TREMONT, ARLETA, KERN PARK

Tuesday evening, September 19, the Amphion Male Chorus gave a benefit concert at the Laurelwood M. E. Church, with Mr. Joy Bradley as reader. Refreshments of coffee, cake, home-made candies, etc., were served in the basement parlor by the ladies of the choir. The amount of money taken in more than covers the pledges recently made by the chorus and choir to the church budget.

The Frances E. Willard class of the Laurelwood M. E. Sunday School met at the home of Lucile Noel, 4447-61st St., S. E. last Wednesday afternoon after school. The following officers were elected: President, Mabel Hammer; Vice President, Lucile Noel; Secretary, Elsie Schmidt; Treasurer, Fern Mahan. Mrs. Noel served delicious refreshments after the meeting. These girls are planning a scrap book to be used by the Ladies of the White Ties for some sick or invalid child whom they may find in their rounds of mercy.

At the six-cylinder program at the Epworth League service at the Laurelwood M. E. Church last Sunday evening, Mrs. Dickey spoke on Stewardship and Miss Jackson on Missions, both these ladies being from Sunnyside. Mr. J. G. Kilpack sang "A Dream of Paradise." The meeting was led by Arthur P. Wilson. Mr. Kilpack is one of the workers in the Boys and Girls' Aid Movement, and would be very glad to tell of his work to interested folks.

E., Portland, Oregon.

CHERRYVILLE

Indian summer! Has the appearance at least.

Everything is late this year probably we will have a late Fall.

An old Indian woman who was through here says we will have some cold weather the coming winter but not much snow.

Wm. Walker, who owns a ranch three miles east of the postoffice here, will soon begin the erection of a house and barn. He says the auto road, which is part of the loop around Mt. Hood, will be lined with summer homes in the not distant future, as this is the ideal summer climate and the great Columbia Scenic Highway of which this auto road is a part, will be one of the most extensively travelled roads in the world.

A hyphenate member of Congress from New York state had inserted in the Congressional Record lately, the address of Arch-bishop Connell, a high dignitary in the Catholic church in which this priest says the great war in Europe was started by the heretics and J. Edgar. As a matter of fact it was started by the holy Catholic country of Austria, whose foolish people are 90 per cent Catholics, and so great was the confidence of the Pope in his holy (?) Catholic subjects of that benighted and benighted country that he loaned them Peter's Pence, an immense sum, to carry on this war and by the same token has lost it, as Austria is ruined right now. Connell says in all his career as a priest he never heard a whisper about securing control—political control—in this country by the Catholic church. It may not be talked about it but that is their ambition and every country where they have secured control they have ruined like Austria, Spain, Mexico et al. They never will get control here and one thing they must remember and that is, to quit interfering with our free schools, free speech and free press or these foreign priests will be sent back to Ireland, Germany and Italy where they came from. This is the land of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Jackson, Franklin and a list of illustrious patriots who have adorned the pages of history and glorified the annals of all time by their splendid achievements in the cause of human liberty. The Catholic church has reached the height of its power in this country and from this on will decline and lose its arrogance and power.

Vice President Marshall may be a small man physically, but not mentally, as any one can see by reading his speech of acceptance. It certainly is a literary gem and sparkles like a diamond. Postmaster General Burleson lastly went fishing and caught 35 fish, which he says will be the exact number of votes carried by Wilson this Fall. He says so because he hopes so. One thing certain with the Labor vote almost sold for him he stands a good chance at this time.

BELROSE

This neighborhood had a surprise by way of a wedding last Thursday. Mr. Bateman's brother married Mrs. Bateman's sister. On their return from Seattle for a wedding trip last Thursday, the 19th, friends gathered by invitation at the home of C. H. Bateman and spent a jolly evening with refreshments, songs, recitations and chat. Mrs. Smith and Mr. Bateman were chums in childhood. May the light of their youth still shine upon their way.

KENDALL

It seems a little quiet here this week. Most of the families have returned from camping and hop picking and the children are in school.

Batton school opened Monday with a good attendance.

Mr. Hawkins took first and second premiums at the Gresham Fair on pop corn which was raised in this vicinity and Mr. Meng Jr., took first premium in the Juvenile department. If Mr. Thomson could take his 40 or 50 foot, two year's growth blackberry vine to a world's fair it would no doubt take the premium. He says the vine is not the best part of it as it will raise enough berries for family use and to can.

Mr. Reed, who lives on the hill in the eastern part of this district, has treated his house to a new blue dress of paint.

The Oregon City road is not to be paved the last half mile south from Multnomah county but gravel is being spread over it to take out the "bumps."

Mrs. Thomson, Mrs. Ham and Mrs. Fowler and their daughters and Miss O'Sullivan have returned from camping. If this weather lasts there will be time for more evening and Sunday picnics on the creek.

