SANTA CLARA WRECK EFFECTS LENTS WOMAN

The breaking of the steering gear of the steamer Santa Clara as she entered the Coos Bay Harbor ended in the wreck of the vessel and the death of at least eight of the passengers and one of those, Mrs. D. H. Thorne, was a sister of Mrs. C. C. Wiley of Lents. Mrs. Thorne and her husband have been living at Hood River on a fruit farm and running a little store in connection with it. They recently lost part of their property by fire, then they sold out and were on the way to locate in or near Eureka, California. Just previous to starting they had paid the Wileys a visit in Lents. Mrs. Thorne was a Lents visitor once before this year and made a number of friends in town. She had been a prominent grange worker at Hood River. Her loss will be keenly felt by many relatives and friends as she was an especially bright and interesting woman.

Brighten The Kitchen

One wonders at the housekeeper who chooses for their kitchen walls and woodwork a dingy grey or brown or some other dark, dull color that will not show the dirt. Are they better housekeepers because the dirt, which is surely there, does not show? Would these same women wear black dresses and aprons when doing the cooking and feel that they were clean because they did not look soiled?

The kitchen should be the cleanest, sunniest, and most cheerful room in the house. It is here the housekeeper spends most of her time, and it is here the food is prepared and often served. It is not always possible to have the kitchen located so as to get the best light, but a dark room may be much improved by using the proper colors. In a Minnesota town the school kitchen had windows on the east side only. Half of them were on a court and the others against a hill, but the use of a deep cream tint on the ceiling, a buff for the walls, and woodwork of southern pine finished in the natural color and varnished, the effect of sunshine was given even on the dull, short days of the northern winter.

If there is much sunshine in the kitchen white or blue may be used; but on the north side of the house use buff or warm, yellowish tan. The increased cheerfulness and better spirits of the housekeeper will mean much to the entire family, and her work will not be increased by the new color scheme because a sunny, pleasant workshop lightens every task.—M. GILBERT

The Parent-Teacher Association of District 45 will have its monthly meeting in the school house at Gilbert Station, Friday afternoon Nov. 12th at 3:15 p. m. Mrs. Ferris will lead a discussion on "Making the School Building and Grounds More Attractive." Miss Davis' third grade pupils will furnish part of the afternoon's program.

A very successful entertainment was given by the school and Epworth League Friday evening in the school house. The program was given by the school under the direction of Professor Ager, after which a cafeteria dinner was served by the League. The remainder of the evening was spent in playing games. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Height are the parents of a little son born Thursday morning.

Fred Dozier, who has been appointed as delegate for the Bennett Chapel Epworth League expects to leave Friday for Salem, where he will attend the district convention of the Edworth League held in that place.

Mr. R. Lozier moved to Portland, Wednesday.

Mr. Clark and family have moved in to their residence on Foster Road.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is completely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

Prominent Oddfellow Buried

Oddfellows and Rebekahs throughout this county are familiar with the name of Thomas Carr. Mr. Carr made his home at the Oddfellow's home in Portland for several years, coming there from Jacksonville, Oregon. He was one of the most familiar members in the city. There was scarcely ever an Oddfellow or Rebekah affair of any sort that he did not attend, and he made a good many visits to the regular meetings. He was very enthusiastic in his commendation of Oddfellowship and never missed an opportunity to speak for the order. But the eighty-two years since he first caught the light of day in London, England, and years were heavy on him and life's burdens finally wore him out. He was laid to rest in Mt. Scott cemetery last Saturday afternoon. But his memory will remain dear to a large number of his lodge friends for many months.

Mr. Carr became an Oddfellow in 1876.

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR THOSE WHO FURNISH COPY FOR PRINTERS

1. Write legibly. It doesn't seem that such an admonition should be necessary; but half the copy handed in, has words hard to make out, and spelling that has to be guessed at.
2. Write on but one side of the paper. Murder isn't much worse than writing upon both sides of the paper.
3. Do not abbreviate words in your copy that you do not want abbreviated in print. The printer, you know, is expected to follow copy.
4. Be consistent in the use of capitals. Do not use capitals unless they are really necessary. Capitals are for emphasis. Capitalizing everything soon makes capitals ineffective.
5. Be sure of the spelling of proper names. People are mighty touchy about the way their names are spelled. Misspell a person's name a second time, especially after ye editor's attention has been called to the spelling, and the paper has lost caste with that family and all the near relatives.
6. Be more than careful in the use of punctuation marks. Use is their only excuse for being, but never use punctuation marks unless they are needed. They are for the purpose of making the meaning clear, and for that, only.
7. Write the news. "News is anything timely that interests a number of people; and the best news is that which has the greatest interest for the greatest number."
8. If you use more than one sheet of paper, let the topic be mentioned on each sheet. Copy has a habit of getting out of order, but it should be an easy matter to get it in order again. It will be easy if each sheet has a heading.
9. Don't use the same old expression, even though you are writing of similar events. Often, local news items give the impression that the reporter has a book full of standard forms, "ready to wear," and that for each different local, he merely fills in different names and dates.
10. Be sure that the event you write up so fully and fluently, actually has taken place. We frequently read elaborate descriptions of affairs that never occurred.

Obey these ten commandments and make the printers and editors your worshipful servants forever.—B. F. C.

Recovered Manuscripts.

The Magna Charta manuscript is not the only one that was found by accident. The "Diary of John Evelyn" was found by William Upcott among the waste paper in the lumber room at Wotton, while the tutor of the Marquis de Bonville when playing tennis found that the drum of his racket was formed of some parchment upon which was written a fragment of the lost "Second Decade" of Livy.

