Unfortunate Apology. A certain editor of a country newspaper in Kansas was asked to leave the community as the result of a typographical error in his report of the wedding of the mayor's daughter, relates Pop. After exhausting his supply of large words about the "blushing bride," he had said: "The large elaborate bouquets of roses were punk." The mayor demanded a correction and apology in the next week's issue, all of which the editor was glad to promise. The next issue contained: "We wish to apologize for the manner in which we disgraced the beautiful wedding last week. Through an error of the typesetter we were made to say 'the roses were punk.' What we wanted to say was the 'roses were pink.'"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

IN TIGHT CORNER

Trapper Tells How It Feels to Be Trapped.

Bear Hunter Experienced Uncomfortable Night in Snare He Had Prepared for Ferocious Old Grizzly.

"Old Mose" was one of the most ferocious bears in the Rockies. He was a notorious "bad actor," according to Mr. A. L. Corson in the Wide World Magazine, and fooled all attempts to shoot or trap him. Indeed, he seemed to have a charmed life.

On one occasion a man named Hancock tried to trap him. In placing the bait inside the trap, Hancock accidentally touched the trigger, and the logs came down and imprisoned him.

He tried to pry the heavy timbers apart, but found that he could not shift them an inch. From one side of the trap to the other he went, unconsciously imitating the movements Bruin would have made in hunting for a weak point. All his efforts were fruitless.

The pangs of hunger were now coming on, and night was near. Hancock scraped up some chips and twigs, made a fire and roasted part of the deer that he had brought to bait the trap with. Being lightly dressed, he suffered keenly from the cold night air.

He lay down on the ground, but suddenly he heard sniffling sounds outside and detected, by the dim light of the moon, a dark form gazing through the chinks between the logs. Hancock felt safe, although his gun was standing by a tree some distance from the trap; Mose—for it was no other—seemed to realize the fact.

Knowing his savage nature, Hancock withdrew to the other side of the trap as the big form rose up on his hind legs. He could feel the bear's hot breath surging through between the logs upon his face; and, fearing that the brute would thrust his claws in, he kept moving from side to side.

Daylight came at last, and Mose trotted off. Again Hancock built a fire and cooked the rest of the deer meat. He almost decided to set one end of the trap on fire and burn his way out. But what if he were unable to control the blaze? If he could reach his rifle, he would be in a position to shoot his way out, for he had a belt full of cartridges.

His horse, tired of standing round, had long ago made for home.

The next morning the neighbors, seeing Hancock's horse in the yard, surmised that the "outlaw of the Rockies" had secured another victim. Several cattlemen started out in search of Hancock. In the middle of the afternoon they heard shooting, but at first they could see nothing.

Hancock had torn his shirt into strips, making a rope about 20 feet long. He had then tied two stones to a string about a yard long and fastened one end of the long line to the middle. Then he threw the stones out between the cracks of his prison toward the rifle. After two hours of practice he was able to drag the gun within reach. He then tried desperately to cut his way out by shooting holes through a log about a foot in diameter. Before he got very far his comrades had located the shots and released him.

Had Feared the Worst.

It is a sad thing to have to relate, but Mr. Spongedy came home the other night "wet." Not externally, but internally; he had drunk wine or spirits or beer!

With uncertain footsteps he climbed the stairs, with itchy, nervous fingers he unclothed himself, with swimming head he lay down in his bed.

Mrs. Spongedy had, however, heard his anti-cattle tread. Thinking to frighten him, she covered her head with a sheet and approached his bed.

Spongedy sat up in bed and gazed in wonder at the spook.

"Who is that?" he asked. "I am a ghost!" came the answer from the sheet. "Oh, that's all right, then: But you did give me a fright! I thought you were my wife!"—London Tit-Bits.

What He Liked.

Mr. T. had visited the D. family long enough to find that they were strong on culture but weak on comforts, such as a sufficient supply of hot water, food and even heat. One cold night he shivered in the living room while the members of the family held a discussion on their pet hobbies. One said that she "dearly loved grand paintings," another professed a fondness for "great works of literature" and the third spoke eloquently on "great works of sculpture."

Finally it came the guest's time to converse. He shivered a minute and then gave a feeble smile. "Right now," he said earnestly, "I have a decided fondness for a grate fire."

New Idea for Tombstone.

Austin J. Harman of Custer, Okla., has invented what he calls a "new and improved tombstone." It is designed to represent a life-size human figure standing erect. For instance it might be a soldier. The material is galvanized iron, made hollow, so that the lower part of it may be filled with cement to make a heavier base. The body is hollow in order that, if desired, it may hold an urn containing the ashes of the deceased. As for the head, it is meant to be screwed on and may be made a likeness of the person for whom the tombstone is erected.

"A GOOD PROVIDER"

When it comes to being "a good provider," no man would pride himself on furnishing trash liberally for his family. The family is entitled to good, wholesome food that helps growth.

It is the same with reading. Good reading pleases and creates its own hunger for more good reading. The Youth's Companion is the best of reading for all—every member—every age.

And it comes every week—crowded with the best. Let us prove it to you with a sample.

The Youth's Companion has long since ceased to provide for "youth" alone. It has become the favorite all-the-family weekly of America. Its name is a misnomer, but is retained for the sentiment it has generated in American homes through its service to every age.

Only $2.50 for a year of 52 issues. Serial stories, short stories, facts, fun, games, puzzles, humor, etc.
