ONLY a few people have any right to claim any of the glory in the construction of the Columbia River Highway. It is to be presumed their names will be engraved into the columns of Vista House, which is proposed to be a memorial to Oregon Pioneers. Now the rational place for a memorial to pioneers is in Portland and the Vista House movement is simply a movement to immortalize a few chosen Lords of Portland. This is all brought out the past week in a little effusion of Mr. Benson when Mr. Lightner assumes some of the glory of promoting the highway. True, Mr. Lightner was not entirely in sympathy with the enterprise but since Mr. Benson insisted that Mr. Lightner should participate it looks a little selfish for him to object now that the work is done.

Mr. Benson said that the road would make its builders famous, he insisted they should avail themselves of the honor and he even threatened to promote some one else for their places if they did not assume the responsibility for some of the glory prospective and it surely does look rather puerile for him to want to claim all the honors that may arise. But then Mr. Benson's is merely human. His is not a heart of adamant, and neither is his opinion unchangeable. Mr. Benson is "Oregon's Grand Old Man." He put all these beautiful and useful drinking fountains around town with the burning desire to put the saloons out of business. That was before Mr. Benson went into the hotel business. He hasn't put any in since. He has learned by running a bar in his own hotel that the saloons are not deserving of such competition. In other words he has changed his mind. A few months since Mr. Benson, "Oregon's Grand Old Man," was ready to sacrifice $25,000 a year to provide a city manager for Portland under a plan of government he proposed to have drafted and forced down the throats of the citizens of the town. He spent last winter in California and came back to Portland recently proclaiming the view that the city manager idea had serious objections. He probably came to the decision that it would be hard to find a city manager that would take orders from Mr. Benson. The idea of a city manager is that he takes orders from no one. Of course Mr. Benson could not think of employing a man and lose the right to boss him around. That is his long suit. He was a logging camp czar so long that he thinks he ought to be able to boss everybody. All this goes to show that Mr. Benson changes his mind. About a year ago this time Mr. Benson was promising everlasting fealty to Mr. Lightner. Just now it is difficult to anticipate just what is going to happen. One thing seems sure. The Columbia Highway is Mr. Benson's own private property, view, grade, asphalt and all and Lightner had better look out. Every evening some men try to think up something to boast about to the neighbors.

Man is made of dust—and is always out for more.

A man's always satisfied to be out when a bill collector calls.

There are lots of good women in the world in spite of the men, and vice versa.

A woman does her duty because she wants to—a man because he has to.

When a man quarrels with his wife he seldom gets a chance to say anything these days.

A whole lot of men get the idea that they are breezy when they are merely windy.

Every evening some men try to think up something to boast about to the neighbors.

Still, Congress cannot make an army and a navy out of paper. The young men must enlist.

There were female match-makers thousands of years before matches were invented.

the county will not prove the majority at the polls. The little flash of publicity his opponent is enjoying is derived from the success he secured through protecting a violator of the law. It isn't possible that the people of the county are going to forsake an official who cannot be accused of neglecting his duty, particularly in the instance where his opponent developed his offensive publicity, for a man who bases his claim to public acclaim on the fact that he is ready to protect violators of the law. It is a case where every decent man and woman in the county should be ready to spend some time in proving that "right is greater than might" even if the latter does enjoy occasional advantage. We do not want a man in that position whose merit is the protection of criminals, but just the reverse.

IT doesn't always pay to be a peddler of bad stories, even in a political campaign. And when the candidates for the most dignified office in the county, the head of the educational system, stoop to digging up mischievous rumors and circulating them for facts they are lucky to get off with a forced retraction, and that is just what happened last Friday morning when Candidate McCormick visited some of the ministers in Lents and explained some remarks he had made a few days before. Mr. Whitney, his opponent, whom he hoped to cripple by his stories, has carried on a clean campaign, has never been guilty of any sort of personalities and has never failed to prove interesting to those whom he has had the privilege to address.

The Bethlehem Steel Co., is wasting a lot of fine paper trying to tell the people of the country of a proposed $11,000,000 waste in building a Government Armor plant. They do not explain how much the government would waste in continuing to buy armor plate of them at regular prices. It is to be hoped the wail from Bethlehem will fail to raise a responding chord.

On any showdown this country should be able to demonstrate that it has learned a number of things since the affair with Spain.

Mr. Lightner is preparing a history of road building in Multnomah County. It is to be presumed it will be authentic and if so he will tell us how J. B. Yeon got the job as roadmaster; how Benson forced him to support the roadmaster's recommendations on hard surfacing; and how he came to agree to the use of asphaltic surfacing after telling various people he did not approve of it.

MANY MEN SHOW DESIRE TO GO ON SUMMER CRUISE

Secretary Daniels Says That Navy May Train 10,000 Civilians.

