A Phonograph Occupied the Stage

THE photograph from which this drawing was made has been seen and wondered at by some twenty-five million people. It shows Carnegie Hall, Pittsburgh on September 30th, 1919, Mme. Marie Rappold, prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company New York, is comparing her voice with its Re-Creation by the New Edison.

Two thousand, six hundred people heard the test. They all were amazed. None could distinguish any difference between Rappold's living voice and her Re-Created voice.
