A WORD TO CONTRIBUTORS

The Herald wishes to again call to the notice of its readers the fact that the space in its columns open to contributed matter is limited and that articles, news or otherwise, sent in for publication must be brief and to the point.

Every week we receive a large amount of material from interested persons, with the request that it be printed. Some of it is worthy of publication and some not. We are forced to bring pencil a great deal of laudatory stuff that the better judgment of the writer should have warned him or her was not suitable. The function of a newspaper is to print the news of the community and the Herald endeavors with at least a small degree of success to fill its own little niche in that respect. We are always pleased to receive items of interest; a great many patrons of the paper keep us informed of the social affairs, etc., of their neighborhood and to them we always feel indebted.

Occasionally some one attempts to overstep the bounds of liberality and abuse what is otherwise a pleasure to both the paper and its contributors, and it is to this class the Herald speaks.

We would also suggest that those sending in church notices confine themselves to facts and avoid the little "puffs" some appear to think necessary to make their matter interesting. The best notice from a church we receive contains only real items of news. The pastor keeps in close touch with his flock, and if weddings or new arrivals occur, when illness or misfortune overtakes a parishioner, he mentions it. His notes we are always glad to get, for he never falls back upon such stock phrases as "a hearty welcome at our church," etc., or describes a visitor as a "true man of God." It is always to be taken for granted that the doors of every church are open to the stranger, and if a man is a true representative of the Deity and patterned in his image, it won't take long for his friends and neighbors to discover the fact and respect him accordingly.

To write for publication is simple. Use only plain, short words; use them as you would in conversation with a friend. Avoid flowery language and extravagant expressions; if any of the latter is called for the Herald will supply it. Remember that a newspaper has other functions besides catering to the vanity of a limited number.

FLOWER AND VEGETABLE SEEDS FOR DISTRIBUTION

Representative McArthur has been notified by the department of agriculture that several thousand packages of vegetable and flower seeds are ready for distribution among his constituents in Multnomah county, and he announced recently that these seeds will be sent only upon specific requests from individuals or organizations.

Congressional seed allotments are smaller than usual this year and Mr. McArthur feels that he should not attempt general distribution among the people of his district but should supply only those who request seeds and who will make use of them. He will be glad to supply reasonable quantities of both vegetable and flower seeds to any resident of Multnomah county and will send larger quantities to schools and organizations interested in gardening. He will also be glad to supply lists of farmers' bulletins and to forward such publications as may be selected from these lists. All communications relating to seeds and publications allotted to the third Oregon congressional district should be addressed to C. N. McArthur, 486 Congressional building, Washington, D. C. Seed distribution will be made about March 1.

Mexican National Life a Factory to Turn Out the Governing Classes.

By PROF. EZEQUIEL CHAVEZ, Mexican Educator.

Our whole national life has been one immense factory to manufacture the governing classes. The foreigners have controlled our commercial life, operated our mines, our railroads, our stores, our factories. Since the foreigner has carried on all of our economic life, what is there left to the Mexican to do? Why, simply to govern. And so our schools have prepared men for governing.

We need more and more different kinds of training. Our people need to enter many other lines, instead of being simply shut up, as in the past, to becoming physicians, lawyers and engineers. Our educational system must change, so that it can direct the young people into fifteen professions instead of into three, and into twenty or thirty different modes of gaining their living and contributing to society. The new school should turn itself to developing leaders in our economic and social life.

I do not mean to make our education entirely practical, leaving out all of the humanities, as Germany has done. We must see that the school introduces young people into useful livelihood and trains them at the same time to be good citizens.

bring them to the banks as soon as possible, as the task of exchanging several thousand bonds is a large one and the banks are desirous of getting the work over with at an early date.

The experience by the banks in the exchange of the previous issues of exchanged bonds has been that people have not been prompt in bringing them in for exchange, thereby causing extra work and added expense. Many of the third issue Liberty Bonds 1920, are still outstanding, and it is for this reason that people are so strongly urged to attend to this matter at once. If you have bonds to be exchanged, don't put it off any longer but take them to the nearest bank today and leave them to be exchanged.

A school for foreign affairs! Why wasn't such an obvious idea ever thought of or propounded before Professor G. Young started it in the Contemporary Review? The English professor sees no reason why there shouldn't be a chair and seminar in connection with the University of London. One of the early effects of the war was to bring into discredit the time-honored methods of diplomacy, says Christian Science Monitor. The man in the street began to declare that secret diplomacy must be abolished and the open policy of "cards on the table" succeed it. Professor Young's "school" would mean the ranks of diplomacy thrown open to the best minds in a nation irrespective of class.

Then, again, when women stop wearing furs in summertime and georgette gowns in wintertime, won't wisdom be getting so prevalent that the joy of foolishness and absurdity may fade entirely from the earth?

Passports have gone up 900 per cent, and those who didn't see America first during the war have an excellent opportunity to do so this summer.

The truth of the matter is, one-half the people are producing the necessities of life and the whole population is in the scramble to get a hog's share.

A popular, and paradoxically speaking, somewhat favorite fear has been dispelled by statistics, which show the majority of the graduates from the largest women's college in the country are married. It takes more than learning to overcome the feminine instinct for romance.

An inventor of children's toys has just died at the age of eighty-six. It is something to have the memory of so many years left behind one devoted to bringing joy into young lives and to earn the lasting monument of the name of the children's friend.