Secretary Daniels is enthusiastic over the navy's civilian cruise, which starts Aug. 15 and continues until Sept. 12. "Since the cruise has been announced," the secretary said the other day, "the department has received a very large number of applications and a larger number of inquiries concerning the conditions under which it may be made. We expect to take about 5,000 men who have either a knowledge of the sea or of a trade employed by the navy and give them in a month's time a pretty good insight into naval life. "Judging by the interest which has already been shown, I believe the success of the project is already assured. This year we intend to have all the naval militias on either the Atlantic or the Pacific. Heretofore the Great Lakes militias and those located on inland waterways have had their annual cruises in their own locations. This year we intend to put them aboard great battleships and, with the other civilians we intend to introduce to the navy, we will probably have 10,000 civilians on cruises during the summer. "These cruises are expected to do the same good for the navy that the various training camps held last summer did for the army. They will offer an unexcelled opportunity for young men to gain practical knowledge and experience in handling a battleship, in operating the guns and in discipline. The navy department has not doubted for a moment that the civilians would hesitate to volunteer. The principal fear is that there will not be accommodations on board the battleships for all who make application to serve. The enrollments will be closed on June 1, and no applicant will be considered after that date. The vessels are expected to sail from Boston, New York, Norfolk, Newport, Philadelphia and probably Charleston. The volunteers will, of course, have to pay their fare to the seaport nearest their home and will be required to pay a deposit of $50 to cover the expenses of the trip. Trick of the Lemon Growers. By an interesting yet simple method two crops of lemons are obtained in Steffy during the year, though the second is in every way inferior. The abnormal fruit is known as the Verdell lemon and is marketed during the summer months. The Verdell lemon, green in color, grows contemporaneously on the same trees with the ordinary or yellow lemon of commerce and is obtained by the following method: The lemon tree, which flowers in April, is kept without water from that period until July, when the roots are heavily flooded for a time. This results in a second set of blossoms, from which will come the Verdell lemons. The ordinary lemon crop is picked in the months beginning with October, but the Verdell lemons do not mature until the next May.—Argonaut.

TO RID CHILD OF WORMS

Don't scold the fretful, nervous child. Often its due to worms. Get rid of these by giving one-half to one lozenge Kieckapoo Worm Killer, a laxative worm candy. Give only plain nourishing food, lots of out-door exercise and put to bed early. Watch stools and continue giving Kieckapoo Worm Lozenges, they will positively remove the worms. So. at Druggists.

NOTES OF THE W. C. T. U.

A man with a message came to Lents last Tuesday evening. He did not remain long and not many people met him but the message remains; it has wings; it is moving about through the community. The man needed no introduction because the face of "Staples the Jeweler" smiles from the advertising columns of newspapers with his finger pointing to the identical spot of the new location on Morrison street. Staples pays for his advertising; you have not guessed the purport of his message. The pinions of the message were wrought from alluring melodies lubricated by the unity of purpose of those who appeared with him and compose the musical Staples family. Over the pulsing heart of the message is a crystal exposing the secret place of magic to the view of him who would attain. Spare moments! spare moments! spare moments! Devote your spare moments to some definite end! That is the message. Skill to manipulate those musical instruments was acquired in the spare moments of busy lives. A son, not yet fifteen years of age, with skill that will pay his way through college. A family with trained ability to entertain and instruct the listening public. Let us each and all beckon this message to our homes.

The male quartette at the school house Tuesday evening delighted their hearers by singing genuine patriotic songs. Some quiet people who do not say much about it are patriotic clear down to their ankle bones. Their feet may take them to indifferent places but their hearts are true blue all the time. These harmonious voices, chanting the praises of "the land of the free and the home of the brave" will be a joy wherever they may sing.

Curfew shall not ring at night was the decision of a majority of the citizens of Lents interviewed by a committee appointed for that purpose. It was generally agreed that Lents is a pretty good town so far as the population of curfew age is concerned. The policemen were commended for their good services, testimony being given of having heard the policeman warn children about getting home. Lents is to be congratulated.

Mrs. Margaret Dye Ellis, the Washington correspondent reporting congressional action to the Union Signal, which is the W. C. T. U. national organ, writes that there are a number of bills pending in congress for the betterment of the world. The bill for national constitutional prohibition, she says, has simply been deferred through the action of the Judiciary Committee to "await a more convenient season." In addition to this there is the bill for prohibition in the District of Columbia, and a bill for each of our dependencies: the Philippines, Hawaii and Porto Rico. Mrs. Ellis makes the statement that when we took possession of the Hawaiian Islands in 1898 there were over 200,000 native Hawaiians whereas now there are only 24,000. This awful decrease, says Mrs. Ellis, in "The White Ribboner" is largely attributed to the liquor the United States continues to send to the islands every month.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They cure one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
