GOOD ROADS AND BETTER CHURCHES

When today there is a "fiver" in the hands of practically every rural dweller, good roads are almost synonymous with good churches, and the time has come for the churches to stand solidly behind the good roads movement, says The Highway Magazine, Chicago. In the past the church, was a powerful influence for road improvement, we are told, and "it is certainly true that this weekly contact with mud tect with mudholes and mire was a decided factor in the minds of many when the question of spending money for better roads was raised in the township, county or State." But the work is only just begun; in many communities the road to church is almost impassable in the winter season, and the farmer hesitates at a trying task on his one day rest. So—

"Having been, with such good effect, a silent force for the improvement of highways, the church should now, when the good roads may be had at less cost to the community through Federal aid, and perhaps State aid, raise its voice in urging the passage of local good roads bond issues, at least.

"Where good roads exist, the church has prospered. Enriched by the fruits of better highways, the congregation has been liberal in improving and maintaining the church. The size of the congregation has increased, and those to whom the opportunity for Christian service has been given are made the leaders of large groups of followers and the possessors of a wider opportunity for the furthering of the teachings of Christianity.

"Just as the good road has enlarged the areas from which the congregation is drawn, so has the automobile helped to create a wider range of influence for the church. The sight of several dozen cars parked about a country church not an uncommon in districts where roads have been improved. And it is a notable fact that people will often attend the church which can be reached by good roads in preference to the one located on an unimproved highway. The church cannot afford to disregard the influence of roads can disregard the part Christianity has played in furthering the highways any more than those who realize the importance of good roads can disregard the part Christianity has played in furthering the movement for better highways since the beginning of time. It has been said that the Crusades were made in spite of the lack of good roads but that the Crusades demonstrated the need of roads by developing commerce between the East and the West. So does any great movement which affects a majority of the people have other consequences which can not be disregarded if civilization is to be advanced and humanity is to go on 'in the highways, up to the house of God."

A CALL TO DUTY

"The Republicans of the country will be guilty of self-delusion from which they will later suffer if they look upon the result of the recent election as a party victory," declares the Republican Publicity association in a statement issued today through the president of the organization, Hon. Jonathan Bourne Jr. "It is a party victory only in the sense that Republicans will be restored to control of both the legislative and executive branches of government, but an analysis of public sentiment as manifested in political discussion leads to the conviction that the course pursued by the voters in marking their ballots was determined by their dissatisfaction with the Democratic party and its administration of the affairs of the government, rather than by implicit confidence in the Republican organization. More than ever before in its history the Republican party is now on trial before the country.

"The situation which confronts the United States is a critical one. By many it is believed to be one of the most critical in our history. However that may be, none will gainsay the assertion that the problems which confront the nation are not only most difficult but most pressing.

"For eight years we have had an administration of watchful waiting, of surrender to foreign rivals, of internationalism rather than Americanism, of personal government rather than government by law, of extravagance and inefficiency rather than economy and high standards of public service.

"From beginning to end of the administration Senator Harding demonstrated his full appreciation of the seriousness of the task he would assume if elected to the presidency. The rank and file of the Republican party should emulate his example and in the hour of victory should not permit their rejoicing over partisan success to blind them to the fact that the election is a call to duty and responsibility rather than a bestowal of the rewards of political victory."

After Dec. 1st Mr. Osbury, dentist, will be located in new offices in Yott bldg., corner Foster Rd. and 92nd streets. 44-3t

FOURTH U. B. CHURCH

Last Sunday was a red letter day in the Fourth United Brethren church, it being Rally day, Brotherhood, and Woman's day. There were 162 in the Sunday school. An exercise was given by each class. A beautiful exercise was put on by the Cradle Roll superintendent. A cradle and a real, live baby was on the platform, four girls held a ribbon from each corner and rocked the cradle while they sang "Hush, my dear, lie still and slumber," and recited appropriate verses, and four mothers read from Samuel about Samuel's mother. The cradle roll was called, and each baby was held up so all could see, and the names of the new ones dropped in the cradle on the platform. Altogether a very interesting programme was given.

At 3 p. m. Rev. Hawley of Second church spoke to the brotherhood on "The Seed of the Resurrection." There was a good and an appreciative audience. Miss Mayme Cook sang "Life's Railway." Also there was a quartet consisting of Misses Mayme Cook, Grace Guthrie, and Minton and George Guthrie, who sang "He Lifted Me."

In the evening Mrs. Ward, a returned missionary from China, who has spent 22 years there, spoke on "She Did What She Could." Among the curios she exhibited were two pillows, one made of wood and one of ivory. Her talk was very interesting and she sang in Chinese, "Precious Name."

On Monday evening the church sent in a body to the home of their former pastor, Mrs. C. P. Blanchard, and gave her a surprise. They presented her with a set of silver desert spoons and Mr. Blanchard was remembered also. Music, games and refreshments were in order and a good time was had by everybody. Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard left Wednesday for their trip east, making their first stop at The Dalles where Mrs. Blanchard served as pastor in 1916. They will be missed at Fourth church, as she has been here for three years.

The ladies' aid and the missionary meeting was held Wednesday.

EASILY DISTINGUISHED

Jack—I can never tell the twin sisters apart, can you?

Tob—Yes. If I kiss one and she threatens to tell her mother, I know it's Bess; but if she threatens to tell her father, then it's Emily.

OPENLY ARRIVED AT

He—The lecturer said that a wife should be an open book to her husband.

She—I admit that, my dear. And a husband should be an open pocket-book to his wife.

PRACTICAL ALSO

She—Isn't it romantic sitting out here by the mellow light of the moon?

He—Yes, and besides your father can't kick about his electric light bill.

NONE NEEDED.

Peddler—Blotters, sir?

Professor—No; I write only on dry subjects.

Indians Once Lived in Spain.

That the remote ancestors of the American Indians may have lived in Spain in prehistoric days is indicated by some very remarkable discoveries of rock paintings that archeologists have made at El Bosque, in the hilly country north of Alpera, a Spanish town about half way between Albesate, situated in the plains of La Mancha, and Alicante, on the Mediterranean. Anthropologists also say that these discoveries throw a fresh light upon the life of prehistoric man in southwestern Europe during the Magdalenian period of the great Ice Age. These Palaeolithic tribes, when not compelled by the vigor of the climate to find their dwelling in caverns where they obtained protection against both the intense cold and the attacks of ferocious animals, lived under rock shelters on the sides of valleys.—Detroit News.

Blue Eyes and the Film.

To have a profession closed to you because you have blue eyes certainly seems hard luck, but this has happened to two blue-eyed girls who wished to become cinema actresses, says a correspondent. They were told they could never be "stars" on account of this blemish. (?) I questioned a producer on the matter, and he not only confirmed this, but told me that people with brown eyes, or, better still, hazel with a tinge of green, possessed the "soul" in them so necessary for film production. For myself, I should have thought it was not so much soul as because blue in a photograph tends to come out white. But I don't profess to know.—Exchange.
