"And the Government at Washington still lives."

This issue of the Mt. Scott Herald furnishes a full and complete report of Tuesday's election, up to time of going to press at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, consequently up-to-date with any of our city contemporaries, which no doubt our numerous readers will appreciate.

AMEN!

Wanted—A State Public Utilities Commission that will take a little time from efforts to get increased fares for street railway companies and use it to get rebates and payments for overcharges and breakage on household goods brought to Oregon by settlers from the East.

The Herald is heartily in accord with the above, from our esteemed contemporary, the Sunnyside Gazette. In June the Herald shipped a valuable linotype machine to this city from Tacoma; had it badly broken by rank carelessness of employees of the N. P. railway, and put in a modest claim for physical damages only. Since last July we have had a visit from a little prototype of Uriah Heath a couple of times, accompanied by insinuating and insulting suggestions regarding the claim, and this is about the only satisfaction received as we go to press. Verily, the State Public Utilities Commission is a joke. If the Herald had a "pull" with the powers that be, no doubt we would have received a check, with due apologies, a long time ago.

A Real Authority.

Little Nelly told little Anita what she terms "only a little fib."
Anita—A fib is the same as a story, and a story is the same as a lie.
Nelly—No, it's not.
Anita—Yes, it is, because my father said so, and my father is a professor at the university.
Nelly—I don't care if he is. My father is an editor, and he knows more about lying than your father.—Blighty.

It's about time for the profiteers to stir up a swat-the-mosquito campaign lest the public continue in its resolve to swat the profiteer.

In some cities clothing is now being offered at from 20 to 50 per cent off. At the bathing beaches it promises to be 99 per cent off.

The world doesn't remind us so much of an oppressed tenant because it moves. It reminds us of one because it keeps on moving.

Europe ought to cure herself of the habit of listening to every bumptious Yankee that poses as confidential agent of the American people.

When one considers the number of people in America who live without working it is hardly fair to blame labor alone for lack of production.

Many changes have come about since the day of the old-fashioned dandelion that peacefully went to seed and never associated with home-made drinks.

Gasoline may become so expensive that, outside the circles of long established wealth, only bootleggers and highwaymen can afford to use motor-cars.

City tenants would do well to reflect that there are houses to be had rent free on thousands of farms now abandoned for lack of labor to cultivate them.

The ultimate consumer is frequently accused of engaging in some hoarding enterprise, but is almost invariably able to prove an alibi because of lack of raw material.

The report that prices have started downward is not exactly comforting to the man who doesn't care to leave this mortal sphere as a result of being under a descending sandbag.

Poison gas is used effectively against rats, but it has not yet been tried on profiteers.

Low necks are to be barred from some colleges. Low brows may be next to be shut out.

With Europe each day "facing a graver crisis than during the war," how far is it to go?

We are informed that the high cost of living is going to fall. It always has—on the consumer.

If a nominee asserts leadership, he is an autocrat, and if he consults anybody, he's a rubber stamp.

The country is suffering quite as much from over-consumption as it is from under-production.

As life becomes more complicated the need of self-laundering garments becomes increasingly apparent.

Raw cloth is not legal wearing apparel. It is interesting and sometimes important to know these points.

Anyway, the high cost of haircuts has pretty thoroughly broken down the custom of tipping the barber.

It is reported that four of the ex-emperor's nephews have gone to work. In time they may become real men.

The vital statistics showing 25,000 recent deaths from typhus in Kiev may explain why the Poles got out.

Austria is going to adopt a new national hymn. It is a safe prophecy that it will not be as good as the old one.

The meek and lowly nickel is coming to its own. You can now get a potato for it—if the tuber is not too large.

A floating debt of 117,148,756.623 marks sounds almost like a derelict of such proportions as to be a menace to international economic navigation.

The Old Guard should investigate that noiseless machine gun. It would be fine equipment to use with gum shoes and a rubber-tired steam roller.

The deposed Essad Pasha was more fortunate than the deposed Carranza, as he got to spend a few peaceful months in Paris before meeting his assassin.

And now, that the mosquitoes have returned, let us stand and sing the first and last stanzas of that beautiful and pathetic little ballad entitled, "Don't Scratch the Bite That's Itching You."

There are Mexican laborers in Texas earning money enough to finance a new revolution on a large scale, but they are so satisfied with the novelty of prosperity that they have quit thinking about revolutions.

The ruling of the first assistant postmaster-general that children can not be accepted for transportation by mail because they do not come under the classification of harmless live animals seems sound enough.
