All church, society, personal and local news not published for profit, free; notices of entertainments, conducted for profit, published at a 25c minimum, of 30 words. Announcements and card of thanks, same rate. Advertising rates quoted on request.

Suitable motto for non-advertising firms: "It can't be Done."

The Bone Dry bill is up for passage at the Legislature on Monday.

Mrs. Clara Foster of Albany is visiting her sister, Mrs. Will Anderson of Lents.

J. Leitch of 5005, 89th St., has been very ill with nervous prostration. He is reported as improving.

Mrs. Bud Coon and daughter of Grass Valley, Oregon, are spending this week with Mrs. Sarah Coon of 87th St.

The Gresham cannery is to be rebuilt. Provisions will be made in the rebuilding for the handling of vegetables.

The dollar that the merchant saves by not advertising usually goes for interest on the note necessary on carrying the goods over.

Katzky Bros. have nearly completed moving into their new department store where they will soon be in readiness to meet their customers.

Mrs. E. L. McKinley entertained a party of friends from Olton one day last week. She also entertained the McKinley and Bundy families this week.

Mr. Farris, of 71st Ave., S. E., has purchased a seven-passenger Maxwell and is now having a small residence remodelled to house the beautiful machine.

Let us remind you that it is none too early to buy those seeds. Buy some shrubs to ornament the grounds. Make home more pleasant than ever before.—Exchange.

Due to the enterprise of the Bell System, the entire United States may be enabled to hear President Wilson's inaugural speech on March 5th over long distance telephone.

Randolph Bundy, who is not quite 19, left last Saturday to take a position as pattern-maker with Dunning & Erich, Harvester Combine makers at Harrington, Wash. This is a responsible position and the salary is considerable.

Work is progressing apace on the new Katzky building. The side-walks are almost completed, the front is getting its final coat of cement, and every day sees a stream of packages and bundles finding their way from the old store to the new.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Hogue of 6439-88th St., are entertaining relatives from the east. In the party are Mr. Hogue's mother, Mrs. Alice Hogue, and her son, from Highland, Kansas, and his sisters, Mrs. A. C. Barth of Clay Centre, Kansas, and Mrs. E. A. Stanton of Astoria, Ore.

Mr. Joe Hendrick has gone to a Tacoma hospital for treatment for appendicitis. He has been employed as collector for the N. P. R. R. for many years. Mrs. Hendrick is fortunate enough to hear from him each day as to how he is getting along, which is a great comfort.

The council of Parent-Teacher Associations and a city official are asking owners of vacant lots to grant the use of such lots for gardening purposes. Worthy people are to be found to do the gardening. If all vacant lots were cultivated there would be no place for weeds or tall grass. Besides, the returns in food products surely would bring comfort to hundreds who do not have much of this world's goods.—Sunnyside Gazette.

Walter Sommerfeldt left a week ago for Eastern Oregon where he will be engaged for some time with the White Pine Lumber Co., in the operation of a drag saw. He was formerly engaged in the manufacturing and assembling of these saws and is now taking orders for them in connection with his work at White Pine. A letter from him just received by his parents states that the thermometer has been registering 41 below zero, but that he rather enjoys it as they are prepared for it.

DAMASCUS.

One of the permanent institutions of Damascus that adds much to the enjoyment of the farmers in that section is the hall conducted by the German Speaking Society of Damascus, Inc. This society aims to elevate the social, moral and intellectual standards of the community. The hall is available for lectures and entertainments as well as the dances which have become quite an institution. This was built in May 1915, and the society was organized about a year previously. There are about 75 or 80 members. The hall was built on shares. The acre of ground was donated by the parents of O. Krotzsch, the present President of the Society. They have a regular monthly meeting the first Sunday afternoon in the month. Dances are held every three weeks.

The hall is one of the best rural halls in Oregon, is 40 x 86 feet, with a 19 foot stage and 12 foot ceiling. It stands in a nice grove of trees. The managers are looking forward to picnics in the grove in the summer time.

The surrounding community has been settled for a very long time, many of the farmers having located there when Portland was a small village, fifty or sixty years ago. The Damascus Creamery of Portland had its origin here.

Upholstery And Photogravures.

turns out work at the toniest of tones with such a perfect velvety finish that the subject seems almost to live and breathe. He was afraid to mention his top-notch price for fear some humble folks might be scared away, but it looks to us as though there is here an opportunity to get first class work from an A No. 1 photographer at prices which maintain Lents' reputation for being able to get better value for your money than any other place in Portland. As a special inducement just for a short time Mr. Johnson is giving a large photo in a 11 x 16 folder for only one dollar. One or more can be taken as desired. Mr. Johnson does enlarging, copying etc., and has many attractive samples to show. He was pretty busy when we called so we did not have much time to talk to him. He uses nothing but Eastman goods for he considers them the best in the world. Their headquarters are at Rochester, N. Y.

