He Remembered. Mrs. Bickers was reading the latest war news from across the pond. "Let me see," she mused, "when was it war was declared?" "Is it possible, my dear," rejoined her husband, "that you have forgotten we were married June 3, 1905?"

Natural Presumption. Mrs. Gordon was spending some time at Palm Beach, and during her stay she wrote her husband saying: "Dear Will—I inclose hotel bill." Will wrote back: "Dear Edith—I inclose check, but please don't buy any more hotels at this price."

WOMAN COULD HARDLY STAND

Because of Terrible Backache. Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I suffered from displacement and inflammation, and had such pains in my sides, and terrible backache so that I could hardly stand. I took six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now I can do any amount of work, sleep good, eat good, and don't have a bit of trouble. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to every suffering woman."—Mrs. HARRY FISHER, 1625 Dounton St., Nicetown, Pa.

Another Woman's Case. Providence, R. I.—"I cannot speak too highly of your Vegetable Compound as it has done wonders for me and I would not be without it. I had a displacement, bearing down, and backache, until I could hardly stand and was thoroughly run down when I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me and I am in the best of health at present. I work in a factory all day long besides doing my housework so you can see what it has done for me. I give you permission to publish my name and I speak of your Vegetable Compound to many of my friends."—Mrs. ABEL LAWSON, 126 Lippitt St., Providence, R. I.

Danger Signals to Women are what one physician called backache, headache, nervousness, and the blues. In many cases they are symptoms of some female derangement or an inflammatory, ulcerative condition, which may be overcome by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands of American women willingly testify to its virtue.

SUBMARINE NOT NEW BOOKS OF THE PAST

As Far Back as 1758 Inventors Had the Idea.

Frenchman Was the First to Approach the Subject With Anything Like Practical Model, Though It Failed.

The first submarine was built in 1758. An interesting parallel lies between the histories of the aeroplane and the submarine, both accepted as intensely modern inventions of military science, but both the fruits of centuries of striving and experiment. In both devices the one obstacle which for so many hundreds of years prevented success was the problem of motive power. This is shown as particularly true since the installation of a modern gasoline motor in the old Langley cellular "plane," proving the principles of the early inventor were correct.

Thus we find that the underwater boat built by a Frenchman named De Son in the early seventeenth century was a complete success except that it would not run.

The De Son vessel, built at Rotterdam, was 72 feet in length, with a maximum height of 12 feet and beam of 8 feet, tapering to points at the end, being not unlike the modern submarine in many of its lines.

De Son designed his boat to operate under water with a clockwork motor and to hold an air supply for the crew sufficient for three hours. The clockwork was supposed to turn a large paddle wheel and propel the boat for eight hours on one winding.

This quaint submarine was armed with iron pointed at the ends, with which to ram ships and crush their hulls under water.

De Son had unlimited faith in his vessel and expressed it in the following flow of ancient press agency, as translated from an old Dutch print:

"The inventor of this ship will undertake to destroy in a single day a hundred vessels, and such destruction could not be prevented by fire, storm, bad weather or the force of the waves, saving only that the Almighty should otherwise will it. Vain would it be for ships lying in harbor to be regarded as safe, for the inventor could reach anywhere unless prevented by betrayal. None but him could control the craft. Therefore it may truly be called the lightning of the sea. Its power shall be proved by a trip to the East Indies in six weeks or to France and back in a day, for fast as a bird fleeth can one travel in this boat."

However, when the boat was launched it refused to move. The torque of the clock motor was not able to turn the paddle wheel propeller in water, although the air test had been promising.

But from this seed of thought today the world has submarines which can run nine knots an hour under the sea many hours and which have a cruising range of nearly 3,000 miles.

The Puritan Fallacy. A modern young poet named Conrad Aiken is versifying about a steamer trip on Long Island sound, and he finds the night full of "Beauty so keen it seemed it must have sinned." It is odd to encounter at this late day so perfect an expression of the great Puritan fallacy, the notion that loveliness and sensitiveness are more apt to be wrong, and soberness and hardness right; that joy in life is closely allied to wickedness, and that a sad spirit is almost necessarily righteous. This doctrine is part of the once general creed that life on this earth is less a spiritual experience than the carrying out of a hard technical contract—and that creed is wrong. The New England frame of mind has contributed some great qualities to our national character, but has failed to see clearly that the beauty of the earth is anything more than a temptation to the human soul. This failure has had the most serious consequences in discrediting religious faith and in imposing hypocrisy upon morals. It is part of the real business of our day to shake off these dusts of doctrine and to see this world for what it is, a home for the heart and soul of man, "serviceable for the life that now is; not, it may be, without promise of that which is to come."—Collier's.

