authorities have of course control over the movement of live stock in interstate commerce only. The local quarantines are established and enforced by the state. Their efficiency depends in great measure upon the willingness of the people to submit to the necessary restrictions.

Indiana and Michigan are cited as instances of the importance in this respect of public opinion. In Michigan the first herd was slaughtered on Oct. 19. Cases of the disease existed in fifteen Michigan counties and in eighteen in Indiana. In all 330 herds were affected. Sixty days later these herds had all been slaughtered and the infected premises cleaned and freed from disease. In the interval there had been only a few scattering instances—half a dozen possibly—of the plague spreading from these different centers of infection to neighboring farms.

BARN PREPARED FOR FUMIGATION.

The people not only observed the quarantine regulations, but they did all in their power to expedite the work of slaughter. In many cases they had the ditches in which the animals were to be buried dug and waiting for the killing gangs. As a rule, no objection was taken to the appraiser's valuation of the condemned stock, which is the more surprising in view of the fact that so little was generally known of the seriousness of the disease. The farmers did not want to part with their stock. They saw that the sore mouths and feet grew better, and they had had no experience with the after effects of the pestilence—the constant aborting, the failure to produce milk, the ability to disseminate disease months after the visible symptoms had disappeared. Nevertheless they accepted the situation, helping instead of hindering.

In only a very few cases was there any attempt to conceal the existence of the disease—in fact, public opinion was so strongly against this that it was practically impossible to do so. In one instance a man fed some skim-milk from a creamery to a calf, which later developed foot and mouth disease. It occurred to him to kill the calf and say nothing about the matter. The neighbors, however, obtained some inkling of the facts and notified the authorities. After he had been forced to admit that he had killed the calf the body was dug up and unmistakable marks of the disease found upon it. Within two weeks all the rest of the herd was infected and had to be killed. In addition, the owner was fined $20 or so for breaking the quarantine regulations. The sentiment of the whole community, it should be noted, was against him.

From such experiences live stock authorities are more than ever convinced that skim-milk should invariably be sterilized. The danger from the foot and mouth disease is, of course, a passing one. Previous epidemics have been stamped out, and there is no reason to suppose that this one will not be. Tuberculosis, however, is a permanent menace. Its symptoms are not so immediately noticeable, and it is therefore more difficult to trace the origin of the infection, but there is no doubt that it is frequently disseminated in skim-milk in the same way that the foot and mouth disease was in the instances described.

Together with the creameries, public sales of live stock have proved themselves most dangerous agents in spreading foot and mouth disease. In Indiana and Michigan the state authorities absolutely prohibited the holding of such sales in or adjacent to areas where the disease existed. The spread of the contagion in other states where this prohibition was not enforced shows the value of the precaution, but it requires strong and local action on the part of the local authorities.

OREGON NEWS NOTES

The establishment of a plant for the manufacture of potato starch is being discussed by the business men of Redmond, Madras and other Central Oregon points. As large areas of that part of the state are peculiarly adapted to the production of spuds, and as unfavorable markets and the usual percentage of culls sometimes make the business unprofitable, it is proposed to use any surplus and all culls in making starch, of which central Oregon potatoes are said to contain an average of 18 percent. A factory costing $10,000 should care for all cull potatoes from 5,000 acres.

The co-operative cannery at Newberg paid to farmers of that region $24,454 last year, practically all of it for produce which would otherwise have been lost. The cannery made a net profit of about $3,000, which was better than expected for the first year. Co-operative establishments of this kind are likely to prove the salvation of thousands of Oregon farmers.

The jetty at Nehalem is completed for about 1,200 feet and is already having a marked effect upon the channel. Rock is now being dumped into about 20 feet of water.

The Ancient Greek.
No greater gift could be made to our modern world than the rediscovery of the Greek physical supremacy. The secret of the method by which, for one brief period, they realized perfection was long since lost, no one knows how. At present so little do we understand the principles of training which guided the Greek in his games, in his battles and his dances, and made the proportions of his figure different from ours of today, that Greek sculpture is in reality a puzzle to us. Certain postures fixed by the Greek sculptor seem to us contortions, bordering on physical impossibilities. There is always a terrific controversy over the restoration of Greek sculpture, and even then the arms and heads and legs we supply never look right.—New York Times.
