GRANGER FIELD DAY SATURDAY

Program Begins Early, Continues All Day—Music, Speaking, Sports, Picnic, Dinner, and Farmer's Band.

People who will attend the picnic at Gresham, Saturday, and that includes pretty near every farmer in the east end of the county, and a good many other people, will bear in mind that the program begins at 10:30 in the morning. There will be music by a big chorus, instrumental music by Pleasant Home sixteen piece band; speaking by Mayor Stapleton of Gresham, by C. E. Spence, Master of the State Grange, and Governor Withycombe will probably be there with a good snappy short talk. The committee on amusements has been busy and they will keep things humming during the afternoon. Not the least important will be the dinner. About 2000 people will join in one of the biggest feasts ever put on in this country. Of course if you are going you had better take a cake or two, some sandwiches, deviled eggs, spring chicken, dill pickles and grape juice. There will be coffee and ice cream, peanuts and popcorn, candy and other confections for sale on the grounds. Water is free. Admission is free. The contests are free. The fun is free and you will be free to go and come when you please.—10:30 sharp.

MILLARD AVENUE S. S. ENTERTAINED

On Monday evening, July 12, more than 30 members of the Millard Avenue Presbyterian Church Sunday School met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lope at 7920-64 Ave. S. E. for the regular monthly Workers Conference of the school. Miss Neta Traxler and Miss Mildred McIntosh, the delegates sent by the King's daughters Class of the school, to attend the older girls conference at Salem, made interesting and enthusiastic reports from the conference.

Plans are being completed by the several teachers of the school for spending a day of outing at the parks with their respective classes. The annual picnic of the school was held some time ago.

The King's Daughters were authorized to extend to Mrs. Mansfield, an international worker of the national order of King's Daughters, who is touring the Northwest, to visit Portland. The Millard Avenue Class was the first society of the kind organized in the state of Oregon.

Following the transaction of the usual routine, business reports of committees were received and discussed. Preliminary steps were taken for the observance of the fall rally day.

The conference accepted the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Butters of 4938-72d St., S. E. to meet at their home August 2.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Pownder, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Butters, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lope, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Williams, Mrs. J. F. McLoney, Mrs. L. C. Jordan, Mrs. H. D. Murray, Rev. W. H. Amos, Neil M. Robertson, the Misses Elsie Strang, Essie Strang, Grace Spaulding, Ella Spaulding, Claire Burch, Lois Burch, Mildred McIntosh, Neta Traxler, Bernice Paisley, Ruth Murray, Beulah Miller, and Jennette Pound.

In serving refreshments Mr. and Mrs. Lope were assisted by Miss Beulah Miller and Miss Elsie Strang.

Peter's Version.
On the last day of school prizes were distributed at Peter's school. When the little boy returned home the mother was entertaining callers.

"Well, Peter," asked one of the callers, "did you get a prize?"

"No," replied Peter, "but I got horrible mention."—New York Times.

Bluff.
"Bah!" sneered the blustering man. "Bluff is the thing. A man can bluff his way through life."

"But," said the conservative, "if you couldn't swim and fell in you couldn't bluff the river for a second."—Livingston Lance.

And No Wonder.
"What made that stout woman so furious?"

"Just as she was getting on the subway train the gateman said 'Both gates, lady.'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

NORTHWEST AUTO MEET JULY 24 AND 25

On next Saturday and Sunday, July 24th and 25th, the Northwest Automobile Association will stage its third Inter-City Auto Race Meet at the Rose City Speedway. Coming, as it does, directly after the Tacoma Speedway Meet of July 4th and 5th, when almost every racing machine in the Pacific Northwest was prepared for the Inter-City Century, or Hundred-mile event, it gives the Portland Meet a list of entries of more and better racing machines than have ever before visited this city for a race meet.

