THRIFT

We are living in a period of exceptional extravagance and high prices. Never in the history of the nation has there been such waste of time, labor, money and materials. During the war, the people of America were told that thrift would win the war, that we should save food, clothing and money. The people responded to the drives that were made and saved, sometimes till it hurt. It is evident, however, that the practice of thrift has not been carried over. On the contrary, there has been a reaction that has now reached the point of danger. We therefore feel that a concerted effort should be made to check extravagance and promote thrift as a life habit.

Thrift is the saving of four things—time, talent, health and money. It needs no argument to show that those things are essential in the life of the nation. The world will not be safe and stable until there is greater conservation of these things. Our nation is facing a winter of unpreparedness. Unless the prices of shoes, hats, milk, butter, eggs, potatoes, flour, fuel and other necessities are reduced the children of the nation will suffer. At such a time it is alarming that people of small means should make extravagant and unnecessary purchases, and even anticipate their income by making such purchases on time. Children growing up under such conditions are certain to develop false ideals and form extravagant habits.