Most of Us Can Remember Sunday School Favorites.

Heroes of Most of Them Were Possibly Good, but Their Influence as a General Thing Was for the Best.

Do you remember the books you used to draw from the Sunday school library—how many years ago was it? Those pious stories of impossible boys who died young, with a picture on the front page showing Little Willie being

Are You Too Fat? If you are too stout don't take fat-reducing medicines. Cut down on your diet, get out of-door exercise, and you will assume normal lines and reduce to normal weight. Avoid sweets, eggs, cream, fat meats, and especially potatoes. Live mainly on lettuce, spinach, cabbage, lean meats, young onions, celery, tomatoes, etc. Take salted toast instead of bread and butter. If you cease to give your body fat-making foods you will cease creating fat cells. It is no trick to reduce if you practice self-denial.

Method. There is no one able or anxious to deny the value of a method. But there are many who realize that method is not everything, and that strict adherence to it sometimes becomes a nuisance. There is a madness in hard and fast rules. The strict adherence to some method is almost as bad as having no method at all. We should remember that our actions have, at all times, to be guided by circumstances.

Natural Result of Cross. One day Luther Burbank was walking in his garden, when he was accosted by an officious acquaintance, who said: "Well, what are you working on now?" "Trying to cross an eggplant and milkweed," said Mr. Burbank. "And what under heaven do you expect to get from that?" Mr. Burbank calmly resumed his walk. "Custard pie," he said.

A Problem of the Life to Come. Small Johnny was wriggling and twisting in a vain endeavor to put his arms through the sleeves of an undergarment and then get it over his head. After several futile attempts he called out to his mother: "Say, mamma, when I get to be an angel, and have wings, I don't see how I'll ever get my shirt on!"

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

Sympathy. That man has the widest influence who has the deepest sympathy, for men open their hearts to sympathy as flowers open to the sun. Said Emerson: " 'Tis good to give a stranger a meal, or a night's lodging. 'Tis better to be hospitable to his good meaning and thought, and give courage to a companion."

Make Our Own Wrongs. We make ourselves more injuries than are offered to us; they many times pass for wrongs in our own thoughts, that were never meant so by the heart of him that speaketh. The apprehension of wrong hurts more than the sharpest part of the wrong done.—Feltman.

Definition of a Drop. In the British Pharmacopoeia a "drop" is defined as coming from a tube of which the external diameter is exactly three millimeters, 20 such drops of water at 15 degrees Centigrade being equivalent to one milliliter or cubic centimeter.

Take it as it is. Thou must content thyself to see the world imperfect as it is. Thou wilt never have any quiet if thou vexest thyself because thou canst not bring mankind to that exact notion of things and rule of life which thou hast formed in thy own mind.—Faller.

Opal is Deadly Omen. The superstition has come down the ages that to find an opal is a deadly omen. It means that you have picked up someone else's misfortune. "Better let the stone lie, no matter what its value may be," is an old adage.

Daily Thought. Never speak ill of a person unless you are sure of your fact! and, even if you could swear to it, ask yourself: "Why do I make it known?"—K. Lavater.

Artistic Cuff Protector. Take paper napkins and fold each one diagonally. Fold one of these napkins about either cuff and fasten them with cuff pins. They are soft and pliable and will stay in place beautifully.

Opinions React. A man cannot speak but he judges and reveals himself.—With his will, or against his will, he draws his portrait to the eye of others by every word.—Every opinion reacts on him who utters it.—Emerson.

Daily Thought. They can because they think they can.—Virgil

It is a witty and a keen saying that "pleasant memories must be arranged for in advance." The way to have a happy road to look back over is to make it happy as one travels along, by doing kindly and loving things, and by recognizing all the possible opportunities for cheer and courage.