Mr. Ham, who is taking subscriptions for the Herald in the Kendall district, says quite a number have expressed their intention of subscribing soon. He says he wishes they would hurry as he is going to give them a Christmas present on his own act.

OREGON NEWS NOTES

according to O. M. Plummer, of the Union stockyards, of Portland.

The Linn-Benton Growers' association cannery at Brownsville is preparing five carloads of canned fruit and vegetables to be shipped to Alaska. The order includes canned cabbage, beans, pumpkins, beets, peaches, pears and other fruits and vegetables. The body of Leland Hendricks, editor of the Oregon Daily Statesman at Salem, was found in the Willamette river near that city. Apparently Mr. Hendricks had attempted to swim from the boathouse to the island, a distance of 100 yards, and becoming exhausted, sank.

Albert Gabel, a baker, was twice shot and wounded so badly that it was thought he would die, by Jesse L. Lee, at Portland. The shooting was the outgrowth of a tragedy of a year ago, when Lee's wife was shot and instantly killed when in the company of Gabel.

That Baker county will have the biggest wheat and barley crop in its history is indicated by first reports from growers, which say that the yield per acre is the greatest ever known. Only 10 per cent of the crops have been threshed, but the results from these are convincing.

Lack of a definite road building policy and a chaotic mass of road laws, is costing Oregon the loss of thousands of dollars annually, according to John H. Lewis, state engineer, in charge of the state highway department. There is need for a general overhauling of road laws of the state. Mr. Lewis declares, so that responsibility for road work may be fixed definitely upon responsible officers.

With 19 counties having reserved space for exhibits and five farmers of different parts of the state entered in the individual farm products class, and several more counties and individuals in correspondence, to say nothing of the great number of entries in the special products competition, the agricultural and horticultural exhibition in the new pavilion at the state fair this year will, beyond doubt, surpass that of any previous Oregon state fair.

The crew which under the direction of Louis L. Sharp is classifying the O. & C. grant lands in Jackson county, has completed its work in that portion of the county lying east of Ashland and the last of the camps have been moved to the Rogue river district northeast of Ashland. About 75 experts are now at work divided into seven crews. At the present rate of progress the lands in Jackson county should be classified before bad weather.

An order from Indian Commissioner Cato Sells, signed by Secretary Lane, was received by Superintendent Freer of the Klamath Indian reservation, reopening all parts of Sprague river, and parts of Williamson, above its confluence with the Sprague, to logging. Closing of the streams to logging was effected in 1913, on complaint of outside sportsmen that logging was detrimental to fishing. A number of mill men operating in that district were financially ruined by the order.

The waters of Link river within the city of Klamath Falls are to be used and a mammoth dam constructed across the head of the river, according to plans of the United States reclamation service. This is to be accomplished by leasing the right on the river. The reclamation service is here planning a dam at the mouth of the vast water power now going to waste, but, on account of lack of appropriation, the government is unable to do the work itself. It is estimated that there are about 30,000 acres of high lands at Pine Grove, Sand Hollow and other districts near the city of Klamath Falls which the government hopes to irrigate next season by pumping.

Healthful Whipping.

It is considered beneficial to be whipped or spanked provided it is done mechanically. In the mechanical therapy departments of up-to-date institutions the whipping post, a mechanical device for therapeutic paddling, is an accredited healing machine. You are whipped by straps of heavy cloth or leather attached to two rapidly revolving posts. When you take the treatment you step backward into the flying whips and receive their blows upon your legs, back, abdomen or chest, depending upon the malady from which you are suffering. The impact of the straps is just sufficient to set the blood in free circulation. There is no smarting, stinging sensation because the straps are broad enough to eliminate any possibility of a cutting blow. You are paddled rather than lashed. The whipping post is valuable in many types of nervousness.—Popular Science Monthly.

Curious Raincoats.

When rain falls in tropical countries there is no mistake about it. The rain comes as if it meant to sweep away all such trifles as trees and bushes. A man who goes out in this deluge must protect himself, but he finds that a mackintosh of the lightest kind has its disadvantages, for if it keeps the rain out it also keeps the heat in.

The raincoat devised by the Mexicans is called a "chino" and is so porous that the heat of the body readily escapes, while, owing to its construction, it keeps the wearer dry. The chino is made of numberless long, narrow strips of dried palm leaf, one end of each strip being woven into a light fabric and the rest falling loose. The wearer of this garment rustles as he walks, and the rain pattering upon it makes a pleasant sound. Arrived at the house, he takes off his palm leaf hat, shakes it and hangs it up to dry. Then he slips off his chino, shakes that also and hangs it up. He himself is untouched by the rain, but the chino as it hangs up looks like a huge, damp brown cassock.

Family Relations.

"Who is that man you were just talking with?"
"That's my brother-in-law."
"He looks enough like you to be your own brother."
"He is my own brother. We are twins."
"Twins? Then why did you say he was your brother-in-law?"
"Because he is. I have three brothers—one in law, one in medicine and one in the army."