On Saturday pretty Dolly Young, a young Portland girl, will ride with Frank Elliott in the mile-against-time event, and on Sunday she will ride an exhibition mile with Jim Parsons, the Speed King of the Northwest. Aviator Louis T. Barin of Portland will fly from Vancouver Barracks to the Speedway, and make exhibition flights.

Engine Trouble

Of the many ways in which the ignition may give trouble, only one, the improper timing of the spark, will be considered now. When an engine leaves the factory, the ignitor trip is adjusted so that ignition takes place just a little before the end of the compression stroke. This little may vary from ten to forty degrees, or even more, according to the rated speed of the engine. The ignition should occur just early enough to give the gases time to burn and thus be ready to expand with full force when the piston starts back on the power stroke. If ignition takes place later, the gases do not have time to properly burn before the momentum of the fly wheel moves the piston out and the force of expansion is largely lost. Little power can be obtained from the engine under such conditions.

Too early a spark will cause the gases to expand before the engine reaches dead center causing the gases to actually work against the motion of the fly wheels. This is detected by pounding in the cylinder.

The exact position must be found for each make of engine. For an engine rated at 400 R. P. M. the spark should occur about fifteen degrees to twenty degrees before the dead center. When an engine has been used for some time the ignitor trip may have worn or slipped from its original position. Readjusting this by sliding the ignitor trip clamp a very short distance will often cause the engine to develop 25 to 50 percent more power.—E. R. Gross.

To Dress a Razor Strop

To put a razor's edge in condition to cut easily and smoothly remove all dirt and coarse grit from both the sharpening and the finishing sides of the strop and then dress as follows: On the sharpening surface spread a light coat of superfine flour of emery and on the finishing surface apply some rouge (ferric oxide). The commercial grades of these materials as purchased at the drug stores are not sufficiently fine and uniform to be used without preparation. Any coarse grit ruins the edge of the razor while the uniform, fine grit produces the tiny, keen cutting teeth.

Upon a sheet of smooth paper spread a quantity of the emery flour or the rouge from which it is desired to secure the finest particles. Shake it well around over the paper and then tip the sheet so that the material slides off. A fine dust will then be seen clinging to the surface of the paper. This dust may then be transferred with the finger tips to the surface of the strop and worked into the leather. The occasional application of "3 in 1" oil to the finishing side of the strop will prevent glazing and assist in the production of a keen edge.—L. S. Foltz.

JOHN H. DORMAN SUCCUMBS TO DISEASE

John H. Dorman of Firland was called to his last rest shortly after midnight Tuesday. He had been feeling indisposed during the evening, took suddenly worse late at night and died soon after. He had been about his business during the day before and was not considered dangerous. Most of his acquaintances were aware of a serious lingering disease that has threatened him for some time and which his physician announced some time ago would overcome him within six months.

Mr. Dorman was well known throughout Mt. Scott, where he has lived for several years. He was in the real estate business at Firland for a long time, well known and equally as well liked. He was prominent as a Mason and a member of the Modern Woodmen, of which lodge he has been secretary for the past year.

His family, left to mourn him consists of his wife, Amanda Dorman, and two children aged four years, and an infant of two months. He also has a brother and sister in the east.

Mr. Dorman carried some insurance in the Woodmen. The funeral will probably be held some time Friday from Lerch's and will be in charge of the Masonic order. Friends are invited to attend.

The family have the sympathies of many neighbors and friends.

MINERAL MATTER AND THE SQUARE MEAL

While in attendance at a Farmers' Institute the writer was greatly impressed with the intense interest shown in the discussion of the balanced ration for the domestic animal. Never had she witnessed at any public meeting, so great anxiety for the balancing of ration of the human animal. One phase of the discussion in which there was particular interest, was that bearing on supply of mineral matter. In the planning of the family dietary it is no less essential that attention be given to the food sources of the many mineral constituents, if the welfare of the human animal is to be safe guarded. If the family dietary is to take into account the welfare of the child, then it is especially important that the supply of mineral matter be not left to chance. Recent dietary studies indicate that there should be a generous supply of foods in which these several elements, iron, phosphorus and calcium do occur. Foods rich in iron are egg yolk, lean meat, spinach, fruits and cereal grains. Generous use of milk, legumes, celery, cabbage and cereals will insure an adequate supply of calcium salts to the body. Phosphorus contained in the egg is considered to be more completely utilized than that derived from any other source. It should be understood too, that the foods named as the generous source of supply of one mineral constituent named, does also supply other mineral constituents.