Harness and Upholstery Shop.

A busy little shop is that of Henry Jaeger on Foster Road just east of 92nd St. Mr. Jaeger does all kinds of harness repairing and manufacturing. He also keeps a stock of new and second-hand goods, and has plenty of horse-blankets, bits, whips, chains, etc. He has not been established here very long—not quite a year, but he finds business conditions are quite satisfactory. Besides the harness business, most of which is done these days with farmers, Mr. Jaeger is prepared to handle all kinds of upholstery. In fact he is more experienced in this line than the other. He makes over and re-upholsters mattresses, chairs, lounges, sofas, parlor suits, etc. The thrifty housewife will be glad to know that this class of work can be done right here at home, and of course, as is usual with Lents merchants, cheaper than the same service can be given anywhere else in Portland. His ad. will be found in another column.

Greenslade's Blacksmith Shop.

The Village Blacksmith of today no longer stands under a spreading chestnut tree; indeed it is to be doubted whether he ever did. Our local representative of this time-honored trade is established in a commodious shop on Foster Road. He is courteous and efficient. He never shod us particularly, for we go to a shoe-maker when we need such service, nevertheless we believe if we had a mighty fine piece of "hoss flesh," with tender feet, or one that needed particular care to straighten out a bad hoof, we would not hesitate to go to Matt Greenslade. No longer does the blacksmith use a two-handled bellows, nor does he use a crank-winding one which keeps one hand busy cranking, while the other uses the tongs. Mr. Greenslade has an electric switch which does the business better and quicker. He has been here in Lents for four years, and is the only blacksmith in the town. He handles the usual line of work, including wagon repairing, automobile body work, farm machinery repairs, etc. While he stopped work long enough to talk to us, he had a long line of customers waiting so we did not take much of his time. He says the farmers' work is coming in nicely now—rather earlier than usual.

McKinley & Company.

This firm does so many things, has so many irons in the fire, is such an "Omnium Gatherum" in an industrial way that we hardly know where to start in. However, they advertise in the paper so we feel that the things they mention there will be a safe cue to follow, so here goes: We find, then, that

KENDALL.

One of the best improvements in this district and a credit to Clackamas County is the paving of the Oregon City road, 82nd street, south from Kendall station, except for a half mile next to the Multnomah County line which they did not get finished last fall. When they do finish this in the spring the often heard expression, "We are now in Clackamas County," when striking the rough road, will have a different meaning, as it will then be better than on the Multnomah side.

The Parent-Teacher entertainment last Friday evening was quite well attended and lasted until a late hour.

Mrs. Elardo has been seriously ill the past few days.

Mrs. Strobbridge of Kendorf Road (72d St.) met with a serious accident Sunday. The family dog playfully jumped up against her, knocking her down and breaking a limb. She was taken to a hospital.

The writer, or a representative, will try to get around to see all the people in this district next week with a proposition that ought to add a few dozen monthly, semi-annual or annual subscribers to the Herald.

It's easy to be patient when you have nothing at stake.

they handle wood, coal and briquettes, that they have feed of all kinds, especially Hay, Alfalfa, Wheat, Oats, Barley, Chicken Feed, Grit and Meat Scraps (for chickens not dogs, we presume). We have purp and are quite interested. We learn from E. L. McKinley that he's the whole thing, McKinley & Company and all. We also find out that he's "Hall's Barn" also, for he runs that establishment as a transient stable in addition to his other jobs. It seems the reason he got this barn is that he has so many horses that, like the old woman who lived in a shoe, he didn't know what to do. He had to find some place to put 'em. He has fifteen or sixteen head of horses which he uses in another line of his, grading work. He did the grading work on the Franklin High School, and does all the grading work for the School District. Franklin High stands in 10 acres, and Mr. McKinley went over every foot of it. Some had to be levelled, some had to be cut away, and some had to be filled in. This work occupied the greater part of two summers. He made the athletic grounds, the running track, etc. Just another feather in the cap of this district, for many businesses working in other parts of the city make their headquarters right here with us.

The Germans want peace because they think they have won the war, and the allies refuse to accept it because they are sure they will win the war. Therefore, on with the carnival of blood.

"Europe has reached the point in the war where it refuses to count the cost," is the latest from over yonder. Possibly on the theory that it is easier to forget to count than it is to pay.