One of the oldest fragments of Anglo-Saxon poetry, "The Fight at Finnsburg," was found pasted inside the covers of a book of homilies in Lambeth library, and twelve volumes of the manuscript journal of the house of lords were found in the Waltham road in a cheesemonger's shop about to be used as wrapping paper for butter and lard.

The Monkey's Trick.

The curator of the New York zoo was praising the intelligence of monkeys. "A Philadelphia man," he said, "was hurrying out Powelton avenue one afternoon when all of a sudden an organ grinder's little monkey dropped dead. The poor grinder's grief was pitiful. The Philadelphian, touched, gave him a half dollar and hastened away. An hour later, returning through Market street, he saw the same organ grinder, and just as he passed the monkey again dropped dead, and the grinder's grief was even more pitiful than before. The Philadelphian gave a loud laugh. The grinder, recognizing him, also laughed, but made no motion to return the half dollar."

Moulting Season

The fall of the year is the natural moulting season. A hen's ability as a winter egg producer depends largely on how she passes this moulting period.

While the moulting period can be forced and shortened by the use of stimulants, it is usually best to allow it to take its natural course. As a general rule the hens that moult late and quick are the highest producers and the early moulters seldom a winter layer.

To grow a new set of feathers is a severe drain on the birds and the nature of the feed at this time is of the utmost importance. The common grains such as wheat, corn and oats fed in sufficient quantities will keep the fowl warm and maintains the body weight, but these grains alone are not enough. The fowls need some real feather making food, rich in protein and mineral.

A mash composed of equal parts by weight of wheat bran, ground oats or barley, shorts and meat scrap will make a very good supplement to the grain ration. The addition of one half part each of oil meal and sunflower seed to this mash will give the new coat of feathers a very sleek, glossy appearance. If the hens do not have full access to some form of green feed it should be supplied. One of the best green feeds is cabbage. At this time of the year cabbage is usually quite plentiful and the waste leaves and spoiled heads make a valuable feed for the moulting hens.—C. S. A.

FRANKLIN PARENT-TEACHERS MEETS

The regular monthly meeting of Franklin was held Tuesday evening at the Creston school building, 45 street and Powell Valley road. Rev. W. S. T. Spriggs made the principal address on the question of best means of assisting The Franklin High School. Prof. Ball made some remarks relative to the welfare of the school.

Work on the new High School building is progressing. The frame work for the first story is mostly up and the steel structure for the tower is about all in place. Considerable work has been done on putting the ground immediately in front of the building into shape.

There is good reason for complaining about the way the contractors are handling this work. It should be done by the first of the coming year but from present indications it will be much later.

Time To Plant Bulbs

From now until the ground freezes, is the best time to plant hardy bulbs for early spring flowers. Although the amateur may have poor luck with other flowers, success is almost certain in growing flowers from bulbs planted in the fall.

The bed should be prepared by digging it up to a depth of eight or ten inches and fertilizing well with thoroughly rotted barnyard manure. The soil and manure should be thoroughly mixed and pulverized. If the ground is very dry, it should be sprinkled and allowed to stand until in good working condition, when the bulbs can be planted.

The bulbs must not be put into soil which is too wet, as they will rot, but some moisture is necessary that the bulbs may form a root system before the ground freezes.

The bulbs should be planted deep enough so that they will be covered at least two inches with soil, and from five to ten inches apart. After planting, it is often advisable to put a mulch of manure or leaves over the bed two or three inches deep. This mulch is a protection to the bed during winter, and prevents alternate freezing and thawing. It is removed when warm weather comes in the spring. The close planting gives a mass of bloom, which is very effective.

The kinds of bulbs to plant are hyacinths, tulips, daffodils, jonquils and iris. If solid beds are planted, it is generally best to plant one kind in each bed, though different colors may be used.

The Table Linen Hem

Lay the hems as for the ordinary hemming stitch and baste to position. Fold the hem back onto the right side of the napkin so as to form a crease that is just even with the first turn of the hem. Sew the first turn of the hem and the crease in the napkin together with the overhand stitch.

In making the overhand stitch one may work either from right to left or from left to right. To fasten the thread at the beginning of the work, leave an end about one-half inch long and take the first stitches over the end of the thread. The needle is brought through the work from the back and is pointed directly toward the worker. Do not pull the thread too tight in working. The hem should open out flat and there should be no ridge on the wrong side.

At the end of the hem the thread is secured by taking two or three stitches back over the work just completed.

When correctly made the overhand stitch should be straight on the right side and should slant slightly to the left on the wrong side.

"Neal of The Navy"

The third installment of this popular show will be seen Saturday evening.

The last program showed Neal had grown to be a young man and an applicant for entrance to the Navy. After the test Joe slips the stolen examination papers into Neal's pocket, where they are found. Neal starts for New York to enlist in the U. S. Navy. That night, in an attempt to secure the Yellow Packet, Joe sets the house afire. Annette rescues Mrs. Hardin, and then rushes back into the burning building, but is overcome by the smoke. Outside, Hernandez, Ponto and the Brute assemble with a host of others. The Brute enters the blazing building and rescues Annette, who he lays at the feet of the hysterical Mrs. Hardin, much to the rage of Hernandez, who felt the Yellow Packet almost within his grasp. Joe Welcher loses the Annapolis appointment. "Neal of the Navy" is the most popular thing being shown in Portland today.

Hood River is to have a co-operative spray manufacturing plant.
