In another column is a communication from a so-called medical reformer. Like many of his profession his head is so filled with conceit that it aches and his eyes are dizzy with unnatural pressure on the optic nerve. Doctors frequently have an unwarranted estimate of their own intellectual superiority and regard themselves as a little more worthy of consideration than others who have not devoted two or three years getting a smattering of some faddist's theories. Doctors generally are just as narrow and intellectually atrophied as any other class of people and a good many of them started below the average of average people. A good share of the doctors of the county entered medical school from the seventh or eighth grades, and having learned a few things they never heard tell of before, think they have the world by the nose. They remind us of the little moth that flutters around the candle. It is the first beautiful thing that ever penetrated their cranium and they flutter around that till their little spark of life is burned out instead of getting away to learn of other wonders. It may be all right to have hobbies but the tendency to be unmindful of the rights of others, to flutter around their candles or ride their hobbies is evidence of an uncharitable disposition or an undeveloped mind.

Now having said this we want to commend the doctors, particularly the doctor who is enterprising and who enriches his fund of information by keeping abreast of the latest developments in research. According to our correspondent this is a waste of time. The old tribal medicine man had about the same view. Disease according to him was the working of evil spirits. He didn't know anything about it. The doctor of today who denies the importance of the investigators who have proven the "germ theory," and their deductions had better announce his alliance with the Chinese doctor or the Indian medicine man. If I put a couple of mice in a close tin box with some cheese and the cheese disappeared I would be able to arrive at a conclusion. If a couple of guinea pigs were enclosed in a glass cage with grass, and the grass disappeared and six guinea pigs appeared where only two had been I would be likely to conclude that the pigs had eaten the grass, thrived and reproduced themselves. If I had a garden of cabbage and a herd of skinny calves got into it and the cabbage disappeared, and I found the calves fat, I would conclude the cabbage was good for calves, whether the calves were good for the cabbage or not. I believe there are people who are able to see a logical conclusion whether others can or not. The facts of chemistry are at the base of all life. The processes of medical treatment involve the handling of certain neutralizing chemicals, chemical poisons that neutralize each other, and of other chemicals that restrain the activities of certain parasitic organisms. To deny this is to admit the want of information, and the narrowness of one's view.

We might say a few other things for the doctor's benefit but we will only say this: Space in our professional columns is open if he wants to pay for it. We will refuse to publish his vagaries further as mere information, for a matter of fact the aim is free publicity. If space in the Herald is worth anything let him pay for it.

"Along the Columbia River," a new booklet sent out by the S. P. & S. railroad, is one of the very finest things ever issued from any press. Printed in a beautiful brown on a highly artistic paper, and displaying two score of the wonderful sights along the noble Columbia, and the humors of weather and season. It makes an elegant invitation to your eastern friends and relatives and you can have it reach them by forwarding their address and a two cent stamp.

Labor has its day and capital has many days, but there is never a moment set aside for the poor old public.

If housewives should strike for an eight hour workday and ten hours' pay there would be a revolution.

Swimming beaches ought to grow in popularity as they become less crowded.

In addition to getting better roads we should attend to getting commercial waterways.

Philadelphia must have a hard time trying to love both of her ball teams the same.

NOTES OF THE W. C. T. U.

The next meeting of Mt. Scott Union will be held at the home of Mrs. Walsh on Tuesday, Oct. 31st.

The paper published by the liquor interests prints an announcement that "The economic distress of the hotel trade of Manitoba, after one month's experience with prohibition, is strikingly illustrated by the closing of a large number of places." This is the paper which announced to its readers that the Hotel Multnomah of Portland, Oregon, had been closed on account of prohibition. The liquor interests are not advertising the fact that the Hotel Multnomah, a million dollar property is about to be opened under prohibition conditions, which was financially embarrassed long before the prohibition law went into effect, is about to be opened under prohibition conditions by Minnesota capitalists who have had every opportunity of making themselves familiar with the Oregon situation.

Mrs. Julia Scott, Mrs. Sommerfeldt and Mrs. Doc McKinley will attend the state convention to be held at Pendleton Oct., 17th.

A pitiful story is being told in the courts of Idaho which those in favor of the manufacture of 4 per cent beer would do well to read. Also the "nursing mother" advocates. We quote: "He related details of the treatment accorded his wife during their early married life; how he tried to keep liquor from her when he discovered her habit six months after their marriage; how he built a home at a cost of $13,000, and furnished it to please her; how he took her to Boise to the Legislature; east to New York, Washington and other cities and introduced her to men of National and state prominence; how proud he was of her because of her attractive appearance and her intellect; how he took her to all social functions after he discovered her drink disease; how it became necessary for him to entertain friends at dinner at restaurants instead of in his own home, because his wife might be intoxicated."

The W. C. T. U. of Kansas is endeavoring to have minors barred from court rooms during sensational trials.

At the meeting of Mt. Scott Union held at the home of Mrs. McKinley, this week, Mrs. Esther Fankhouser read a report of the Toronto, Canada, W. C. T. U. which has a membership of two thousand people and the past year disbursed funds raised to the amount of $18,000. The report was vibrant with gladness at the success of prohibition in that section. The greater part of the money raised by this union went for red cross purposes, a large sum being sent across the seas for the comfort of the Canadian soldiers.

