More Snow for Sunny Oregon

Mild temperatures and frequent squalls of snow have been the prevailing features of the past week in this part of Oregon. Saturday and Sunday were rainy, turning into snow Monday and continuing till Wednesday noon. During this time about eight inches of snow fell, but it came so gently and the weather was so calm that it fell without drifting, and would have soon disappeared quickly but for the continued tendency to snow.

With such a January record, Oregon is fast losing its right to claim the most delightful climate in America. And that isn't all. There are people who maintain that this is a mild winter compared with one about 30 years ago, when the ice got so thick on the Willamette that the bridges were not needed—(By the way there were no bridges then) and the snow was three feet deep on the level. The horses all died from nervous fright, on account of the snow, and the cattle practically starved to death. And the worst of it is this may turn out to be just such another winter. Never can tell.

The total snowfall so far this January is estimated at 24 inches, and it has snowed 12 days. Some one says this record was exceeded in 1853, and in 1883. According to that Oregon's extreme weather cycle is 30 years and that brings us a little past it, probably due to slow times and the Democratic administration. Temperatures have been around 26 the last twelve hours.

Mt. Scott Mental Culture Club

Last Friday the Mt. Scott Mental Culture Club met at the home of Mrs. Wm. Woodham to observe Red Letter Day. That, in the parlance of Woman's Clubs, means an effort to raise money for the Scholarship Loan Fund. This was the record of four silver teas, the proceeds of which will be the club's donation to the fund.

On this occasion about fifty members and friends gathered to hear Mrs. Frederiek Eggert tell how the Loan Fund has enabled 89 girls to complete their education and enter larger fields of usefulness. Her address was received with much enthusiasm.

Musical numbers by Mrs. H. D. G. Baxter, Miss Maude Regan and Miss Hazel Hardy, added greatly to the pleasure of the meeting.

Mrs. Woodham was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Ed Doran, Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar and Mrs. J. J. Handsaker.

Peter Pier Buried

Peter Pier, aged 66, of Eight avenue, formerly of Damascus, died last Friday afternoon. The funeral was held Monday morning at St. Peter's Church, Lents, Father Beutgen conducting the funeral ceremonies. The remains were laid to rest in Multnomah Cemetery. Mr. Pier leaves a wife and three children. He lived near Damascus for twelve years until this fall when he moved to Eighth avenue and built himself a house. His memory will be cherished by his many friends living near the old home at Damascus, and the family so unfortunate as to suffer by his death.

Reports show that a large sawmill will be erected in Independence instead of Hoskins as was previously reported.

The Canby cheese factory is scheduled to start January 15.