Foods which are hard to digest, such as pie or cabbage, when placed in the lunch of the school child help him to get low grades. Why? Because digestion of these foods draws the blood from the brain for several hours.

LENTS SEES REAL SCRAP

Dr. Nelson and John Hall Produce the Sensation of the Last Week. Hall Invites a Fight and Nelson Proves Game.

People around Lents were very much interested Saturday over a real fight, staged without seconds, at the bank corner on 92d street and the car line, in which Dr. Nelson at the invitation of John Hall proved himself amply able to protect his person and name. About the first thing anyone knew about it Hall was on his hands and knees and Doc was astride him and at the same time trying to pound a little understanding into Hall's brass bound cranium. Doc got off with a bruised cheek; Hall with a badly jammed face and mouth. Doc was a first round winner and Hall is not likely to offer another challenge. Lents people generally are well pleased with the results. Doc is the hero of the hour and there is little sympathy for the fellow with the black eye.

Promptly following the scrap the combatants were invited to visit the city clerk where Doc had a warrant issued against Hall for assault. The case was called for nine o'clock Monday morning but Hall decided he needed protection and secured Attorney George Hall for his assistance, and asked for a continuance until Wednesday afternoon at three. Nelson has retained C. M. Idleman and the prospects are fair for a lively procedure in court.

The whole affair seems to have grown out of some remarks Dr. Nelson had made in reference to Hall's connection with the estate of a widow woman who recently died in Lents. Hall was appointed administrator of the estate, and at the urgent representations of the brothers of the deceased woman, before the probate court, Hall resigned his appointment as executor of her estate. Incidents connected with the affair, and Hall's relations with it outraged Nelson's sense of propriety and he has spoken freely concerning the matter. Hall was evidently much disappointed with the turn affairs had taken. He had things outlined for a soft snap and to be relieved of it made him sore through and through. He had made several remarks to acquaintances uncomplimentary to Doc, of which the latter had been informed. Saturday morning about ten, Hall was standing at the corner near the bank when Doc came along. As Doc passed, Hall mumbled out a string of unspeakable epithets which Doc turned to stop. As he turned Hall struck him in the face. Then the proceedings became lively and Hall was amply remunerated for the bad gas he had exploded.

Dr. Nelson now threatens to see the thing clear through and to force Hall to account for his actions toward the woman mentioned, and for a sum of money he got from her shortly before her death, which was to have been applied on expenses incidental to her illness. This money Nelson says, cannot, or has not been accounted for. People who have been acquainted with Hall's relation to the woman say he has been on extremely good terms with her for many months and that he seemed to have her completely in his power; that he took advantage of this condition to borrow money of her from time to time, and that he finally dictated the will she made, which was extremely liberal in its terms. It provided that Hall should be executor of the will without bond, and that he should have authority to dispose of the property without order from any court, for the use of the children, as he might see fit. Immediately following the acceptance of the will, Hall secured her signature to a check for $75, ten of which he left for the use of the family. Nelson says the remainder of the money has not been accounted for, altho a month has passed.

A more complete analysis of the whole story might be made except for consideration of the deceased. Suffice to say, the Herald has known more or less about the matter for a year but hoped it would be adjusted without publicity. Altho the woman was buried a month ago the affair did not reach a climax until Saturday.

At the trial on Wednesday Hall was fined $15 and costs. Nelson says there is more to follow.
