The Geo. T. Moore property at 4825 92d street, came near being destroyed by fire on Wednesday night about 4 o'clock. A member of the family was sick and while heating some water a pile of mattresses caught fire. An alarm at the Holway fire bell brought neighbors and members of the Lents Department. The mattresses were carried to the street and the house was saved. Bedding and rugs were injured.

Dr. E. L. Sells of Lents has accepted a position on the faculty of the Portland College of Optometry, to fill the chair of Anatomy, Applied Optometry, and Laboratory. Dr. Sells is a licensed practitioner of this state, a graduate of New York College of Optometry, and a post graduate of King's College, Cleveland, Ohio, class of 1900. He is well known around Lents and his selection on the faculty is well merited.

Second Avenue people, Lents, have decided that this is not a good time to improve their sidewalks. A petition to lay walks along that street south of the car track was signed by 64 percent of the property owners. Plans were prepared and then a remonstrance carrying 65 percent of the people killed the movement. Most people have about all the burdens they can take care of just now without adding to their embarrassment.

Work on the new Masonic building at Heppner has been started.

COUGHS THAT ARE STOPPED!

Careful people see that they are stopped. Dr. King's New Discovery is a remedy of tried merit. It has held its own on the market for 46 years. Youth and old age testify to its soothing and healing qualities. Pneumonia and lung troubles are often caused by delay of treatment. Dr. King's New Discovery stops those hacking coughs and relieves the grippe tendencies. Money back if it fails. 50c. and $1.00.

FURNISHING A ROOM.

Try to Convey the Impression of Repose and Hominess.

The furniture which we select should be designed for its livable qualities. It is not a question of whether the room is furnished consistently with Louis XVI, furniture or with empire or with something else, but whether the furniture combines with the walls and floors and ceiling to complete a room with a single impression—hominess, restfulness, repose.

Now, repose and restfulness depend very largely upon color harmonies, and it is therefore well that our furniture harmonize in this respect. A room which contains a chair or two in walnut, others in mahogany and tamed oak and a sofa in golden oak cannot help being bad. Such a room is bound to affect the nerves of every sensitive person who comes into the room.

For this reason a room should be very predominantly mahogany in color, very predominantly tamed oak or very predominantly something else, but it should not be a mixture. With a paneled interior of gray, mahogany will go very beautifully, whether it be Chippendale, Sheraton or colonial or all three mixed.—Lionel Robertson and T. C. O'Donnell in Good Health.

GOOD BOOKS.

When Personally Owned They Gather a Wealth of Association.

Cultivated men and women have always good books among their most valued possessions, and one cannot believe that this taste can be sacrificed without definite loss to our civilization.

The spoken word can never supplant the written word, and in fact the present tendency is all toward substituting print for speech. Nor can reading in public places take the place of reading one's own books in the quiet of one's home. Books that are owned wait patiently on the reader's leisure, and to have just the book one wants when one wants it must remain one of the supreme luxuries of a cultivated life.

Books, too, when personally owned, writes Earl Barnes in the Atlantic, gather around themselves a wealth of personal associations. The very binding, paper and title page recall the conditions under which the book came into our possession. As we open its pages we remember the last time we read it, the place and circumstances and the people with whom we discussed it. Books have personality, and they must always remain the warm friends of their possessors.

Donizetti and Coffee.

Donizetti, composer of "Lucia di Lammermoor," sought inspiration in the coffeepot. It would be interesting to know accurately the total amount of coffee this erratic genius managed to consume during his short career. It was his habit to shut himself up in his room with writing materials and three or four coffeepots full of steaming coffee. When these were emptied he ordered in three or four more and, these disposed of in their turn, another three or four. His biographer says that the amount of coffee he drank was "fabulous," and one can well believe it. The effect on his once fine constitution was deplorable. His face shrivelled and turned yellow, his lips became black, and with the inevitable breakdown of his nervous system his genius fell rapidly into premature decay.

Jaggery Sugar.

Though a Tamil poem enumerates 800 ways in which the Palmyra palm may be used, one of its most interesting uses is the production of a sugar called jaggery. This is the result of boiling down the fresh juice and is one of the chief sugars of South India. Four or five quarts per tree per day is the yield for four or five months. Once in every three years the sap drawing process is omitted, as otherwise the tree would die. The tree begins to yield at fifteen years and continues for about fifty years. The female tree yields about twice as much sap as the male. Three quarts of this sap make one pound of sugar or jaggery, which is the chief sugar used by the poor classes of India.—Argonaut.

Wisdom.

An old Scotchwoman sent her little boy to the corner grocer's after a quarter's worth of corn sirup. She gave him the money and two jugs, either of which would have been ample to carry the sirup.

"Why did you give him two jugs?" asked a visiting neighbor.

"Weel, ye see, it's this way. If I gie him twa jugs to carry he kinna dip his wee fingers in the sirup en route home."—Pittsburgh Press.

A Short Christmas.

"Christmas day is only three hours long in the Finnish town of Tornen," said a traveler. "I spent last Christmas there. At sunrise I got up to see my presents and to read my Christmas mail, and night had fallen before I got through breakfast."

Snare For the Unwary.

He—Why does old Miss Tittletattle use an ear trumpet? Is she deaf? She—Not a bit. She employs that instrument as a bluff and to induce people to talk freely in her presence.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.