Portland, Oct., 9, 1916.—Editor Mt. Scott Herald: In your issue of Sept. 16, you claim that I misrepresented things and that I made a false statement when I said that "combined human and animal pus" did not prevent or protect from smallpox but did sow the seeds of smallpox and other diseases and you proceed to point out that vaccine does not enter the circulation any more than pus from sores on your hand would. A little knowledge is dangerous, particularly medical knowledge in the hands of editors who write yet sometimes know not what they say. You probably can personally remember one or more cases where persons have had arms—and legs amputated from blood poisoning caused by sores on the hand and leg in which the pus entered the circulation and medical ignorance did the rest. How is it that people who get vaccinated frequently develop running sores of a syphilitic or stonamous nature, or ulcers, all over the body unless it was the poison vaccine that did it? Ask Mrs. Little for some death statistics from this cause. You state that the smallpox disease "germ" colony develops its own death thereby preventing smallpox. Are you aware of the fact that the alleged "germ" of smallpox has never been "discovered" or isolated, and that the medical profession have always been up in the air about what caused this disease and that they really at last have begun to acknowledge that it is a disease of filth?

Evidently some allopathic doctor has been filling you up on the absurd "germ" theory of disease and what they don't know about "germs" will make a big book. Perhaps you can answer the question that I have not yet found any M. D. able to answer: Which came first, the "germ" or the disease? Perhaps when you have more experience in healing matters you will learn that germs are bred by a diseased condition of anything and cannot cause a diseased condition unless by inoculation or personal contact and that if one millionth part of the crazy theory that all disease is caused by germs that are carried in the air were true the human race would have been wiped off the earth thousands of years ago and all quarantine is senseless and useless for can you quarantine against the air?

You do not seem to grasp the fact that the dominant school of allopathic medicine is a lairre and only exists because it is in politics and has control of all health activities which places it in a position to keep the people in ignorance and superstition chiefly because they control the subservient press and the opposition has little or no opportunity to get its views before the people. You may not have also grasped the fact that allopathic medicine is a joke and rarely stays with any one superstition long enough to get well acquainted with it. Their theories change over night and you may possibly recall that cupping and bleeding, tuning the spine, violet, finsen and X Rays, sterilization, turtle serum, radium, twilight sleep and other fads have all had their day, failed and have been officially relegated to the scrap heap. One by one the roses fall and now only serums, vaccines and operations remain. Ehrlich, the 600 man has stated in Paris that serums have reached their limit while the late Dr. Murphy, noted as a surgeon, confessed surgery to be a failure and said that serums were the things to pin your faith to. Take your choice. When doctors disagree not even editors can settle the question. The shoemaker should stick to his last. You do the editing and let the doctors do the healing if they can.

Dr. W. A. Turner,

County Agent Notes

SILAGE CORN

The heavy frost of the last few nights caught a great deal of the corn intended for the silo before it reached the most ideal stage. Much of the corn, even of the earlier varieties has been caught in the milk and soft dough stage. This corn can be safely put in the silo and will make good silage that is worth having and using even though its quality is not equal to that of corn which has reached an advanced hard dough stage. The important thing is to get the frosted corn into the silos as promptly as possible in order to avoid souring should we have a period of hot weather following the freeze. We must, as far as possible, also avoid the whipping off of the dry leaves and consequent loss of considerable nutritive value.

When there are prospects of getting the ensilage enter within a short time, the frozen corn should be cut and laid down in bunches at once. If there is danger of a prolonged wet spell, stand it up in shocks until a cutter is available. The corn still in the field can be easily and economically put into the silo if harvested and stored promptly.

A HOME AT MODERATE COST.

Cottage That Looks Well and Fills All the Reasonable Requirements of a Small Family—Interior Arrangements of the Dwelling Are Designed For Convenience and Comfort.

Design 206, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect, Minneapolis, Minn.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

A very complete cottage for a moderate sum. It has a splendid living room 10½ by 18 feet and a nook with built in seats, affording a view of the open fireplace at the opposite end. The second story provides for two good sized chambers, a bath, large linen closet and clothes closets. Size of house, 22 by 24 feet; first story, 9 feet, and second story, 8 feet. There is a basement under the living room portion of the house. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $1,150.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish complete plans and specifications of design No. 206 for $10.

Rheumatism Follows Exposure

In the rain all day is generally followed by painful twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia. Sloan's Liniment will give you quick relief and prevent the twinges from becoming intense. It quickly penetrates without rubbing and soothes the sore and aching joints. For sore, stiff, exhausted muscles that ache and throb from overwork, Sloan's Liniment affords quick relief. Bruises, sprains, strains and other minor injuries to children are quickly soothed by Sloan's Liniment. Get a bottle today at your Druggist, 25c.

Publication Statement

Statement of the ownership, management, circulation, etc., required by the act of Congress of August 24, 1912, of the Mt. Scott Herald published weekly at Lents for October, 1916. State of Oregon, County of Multnomah, ss. Before me, a notary public in, and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared H. A. Darnall, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the editor and owner of the Mt. Scott Herald and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management (and if a daily paper, the circulation), etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

That the name and address of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business manager is H. A. Darnall of Lents, Oregon.

That there are no other persons interested in its property or publication in a proprietary way and that there are no bondholders, mortgages or other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities.

That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

Signed, H. A. Darnall
Sworn to and subscribed before me this 2 day of October, 1916.
