The Evening Star Grange will meet at Grange hall, corner of Division and Eightieth street, the first Saturday in September. Mrs. C. P. Blanchard, grange lecturer for the year, announces that the general topic for discussion at that meeting will be "Land and Law." Sub-divisions of this will be the "Public Market" and "How to Reduce Prices." Mrs. Blanchard invites the suggestion of any topic in which anyone is deeply interested, and will see to it that such subject shall be given a chance for consideration.

One Language

Statement from Washington that there is a very strong sentiment in both the senate and house for the complete abolishment of periodicals printed throughout the United States in languages other than English will, we believe, be received with general satisfaction.

Wearied, it is said, of the obstinate refusal of a large proportion of the foreign language press of the United States to adopt and adhere to a policy of sound Americanism, and alarmed by the almost general capitulation of the socialist foreign language papers to the spread of bolshevism, the senate is preparing to work some revolutionary changes in the conduct of alien periodicals, according to four bills which have been introduced on the subject within the last month.

If the senate is wearied, the man in the street who happens to be an American is more so.

Such a move, if carried out, one language, coupled, we venture to suggest, with one flag, would do more to make this country loved by her own people, respected by her friends and feared by her enemies than anything else that could be suggested.—New York Telegram.

Patriots All

The packers say that they do not put their stuff in cold storage for profit. They are merely keeping it fresh for breakfast. Money is the last thing they think about—when they go to bed at night.—Los Angeles Times.

A Prophet Justified

"In order that people may be happy in their work these three things are needed: they must be fit for it; they must not do too much of it; and they must have a sense of success in it." These were the words of John Ruskin in 1851. Each of these three phases is important; the last—most of all today.—Colliers.

Don't have your car painted until you see us.

We feel sure we can tell you some things about automobile painting which you ought to know before placing your order.

Painting automobiles is not like painting houses—no more than building automobiles is like building houses. Automobile painting is a trade of its own. It takes a specially trained workman to make a car look like new and stay that way.

We are now in a position to put through a few jobs of first-class automobile painting in very short order. But we would advise you to see us at once if you want prompt action.
