Nature's Handiwork.

The down upon the peach or plum is so delicate and so thickly set that one cannot touch the fruit with a needle's point without breaking the tender stalk, and yet the dew of the night covers the whole surface of the fruit and disappears in the morning, leaving the gossamer growth more orderly and beautiful than before. The dew covers every leaf of the giant oak, and the mighty tree drinks in the refreshing moisture to its thirsty heart through millions of pores, and the iron trunk that has withstood a thousand storms is made stronger by the gentle strength of the dew. The silent fall of the dew is caused and controlled by agencies of the most tremendous power. The same power which shakes a whole continent with its subterranean thunder is the same as that which encircles the finest filament of thistle-down with a coronet of dewy gems so small that they do not bend the delicate stalks with their weight.—London Globe.

Port Arthur's Downfall.

One of the most dramatic surrenders in military history was that of Port Arthur during the Russo-Japanese war. For five months the Russians, under General Stoessel, defended the city into which they had been forced by the fierce onslaughts of the Japanese. It was expected that the czar's troops, 25,000 strong and well provisioned, would safely hold Port Arthur until relief came. After twenty weeks of siege, however, Stoessel raised the white flag and the Japanese marched into the city. General Stoessel was tried for treason in connection with the surrender, and he was sentenced to death, for it was stated that the Russians had sufficient food and ammunition in Port Arthur to have continued their defense for some time. The czar commuted the sentence on Stoessel to one of ten years' imprisonment, but the disgrace broke his health and he died, paralyzed and dumb.

An Unimposing Genius.

Those who imagine there is some necessary connection between literary genius and inches will have to explain away the case of Alexander Pope. Pope was exactly four feet six inches high. He was humpbacked and deformed. According to one of Lord Oxford's servants, he was "so weak as to stand in perpetual need of female attendance; extremely sensible of cold, so that he wore a kind of fur doublet under a skirt of very coarse, warm linen, with fine sleeves. When he rose he was invested in a bodice made of stiff canvas, being hardly able to stand erect till it was laced, and he then put on a flannel waistcoat. One side was contracted. His legs were so slender that he enlarged their bulk with three pairs of stockings, which were drawn on and off by the maid, for he was not able to dress or undress himself."—London Chronicle.

An Easy Choice.

Bishop Sanford Olmsted said at a dinner party in Denver:
"The charge that the church is governed by mercenary motives is an insidious one. I think this charge was best answered by the prison chaplain.
"A chaplain was addressing a congregation of prisoners, many of whom had given more than one proof that they were profiting by his visits. But there was a certain rough, brutal looking fellow, who always scoffed and sneered. And today this fellow, when the chaplain greeted him, said:
"No, I don't want to shake hands with you, parson. You only preach for money."
"Very good, my friend; have it so," the chaplain answered. "I preach for money. You steal for money. Let God choose between us."—Washington Star.
